ANNUAL AMERICAN CATALOGUE, 1894.

Full Titles by Authors

NOTE.

In this list the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk, and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (Folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

THE ANNUAL AMERICAN CATALOGUE, 1894,

A., E. V. In maiden meditation. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1894. c. 3–217 p. S. cl., $1.

A quotation on the title-page from Montaigne—"I have gathered a posie of other men's flowers, and nothing but the thread that binds them is mine own"—strikes the keynote of this volume. The writer, a woman seemingly, divides her thoughts and dreams on all sorts and kinds of themes into five parts, namely: After the ball, After dinner, After church, After a wedding, and After one summer. Love and marriage, dress and flirtation, youth and old age, literature and religion, all claim her attention.

Abbelen, P. M. Venerable Mother M. Caroline Friess, first commissary-general of the school sisters of Notre Dame in America: a sketch of her life and character; authorized tr.; with an introd. by Bp. J. L. Spalding. St. Louis, Mo., B. Herder, 1893, [1894.] 12°, cl., net, $1.25 and $1.75.

Abbott, A. C., M.D. Principles of bacteriology: a practical manual for students and physicians. New [2*d*] ed., rev. and enl. Phil., Lea Bros. & Co., [1894.] 472 p. 12°, cl., $2.75.

Abbott, Austin. A digest of New York statutes and reports from Jan. 1, 1893, to Jan. 1, 1894, with tables of statutes, constitutional provisions, rules of court, and cases cited. N. Y., Diossy Law-Book Co., 1894. c. 28+524 p. O. shp., $5.

Abbott, Austin. New cases selected chiefly from decisions of the courts of the state of New York, with notes; with an analytical index to all points of law and practice and all code citations contained in the standard reports of N. Y. issued during the period covered by these vols. Vols. 30, 31. N. Y., The Diossy Law-Book Co., 1894. c. 8+14+561; 8+15+567 p. O. shp., ea., $5.

Abbott, C: Conrad, M.D. The birds about us. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1895 [1894.] c. 2+288 p. il. O. cl., $2.

Dr. Abbott, the author of "Recent rambles," "Travels in a tree-top," and other charming nature-books, has made a very thorough study in this work of the birds of the lower Delaware River Valley—their appearance, habits, etc.—in chapters entitled "The perching birds," "The goatsuckers, "The woodpecker," "The cuckoos, "Birds of prey," "Game-birds and pigeons," "The shore-birds," "Herons, rails, etc.," "Ducks, geese, and swans," "Pelicans, cormorants, and petrels," "Gulls and terns," "The diving-birds." The numerous delightful details the author offers, and the many interesting experiences and personal adventures, show what an indefatigable student and enthusiast he is in this particular line. The book is a very handsome one, with many page-pictures of birds.

Abbott, C: Conrad. Travels in a tree-top. Phil., The J. B. Lippincott Co., 1894. c. 6–215 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The subject of the opening chapter gives name to the book; "Travels in a tree-top" describes the birds and insects seen in or about a large oak in southern New Jersey, also the beautiful views of nature obtained from this lofty outlook. The other chapters dealing with other birds and points of view of the same neighborhood and with some kindred subjects, are called: A hunt for the pyxie; The coming of the birds; The building of the nest; Cornstalk fiddles; The old kitchen door; Up the creek; A winter night's outing; Wild life in winter; An old-fashioned garden; An Indian trail; A pre-Columbian dinner; A day's digging; Drifting; Footprints; Bees and buckwheats; Dead leaves.

A good subject index opens this collection of extracts to easy reference.

Abbott, Lyman, D.D., ed. The Plymouth hymnal for the church, the social meeting, and the home; ed. by Lyman Abbott, D.D.; with the co-operation of C: H. Morse and Herbert Vaughan Abbott. N. Y., The Outlook Co., 13 Astor Place, 1893 [1894.] c. unp. O. hf. leath., $1.75; full leath., $2.50 and $3; full mor., $5.

More than five thousand hymns and poems, and as many tunes, have been examined in making this selection of 638 hymns and 471 tunes. The selection has been based on the belief that the profoundest spiritual experience has found expression in very different schools. All schools have, therefore, been consulted, and all phases of spiritual experience are represeuted. The selection has been based also on the belief that beauty of form is cousistent with depth of feeling, and that the most perfect forms, both in poetry and music, are not too difficult for social and public worship. A psalter for responsive reading, and some brief liturgical "orders of serviee," are appended to the hymns. There is also a department of spiritual songs for use in social meetings. The indexes are complete and convenient.

*Abbott, Nathan. A selection of authorities on descent, wills, and administration; text, cases, and statutes. St. Paul, West Pub. Co., 1894. c. 15+752 p. O. shp., $7.50.

*Abrams, Albert, M.D. Clinical diagnosis. 3d ed. rev. and enl. N. Y., E. B. Treat. 273 p. il. 12°, cl., $2.75.

Ackerman, A. W. The price of peace: a story of the times of Ahab, King of Israel. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1894. c. 2–390 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Dealing with the times of the weak-minded King Ahab and his idolatrous wife, Jezebel, this book sets before the reader, in the attractive form of a tale, something of the domestic as well as the military life of those troublous times. Perhaps its most valuable feature is the carefully drawn and life-like portrait of a Bible character too little known; namely, Micaiah, the prophet who was courageous enough to tell the king, in the presence of his army and in contradiction of the flatteries of hundreds of false prophets, that his forces would be scattered and he himself slain in the coming battle with the Syrians.

Adam, G. Mercer, comp. and ed. Sandow on physical training: a study in the perfect type of the human form; comp. and ed. under Mr. Sandow's direction. N. Y., J. Selwin Tait & Sons, 1894. c. 16+244 p. pors. O. cl., $3.50; cheaper ed., cl., $2.

Eugene Sandow, born in Prussia in 1867 and now twenty-seven years of age, is as far as known the strongest existing man; by a carefully sustained and intelligent method of his own discovery, he has built himself up from a delicate child to be the most powerful man in the world. His exhibitions in England and in this country have awakened great interest in his methods of training. His system, which requires no elaborate apparatus, and involves no vigorous course of athletics or alteration in diet, is fully and minutely described; the incidents of his life are also given and his personality analyzed. The book is embellished with upwards of eighty half-tone illustrations from photographs by Sarony and other photographers, and by one hundred and fifty marginal illustrations by a pupil of Meisonnier.

Adams, G: Burton. Civilization during the middle ages, especially in relation to modern civilization. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 7+463 p. O. cl., $2.50.

Author is professor of history in Yale University. The object of his book is "to show how the foundations of our civilization were laid in the past, and how its chief elements were introduced, and to depict its progressive development until it had assumed its most characteristic modern features." In other words, it is to present as clear a view as possible of what is the most important thing for all introductory study at least, and for the permanent intellectual furniture of most—the orderly and organic growth of our civilization.

*Adams, H: The practical designing of structural iron-work. N. Y., Spon & Chamberlain, 1894. 194 p. 8°, cl., $3.50.

Adams, J: Coleman. The leisure of God, and other stories in the spiritual evolution. Bost., Universalist Pub. House, 1895 [1894.] c. 6+233 p. D. cl., $1.

Adams, W. H. Davenport. Child-life and girlhood of remarkable women: a series of chapters from female biography. N. Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., 1895 [1894.] 4–350 p. pors. il. O. cl., $2.50.

The biographical sketches are grouped as "English women of letters," a chapter which includes the names of Harriet Martineau, Fanny Burney, Elizabeth Inchbald, Charlotte Brontë, and others; as "The twelve days' queen—A Puritan lady," which refers to Lady Jane Grey and Mrs. Hutchinson; "Some notable Englishwomen," embracing the names of the Countess of Pembroke, Margaret More, Lady Montagu, and others; and as "Some minor literary lights," "Saintly lives—two enthusiasts," "A group of exemplary characters," and "Three illustrious Frenchwomen."

Adams, W: T., ["Oliver Optic," pseud.] Asiatic breezes; or, students on the wing. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1895 [1894.] c. 11+361 p. D. (All-over-the-world lib., 2d ser., no. 4.) cl., $1.25.

The fourth volume of the second series of the All-over-the-world library. Starting from Alexandria, Egypt, after the adventures and explorations of the Guardian-Mother party in that interesting country, the steamer sails out upon the Mediterranean, closely followed by her little consort; a large portion of the volume is taken up with some stirring events in a bay of the Island of Cyprus; the Suez Canal is passed through and minutely described.

Adams, W: T., ["Oliver Optic," pseud.] Brother against brother; or, the war on the border. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1894. c. 4–451 p. il. D. (The blue and the gray army ser., no. 1.) cl., $1.50.

A new series of The blue and gray is begun with this volume, which will embrace incidents, scenes, and adventures of the Civil War which occurred on the land as the former series did those of the water. The scene of this story is laid in Kentucky; two cousins, whose fathers are northern men who had a few years previously settled there, being the heroes. The Lyons boys have just arrived at the military age when war is proclaimed, and one enlists in the northern army, the other in the southern. "Riverlawn," a plantation, is the scene of many exciting events.

Adams, W: T., ["Oliver Optic," pseud.] Oliver Optic's annual, [1894:] stories, poems, and pictures for little men and women, by the best authors and artists. Bost., Estes & Lauriat, [1894.] c. '82–'87. unp. il. O. bds., $1.25.

Adams, W: T., ["Oliver Optic," pseud.] Up and down the Nile; or, young adventurers in Africa. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1894. c. 10+352 p. il. D. (All-over-the-world lib., 2d ser., v. 3.) cl., $1.25.

In this volume the voyage of the Guardian Mother is temporarily suspended at Alexandria, while the excursionists make their trip up and down the great river of Egypt in another steamer more suitable for inland navigation. The exploration of Egypt by the characters of the former volumes of the series is assisted by lectures and conversations on the history of Egypt, which place the story of this wonderful country in attractive shape for young readers.

*Adams' illustrative cases on the law of sales: selected by professors of leading law schools. St. Paul, Minn., West Pub. Co., 1894. c. 4+927 p. [interspersed with blank leaves for annotations.] O. shp., $5.

The name "Adams," given to this v., is not the name of ed. or comp.; but since every book, like every person, must have a name for identification, this title has been arbitrarily chosen for that purpose, and for advantages in cataloguing.—Preface.

Addison, Rev. Dan. Dulany. Lucy Larcom's life, letters, and diary. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 9–295 p. por. D. cl., $1.25.

It was the purpose of Miss Larcom to write a sequel to her book, "A New England girlhood," in which she intended to give some account of her life in the log-cabins on the western prairies as a pioneer and schoolmistress, and her experiences as a teacher in Wheaton Seminary, and as an editor and literary woman. While she did not live to carry out her project, she prepared some material, which with her large correspondence and diaries have formed an excellent basis for this volume. Lucy Larcom's life was one of thought, not of action; she had no remarkable adventures or experiences. Hence the interest of the volume is a purely intellectual one; besides letters to Whittier, Phillips Brooks, and other prominent men, there are also letters from them.

A society of Socialists, having its headquarters in London, plan a bloodless revolution: their scheme is to carry off all the monarchs of Europe to a tropical isle, and keep them there for the remainder of their lives. Sophos, a Greek, who has sought refuge in the house of a Jew in Soho, London, describes, while in a clairvoyant state, the details of the abduction of Queen Victoria, the Emperor William, King Humbert, and others.

Alden, Mrs. Isabella M., ["Pansy," pseud.] Wanted. Bost., Lothrop Pub. Co., [1894.] 4+342 p. il. D. (Pansy books.) cl., $1.50.

While in a petulant and morbid state of mind, induced by both real and imaginary troubles, Rebecca Meredith conceives the idea that she is out of place in her father's household. She leaves home, and tries to find her level; a disappointing experience discouraging her, she resorts to the "Wanted" column in the daily paper, by which means she finds her vocation, and becomes the heroine of a romantic love-story.

Aldrich, T: Bailey. The story of a bad boy; il. by A. B. Frost. [New holiday ed.] Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1895 [1894.] c. '69–'94. 13+286 p. D. cl., $2.

The sterling qualities of Mr. Aldrich's delightful story, as well as its undiminished popularity, have naturally caused it to be chosen for full and artistic illustration, and Mr. Frost has succeeded admirably in depicting the adventures and interesting experiences of the "Boy." The pictures are full-page and in the text. The binding is rich and attractive.

Aldrich, T: Bailey. Unguarded gates, and other poems. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1895 [1894.] c. 2–121 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The title poem of this new volume of poems by Mr. Aldrich will be recalled as a ringing protest, printed in the Atlantic Monthly, against unregulated immigration into the United States. The other poems include many noteworthy lyrics written within the past six years, and have all the dainty grace and charm which characterize the poet's previous utterances.

Alexander, Sigmund B. A moral blot: a novel. Bost., Arena Pub. Co., 1894. c. 5+233 p. D. (Arena lib. ser., no. 39.) pap., 50 c.

The scene is Boston. Leo Ormsby, a successful artist and journalist, falls in love with a [illegible] of irreproachable family and character, who returns his love. When the mother of the heroine is on her death-bed, she induces her daughter, Ormsby's betrothed, to marry a wealthier suitor; this leads Leo to cast his fortunes with a burlesque actress. Give incidents of his unconventional life after he comes into association with a woman of quest[illegible]

Alger, Horatio, jr. Only an Irish boy; or, Andy Burke's fortunes and misfortunes.

Phil., Porter & Coates, 1894. c. '74, '94. 4+324 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A poor, uneducated little Irish boy, with considerable native wit and intelligence, is contrasted with a rich, educated boy, who has been spoiled by a foolish, indulgent mother. While Andy Burke's bravery and industry are carrying him upward in the world, Godfrey Preston's lack of any of the finer qualities is dragging him down. The story of the two lives includes some spirited adventures and a good deal of fun.

Alger, Horatio, jr. Victor Vane, the young secretary. Phil., Porter & Coates, [1894.] c. '93, '94. 4+346 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

The young hero, Victor Vane, is about sixteen when his father accuses him of the theft of twenty-five dollars, his cousin, Norman Carver, testifying that he had seen Victor take the money. Victor is turned out of doors and goes to seek his fortune. His skill at baseball brings him friends who recommend him to a position as private secretary to a Member of Congress. He lives in New York for a short time at the Fifth Avenue Hotel and then goes to Washington. He has some amusing encounters with queer people seeking political preferment, and rises higher and higher in the estimation of his employer, and finally becomes a rich man and returns to his home and lives to see Norman proven the thief.

Alger, J: G. Glimpses of the French Revolution: myths, ideals, and realities. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., [1894.] 15+301 p. D. cl., $1.75.

Papers on general incidents or phases of the French Revolution. Under the title of "Myths" Mr. Alger disproves many sensational stories regarding the Reign of Terror, which have gained general credence—such as leather being made out of human skins, the last supper of the Girondins, etc. "Utopias" deals with the many impracticable and visionary schemes of the time. Other chapters tell their own tale through their titles, which are: "Adoration of the Magi," "Prophetesses and Viragoes," "Children," "The revolutionary tribunal," "Women as victims," and "The prisons."

Alien, (pseud.) A daughter of the king. Chic., F. Tennyson Neely, 1894. c. 2–277 p. D. (Neely's international lib.) cl., $1.25.

Among the beautiful hills and valleys of New Zealand, Florence, the daughter of a dreamy violinist, is left an orphan in care of a woman who has advertised for a girl to bring up with her son and nephew. She leads a happy, loving life, full of sunshine and bright hopes, devoted to her adopted mother and her violin. Both boys love her. Under peculiar conditions she marries against her heart to please her adopted mother. Her life-history is a fair presentation of what marriage without love means to a strong character. The author faces the woman problem with great seriousness.

Allardyce, Alex. Earlscourt: a novel of provincial life. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. '93. 4+357 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., 132.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Stephen Brancepeth, the son of a rich banker in the English rural town of Earlscourt, exhausts his father's patience and for a time wanders from his home. He returns a rich man and buys the Dunes House, the handsomest property in the neighborhood, astonishing all his former associates, who cannot imagine where he found his money. This is explained by a complicated plot, showing some of the skeletons in the closets of the large and interesting family at Earlscourt.

Allen, Alex. V. G. Religious progress. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 3–137 p. D. cl., $1.

The author is professor in the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge, Mass. Contains two lectures. The first deals with religious progress in the experience of the individual; the second with religious progress in the organic life of the church. As a whole, the book is an eloquent and liberal plea for church unity.

Allen, Grant. At market value: a novel. Chic., F. Tennyson Neely, 1894. c. 12+329 p. por. D. (Neely's international lib.) cl., $1.25.

The hero, heir to the earldom of Axminster, is determined to achieve a position without the aid of the prestige of his birthright. He becomes a sailor and is supposed to be lost at sea. Under a feigned name he offers a picture of Venetian scenery at the Royal Academy. It is rejected. While removing it he meets his fate in Kathleen Hesslegrave, also the painter of a refused picture. The plot is rather involved, the scene being chiefly Venice and London. As an author, Arthur Willoughby, Lord Axminster finally does useful work for his fellow-men.

Allen, Ja. Lane. A Kentucky cardinal: a story. N. Y., Harper, 1895 [1894.] c. 3+147 p. il. S. (Harper's little novels.) cl., $1.

The natural beauties of Kentucky in the year 1850 are described month by month with the art of the writer of "The blue grass region of Kentucky." The Kentucky cardinal is a beautiful red-breasted bird, whose nesting and family life the author has watched with loving eye. A little love idyl is sketched with lightest touch among the rhapsody the author offers to nature and her songsters.

Allen, T: Gaskett, jr., and Sachtleben, W: L: Across Asia on a bicycle: the journey of two American students from Constantinople to Peking. N. Y., The Century Co., 1894. c. 7+234 p. pors. il. D. cl., $1.50.

A narrative of the remarkable journey of two young American students from Constantinople to Peking on bicycles, originally published as a serial in the Century. The two young men travelled entirely on their own resources and were animated only by a desire to see little-known aspects of foreign life. They employed no guides or interpreters, but were compelled to learn a little of the language of every country traversed, thus coming into personal acquaintance with the people. The entire journey around the world occupied three years, and the distance travelled on bicycles was 15,044 miles. On their way the travellers took over 2500 photographs, some of which are reproduced. The story of the trip as he republished is confined to the adventures met with while crossing Asia.

Allen, Willis Boyd. Lost on Umbagog. Bost., Lothrop Publishing Co., 1894. c. 4+120 p. il. D. (Camp and tramp ser., no. 1.) cl., 75 c.

Four boys averaging sixteen years of age, and known among their friends as "the vagabonds," decide to camp near Lake Umbagog, in January, without a guide. The first evening of their camp-life they have an adventure, one of the boys going to the river for water encountering a bear on the ice. The others afterward get lost in the snow, and have some thrilling experiences, in which a nice girl is mixed up.

Rodney Barnes, a Boston boy's mother, becoming anxious on account of her son's failing health, consults a doctor, who astonishes both mother and son by prescribing a vacation in Maine during the maple-sugar season. Following Dr. Freeman's advice, Rodney pays a visit to his uncle. Shortly after his arrival at Uncle James' a heavy snow-storm preventing his carrying out his plans, Rodney has to find other ways of amusing himself; hence the story gives a series of clever short stories told in a New England farm-house.

American ambassador (The:) a novel; by a public man. Chic., Laird & Lee, [1894.] c. 3–229 p. il. D. (Pinkerton's ser., no. 20.) pap., 25 c.

Theodore Winthrop, who represents the United States government in Italy, being unpleasantly surprised by the discovery of a letter that involves his wife's good name, seeks reparation through her supposed defamer, the Count Caspiades; this creates great excitement in diplomatic circles, and is the direct cause of the succession of sensational scenes which make up the story. There is an interest aside in the history of the count's daughter, and her defence in a murder trial, by the hero, the American ambassador.

A catalogue of a model library of 5000 volumes, selected by experts of the American Library Association, and representing as nearly as possible the 5000 books that a new library ought to obtain first for its collection. The volumes catalogued were given by the publishers; the library formed part of the exhibit of the Bureau of Education at the Chicago Exposition, and is now permanently in Washington. The printed catalogue was prepared at the New York State Library, under the direction of Miss Mary S. Cutler, and the work done by Louisa S. Cutler and assistants. The Bureau of Education, which issues it, has a limited number for gratuitous distribution. It does much more than show a desirable list of books. It is an excellent object lesson in the two systems of classifications, the decimal and the expansive—the Dewey and the Cutter—and gives also a perfect illustration of a dictionary catalogue, including in one alphabet, author, title, and subject. There are also sample pages of an author-index and a subject-index, a list of publishers' addresses (7 pages), directions for purchase and arrangement of "A. L. A." Library, the library abbreviations, etc. Coming before the class and dictionary catalogues, are separate alphabetical lists of biography and fiction. Publishers' names, dates of publication, and retail prices are given throughout.

Contents: As natural as life; Self-preservation; Heart-ache and heart's ease; Numbering our days. Four papers by the former editor of the Christian Register and the present minister of the Church of the Disciples.

Ames, Fisher. A practical guide to whist, by the latest scientific methods. 6th ed. rev.; with the laws of whist as adopted by the American Whist League. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. '90–'94. 8+119 p. T. cl., 75 c.

"The science of whist has made remarkable progress during the last two or three years. Although no material changes have been made in the rules of the American leads system, there is much more disposition to study and closely analyze the finer points and some improvements have been made. In view of these facts, and the belief that his little book was somewhat too concise for the present style of study, the author has entirely rewritten it, bringing it down to date, and giving reasons and illustrations much more fully than in the previous editions." —Preface.

Andrews, E. B: History of the United States. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons. 1894. c. 2 v., 33+390; 13+341 p. O. cl., $4.

The reasons for the present history of the United States are: 1, It is believed to utilize, more than any of its predecessors, the many valuable researches of recent years into the rich archives of this and other nations. 2, The narrative is continuous as well as of moderate compass. 3, The author has sought to make more prominent than popular histories have done, at the same time, the political evolution of our country on the one hand, and the social culture, habits and life of the people on the other. 4, While pronouncedly national and patriotic, it is careful to be perfectly fair and kind to the people of all sections 5, Effort has been made to present the matter in the most natural periods and divisions. No pains have been spared to secure perfect accuracy in all references to dates, persons, and places, so that the volume may be used with confidence as a work of reference. The author is president of Brown University.

"In the preparation of this book, and others of the Technical drawing series, it is the aim of the author to provide text-books rather than copy-books; treatises in which principles should be established, and methods suggested, but freedom permitted in their application. While the treatment of much of the subject is new, it has long since passed the experimental stage, and nothing is here published that practical experience in the class-room has not justified."—Preface.

Appleton, Rob., [pseud. for Roman I. Zubof.] After the manner of men: a novel of today. Bost., Mass., The Franklin Pub. Co., [1894.] c. 3–406 p. il. por. D. cl., $1.

The story of two artists, one devoted to his work and striving to make his friend recognize his talents and limitations and work with earnest purpose: the other, full of wit, sociability, and good, fleeting impulses. The first marries and finds his art suffers. The Irish question is worked into the plot. The scene shifts between London and Dublin.

Appleton, Rob., [pseud. for Roman I. Zubof.] Elena: the story of a Russian woman. N. Y., G: W. Dillingham, 1894. c. 311 p. D. pap., 50 c.

Elena is the wife of Colonel Agapor, a brave soldier, holding many offices of trust in the state. Her old-time friend, a brother officer of her husband, has become convinced that the Russian soldiers are used for degrading work in keeping their countrymen in subjection. He teaches Elena his theories, and she leaves her husband and becomes a conspirator against the government. The many dangers braved by Russian revolutionists add excitement to the story.

Archer, T. A., and Kingsford, C: L. The crusaders: the story of the Latin Kingdom of Jerusalem. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1895 [1894.] c. 30+467 p. il. map. D. (The story of the nations ser., no. 43.) cl., $1.50; hf. leath., $1.75.

The present volume bears the sub-title, "The Story of the Latin Kingdom of Jerusalem," in order to make it clear at the outset that it is concerned only with the crusades which are crusades in the proper sense of the word. With the fourth crusade, the Latin empire of Constantinople, and still more with those developments, or perversions of the crusading idea, which led to the so-called crusades against the Albigenses and the Emperor Frederick, it has nothing to do. In making the story of the Latin Kingdom of Jerusalem the main thread of the narrative, stress has intentionally been laid on an important if comparatively unfamiliar side of crusading history.

Peter Gaveston's young and beautiful wife, after being married six years meets an old lover and is saved from eloping with him by her adored child, prompted to his methods by her brilliant young sister. Fashionable country-house society does not appear at its best in this story of misunderstood guardians and gossiping ladies of title.

Argles, Mrs. Marg., ["The Duchess," pseud., now Mrs. Hungerford.] The red house. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally, & Co., 1894. c. '93, '94. 2–259 p. D. (Rialto ser., no. 62.) pap., 50 c.

The characters of the novel are Dr. Darkham, a clever man and a learned scientist, his dull, ugly wife that he had married in his youth for her money, and their idiot son; these are the denizens of the "Red house." The doctor is a man of little principle, and when he allows himself to fall in love with a charming young woman he does not hesitate at a crime to win her; retribution comes to him from a most unexpected source.

The little hero gained his name from having been found asleep on a pile of tan in the tannery of James Payzant, of Liverpool, a small seaport town of Nova Scotia. The waif had run away from a Yankee fishing sloop, where blows were more plentiful than kind words, and had tramped from Yarmouth to Liverpool. He wins the affections of James Payzant and his wife, and is adopted by them; being a bright, happy lad, the account of his doings among the "bluenoses" is extremely amusing.

Gives in plain, untechnical language the essential facts in regard to the means by which electricity is employed as an agent for the transformation and transmission of power, and its application to the operation of machinery. These facts comprehend the construction and principles of the electric motor, and its relations to the dynamo, and through it to the steam-engine, water-wheel, or other source of power. The selections of motors as examples of the different kinds of construction have been made from those which have stood the test of practical use and embody the leading principles of the best construction.

Essays on theatre folk and theatre art, written chiefly for The Dramatic Mirror a few years ago. The author holds that "more than all else it is an actor's utterance that fixes his position as an artist." He has carefully watched the pronunciation and emphasis of many leading players, and with fearless candor and much ability he points out their special good and bad points. All students of acting and elocution can learn much from this clear dissertation on correct and false readings, and the book is calculated to make every reader think and judge stage elocution intelligently.

This year-book is conspicuous for its full history of horticulture at the Chicago World's Fair. The author spent most of the summer at Chicago for the express purpose of collecting facts. The volume also contains a full discussion of the yields and prices of fruits, vegetables, and all other horticultural crops in North America during the year. There is a history of the orange trade, and accounts of the efforts to introduce American fruits into European markets; also a full set of statistics of the horticultural imports and exports of the year; an account, with awards, of the World's Fair chrysanthemum show, a list of the chrysanthemum registry of the year, and other matters pertaining to ornamental gardening. The list of new varieties of flowers, fruits, vegetables, and trees, introduced in 1893, is an important feature.

Balestier, Wolcott. Benefits forgot. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 3+460 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The picturesque life of a newly settled town in Colorado, with its heterogeneous population of men and women from all states in the Union in search of fortune or health, and its mining element making or losing fortunes every moment almost, is the background. The leading characters are James Deed, a New York lawyer, and his two sons, Jasper and Philip. The elder Deed is a widower, and is about to marry again when the story opens. On the morning of his wedding-day he learns of an unscrupulous and ungrateful act on the part of his eldest son Jasper towards himself, which interrupts the whole current of the narrative, and is the basis of all the after-events. The characters, evidently drawn from life, are rich in western "slang" and eccentricities; the scene-painting is most artistic. Was published in the Century.

Ballou, Maturin M. The pearl of India. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 9+335 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The beautiful and fertile island of Ceylon is "the pearl of India," and the most recent part of the world visited by the great traveller, Mr. Ballou. From personal observation and such sources of information as are accessible, he gives a brief but comprehensive historical sketch of this remarkable island, of which most persons know very little indeed; he describes its fauna and flora, the inhabitants, their modes of life, customs, industries, amusements — in short, tells in his well-known style just what hosts of readers will be glad to learn about Ceylon.

Balzac, Honoré de. Catharine de Medici; tr. by Katharine Prescott Wormeley. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1894. c. 7+421 p. D. hf. mor., $1.50.

One of the chief instigators of the massacre of Saint Bartholomew finds an eulogist in Balzac. He places her among "the great kings," and justifies many of her deeds in the light of state policy; many of the crimes attributed to her he considers "not proven." The volume is divided into three parts, each making a separate story, namely, "The Calvinist martyr," "The secrets of the Ruggieri," and "Two dreams." "The Calvinist martyr," which covers 301 pages, presents Catharine in the first years of her widowhood, with her young son Francis II. married to Mary Stuart, surrounded by spies and the intrigues of the Guises, the Bourbons, the Colignys, and the Condés. Calvin is also introduced, and the plottings of the Reformers. The second study is devoted to the brothers Ruggiero, the astrologers who foretold the deaths and manner of deaths of Catharine and her sons, and others of her court. The volume belongs to the "Philosophical studies" in "the comedy of human life."

Balzac, Honoré de. Contes de Balzac; ed. with introd. and notes, by G: McLean Harper and L: Eugene Livingood. N. Y., W:

The stories selected are representative both of Balzac's style and of the scope of La Comédie Humaine.

Balzac, Honoré de. Memoirs of two young married women; tr. by Katharine Prescott Wormeley. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1894. c. 8+325 p. D. hf. mor., $1.50.

The story is told through letters; the heroines are two young girls, belonging to noble French families, who have been brought up in a convent; the friendship there begun continues through the married life of both, and is displayed in the confidential letters which pass between them, going into the details of the married life they each finally accept; one experience being quite happy, the other the contrary. Taken from "Scenes from private life."

Bamford, Mary E. In Editha's days: a tale of religious liberty. Phil., Amer. Baptist Pub. Soc., 1894. c. 351 p. D. (The crown ser., no. 3.) cl., $1.25.

The story is placed in England in the reign of Henry VIII., and in the low countries when they were under the rule of Charles V. and his son, Philip II. The story deals mostly with the persecutions of the "Anabaptists."

Bamford, Mary E. Jessie's three resolutions. Phil., American Baptist Pub. Soc., [1894.] c. 191 p. il. D. cl., 90 c.

The story of a young girl, who labors not only for the support of herself, but for that of her invalid mother and aunt as well, and yet finds time to do some missionary work in her own neighborhood among the Roman Catholic Portuguese and the heathen Chinese. The scene is laid in one of the small towns of California.

Bangs, J: Kendrick. Three weeks in politics. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 4+82 p. il. T. (Harper's black and white ser.) cl., 50 c.

The young man who figured in "Coffee and repartee" as the "Idiot," and whose sharp wit enlivened the breakfast-table of Mrs. Smithers charming home for single gentlemen, is again the chief speaker. When the little sketch opens, the "Idiot" had just returned from a three weeks' visit to Phillipsburg, where he had been helping a friend who had been running for mayor. His friend was defeated, and the "Idiot" entertains and instructs the inmates of Mrs. Smithers-Pedagog's with an inside view of a political campaign.

Bangs, J: Kendrick. The water ghost, and others. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 6+296 p. il. D. (Harper's American story-tellers ser.) cl., $1.25.

Contents: The water ghost of Harrowby Hall; The spectre cook of Bangletop; The speck on the lens; A midnight visitor; A quicksilver Cassandra; The ghost club; A psychical prank; The literary remains of Thomas Bragdon. The stories treat of supernatural apparations and psychological pheuomena from an amusing and unusual standpoint.

With two exceptions, these fairy-tales are those which delighted our fathers and grandfathers in their childhood—Puss in Boots, Cinderella, Little Red-Ridinghood, etc. Baring-Gould has rewritten them in simple style, eliminating the grandiloquent language which has clung to some of them.

Baring-Gould, Sabine. Cheap Jack Zita. N. Y., J. Selwin Tait & Sons, 1894. c. '93. 2+402 p. il. D. cl., $1.25; (Tait's illustrated lib., no. 3.) il. pap., 50 c.

The Isle of Ely, or Cambridgeshire Fens, the scene of this story, is north of the county of that name, cut off from the rest of England by the river Onse. The life of this out-of-the-way spot is as peculiar as its men, the "fen-tigers" as they are called. "Zita" had travelled all her short life in a van with her father, a "Cheap Jack," who had sold "bargains" at all the fairs in England. Accident brings them to the fens, where the poor "Cheap Jack" dies. "Cheap Jack Zita," as the natives name the daughter, becomes part of the fen life, witnesses a murder, is loved by two men, and acts in trying emergencies as a brave, unselfish girl.

Baring-Gould, Sabine. The deserts of Southern France: an introduction to the limestone and chalk plateaux of ancient Aquitaine; il. by S. Hutton and F. D. Bedford. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1894. 2 v., 20+296; 10+303 p. O. cl., net, $8.

The south-centre of France has its own history which is little known, this interesting bit of country being practically unexplored. Baring-Gould has written a history for the unlearned of a land he carefully studied and learned to love. The geologic formations, the deposits and the rude stone monuments, relics of pre-historic ages, are explained for the "general reader," and the beautiful scenery, the picturesque castles, and the quaint churches find adequate and charming description with pen and pencil. The land also abounds in historic reminiscences. In an appendix there is a list of authorities to be consulted for further information, covering 10 pages.

Baring-Gould, Sabine. KittyAlone: a story of three fires. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1894. c. 4+361 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Coombe Cellars, the pretty scene of a prettier love-story, lies in the southern part of Devonshire. Kitty Alone is the daughter of a man full of schemes for making money, visionary and unpractical, who keeps his friends in continual mental unrest. Her name has been given her because she seems to live within herself among her uncongenial, rough surroundings. After suffering accusation and trial through circumstantial evidence, Kitty Alone finds happiness with her faithful, joyous lover.

Baring-Gould, Sabine. The queen of love: a novel. Phil., The J. B. Lippincott Co., 1894. c. 319 p. D. (Lippincott's ser. of select novels, no. 157.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The background is the town of Saltwich, in Cheshire, England, whose chief industry is the manufacture of of salt. A realistic picture is given of the lives of the workers in the salt factories, and of the unique character of the land which they occupy. "The queen of love" is a pretty little circus girl, who is deprived of a father's care, through the falling of the circus tent.

The "Queen" finds an uncle in Saltwich, and gives up her wandering life. Many troubles come to her after this. Her uncle keeps her money, and the romance of her life has many disappointments.

Barlow, Miss Jane. Kerrigan's quality. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1894. c. 2–216 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A story of Ireland, which is both humorous and pathetic. Kerrigan, after twenty unsuccessful years in Australia, is left a fortune hy an uncle in Ireland, and he returns to his old home; his twenty years of ill luck seem to follow him, and he gets no pleasure out of his money and lands. Without frieuds or occupation, life is a heavy burden to him, till an accident hrings to his door the O'Connor family, and he offers them the Linmore House he has just bought, to reside in, until young Sir Ben shall have recovered his health. His life after this and the disposal of his money are influenced by this family.

Essays written at different intervals during fifteen years' residence in East London. Although they do not pretend to form a connected whole, their arrangement is subject to some order. Those placed first set forth the poverty of the poor. Those which follow suggest some means by which such poverty may be met, by individual and by united action, with some of the dangers to which charitable effort seems to be liable.

Barr, Rob. In the midst of alarms. N. Y., F: A. Stokes Co., [1894.] 4–275 p. nar. S. cl., 75c.

Toward the end of May, 1866, a Fenian uprising in Canada breaks in upon the vacation of a clever, conscienceless young reporter, who is resting in camp with a medical friend in the Canadian woods. Dick Yates, the wild harum-scarum reporter, and his studious friend the doctor lose their hearts on Canadian farms to two charming girls as different in character as the men. An ingenious way of running a town library furnishes some pretty incidents of quiet courtship.

Barrett, Frank. Found guilty. N. Y., Lovell, Coryell & Co., [1894.] c. '92. 4–339 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

About the time that Dr Norman, of London takes possession of Beauchamp Manor, the guardian of Miss Dorothea Howard, living in the same vicinity, is very much worried over the mysterious disappearance of a letter entitling his ward to a large sum of money. His attempts to recover the letter set in motion minor schemes of some of the characters implicated in the theft, and an effort is made to prevent Dorothea marrying the man she loves; this failing, influence is brought to bear to make her believe her husband false. Afterwards she makes no opposition to a scheme to murder him, and is forced to fly from England, being made to believe the deed is accomplished. The story is full of sensational incidents and detective work, and is told by the different characters in turn.

An old clockmaker, whose leisure hours have been spent in deep scientific experiments in chemistry, buys an old house in the slums of London, to which is attached a chemical laboratory unused for one hundred years. The former owner has imposed certain conditions upon a buyer, all of which the old chemist fulfils. The consequences are strange and weird, and the story works up to a most exciting climax Suspended animation and chemical resuscitation are the secrets carefully guarded by the old deserted laboratory.

Barrett, Frank. The woman of the iron bracelets. N. Y., J. Selwin Tait & Sons, [1894.] c. '93 5+433 p. D. cl., $1; (Tait's Kenilworth lib., no. 8.) pap., 50 c.

A young girl who had been confined for years in a private asylum for nervous diseases, through the [illegible] designs of her guardian, escapes in an ingenious way; a young man who assists her in her flight is found dead in his hansom and the girl is arrested for murder; in being taken to London by the police with the "iron bracelets" on her wrists, the train collides with another and the girl is supposed to have lost her life, and her body burned To clear up the mystery of these events, and to bring out the true story of the young girl, requires many chapters of details. Another story is entwined with that of the heroine, in which through the aid of hypnotism a villain works many vile plans.

The hero of the story is a People's Party legislator, John Longwood, elected to represent a constituency of farmers and miners. Shylock is a State Senator, a typical plutocrat, who encourages his daughter to influence John Longwood to vote so that her large mining interests shall reap the benefits. John Longwood has opened his political career by writing a series of letters on money, land, transportation, etc., to the local paper. His ideas on needed reforms are discussed from many points of view. Dedicated to the People's Party.

Mrs Bayard was the wife of Samuel Bayard, who was appointed by Washington agent of the United States in the British admiralty courts under the Jay treaty. She not only knew Washington, Franklin, Hamilton, Jay, and John Adams, but had frequently seen George the Third and his cabinet ministers, was well acquainted with the American and British generals, with one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, and many other prominent men of both sides. Her "Journal" is a picture of life and manners as seen by a young American woman a century ago.

Baylor, Frances Courtenay. Claudia Hyde: a novel. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 2+442 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The London Times in the early eighties contained an advertisement of farming land in Virginia, which tempted the hero to leave home and country. The advertisement proved a fraud, but the young Englishman remained in Virginia and in time met success in love and fortune. The description of Virginia life shows the knowledge of conditions and the happy way of putting things of the author of "On both sides."

Becke, L: By reef and palm; with an introd. by the Earl of Pembroke. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1895 [1894.] 3–220 p. nar. D. cl., $1.

Louis Becke was for years a trader among the islands of the Pacific Ocean. From the Sandwich Islands to New Zealand he knew the people, their habits and customs, and these short stories are founded on his often most unconventional experiences. Their separate titles are: Challis, the doubter; 'Tis in the blood; The revenge of Mary O'Shea; The rangers of Tia Kan; Pallon's Taloi; A basket of bread-fruit; Enderby's courtship; Long Charlie's good little wife; The methodical Mr. Burr of Majura; A truly great man; The doctor's wife; The fate of the "Alida"; The Chilian blue-jacket; Brantley of Vahitahi.

The distinguishing features of this new series are as follows: The texts are chosen only from modern German authors, in order to give the pupil specimens of the language as it is now written and spoken. The modern German orthography is used throughout. The volumes contain either notes or vocabularies, and lists of verbs, according to whether they belong to the elementary or advanced course into which the volumes of the series are divided. The texts are carefully edited by scholars.

Beckman, Ernst. Pax and Carlino: a story; il. by Florence K. Upton. N. Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., 1894. c. 2–196 p. il. D. cl., $1.

A dog called Pax and a Swedish boy named Carlos Ros, or Carlino, are the heroes. Carlino is stolen from his home by Pax's mistress, and the dog and child fraternize on account of their similar misfortunes. Their adventures in Italy and the United States, with Carlino's temporary adoption by a bishop, his running away to find his parents, his reunion with Pax, his voyage on the Allonia, and his American experiences, are described in a story both humorous and pathetic.

This with four other volumes, entered in this list under Coman, Goodyear, Judson, and Winchell, constitute the course of reading for the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle during 1894-95, beginning with next October. The volumes are all brief and simple in treatment, and adapted to general readers.

Beers, H: A. A suburban pastoral, and other tales. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1894. c. 2+265 p. il. nar. S. cl., 75 c.

Eight tales, mostly of New England life; they are entitled: A suburban pastoral; A midwinter night's dream; A comedy of errors; Declaration of independence; Split zephyr; A graveyard idyl; Edric the wild and the witch wife; The wine-flower.

Behrens, Bertha, ["W: Heimburg," pseud.] The chaplain's daughter. [Also] Misunderstood and Jascha; tr. by Kate Dykers. Chic., E. A. Weeks & Co., [1894.] c. 217 p. D. (The Marguerite ser., no. 19.) pap., 25 c.

A manuscript found in an old deserted [illegible] tory records the story of the chaplain's daughter. She lived early in the eighteenth century and loved a young theological student, who was eventually to succeed her father as court chaplain. But her lover, though was a Bohemian at heart, never will[illegible] a priest, and on their marriage eve he fled with another woman. His return, repentance, and death years afterward, conclude the story. Two other short stories are included: "Misunderstood" and "Jascha."

Bemis, E: W. Relation of labor organizations to the American boy and to trade instruction. Phil., American Acad. of Political and Social Science, 1894. 61–93 p. O. (Publications of the society, no. 129.) pap., 25 c.
An answer to an article published in the Century Magazine for May, 1893, inspired by the late Col. Auchmuty, which, among other things, said: "the American boy has no rights which organized labor is bound to respect"—"he is refused admission to nearly all trade-unions, and is boycotted if he attempts to work as a non-union man." The many interesting facts and statistics offered by the writer show that this is not an exact presentation of the case.

Another character study in line with "Dodo." Eva Grampound stands for the very modern young Englishwoman, who is either born without emotions, or has them so deeply dormant in her that it needs exceptional events to bring them to the surface. Life is a great bore to her, and she marries Lord Hayes, hoping his wealth and social position will make existence more bearable. The climax in her story is reached when she discovers she can love, and the object, unfortunately, is not her husband.

The author believes that Venetian painting is the most complete expression in art of the Italian Renaissance. "The Renaissance stands for youth, and youth alone—for intellectual curiosity and energy, grasping at the whole of life as material, which it hopes to mould to any shape. . . . At Venice alone this expression attained perfection." The index covers fifty pages and is an index to the works of Venetians in all the principal galleries and celebrated private collections of the world.

A brief sketch introduces a series of photographic views of buildings both ancient and modern, which includes likewise a few portraits of men who are identified with the history of the quaint old town. An outline of the history of the trio of boroughs, comprising Bethlehem, is also given, with facts concerning the Moravians, which occurred from 1741 to the present time.

Betts, C. Wyllys. American colonial history illustrated by contemporary medals: ed. with notes by W: T. R. Marvin and Lyman Haynes Low. N. Y., Scott Stamp and Coin Co., Ltd., 18 E. 23d St., 1894. c. 8+332 p. por. il. O. cl., $3.

The volume describes 625 medals, illustrated by nearly 200 engravings of their obverse and reverse dies. Translations of the legends are uniformly given, with explanations of the abbreviations, whenever decipherable. The chapters treat of the medals belonging to the periods of discovery; of colonization; of intercolonial wars; those of the period from the Peace of Paris to the Revolution; those of the Revolutionary period itself; and finally of those relating to the acknowledgment of the independence of the United States. Separate chapters are also given to the numerous pieces commemorating the exploits of Admiral Vernon, and to the Proclamation pieces of Ferdinand VI. and Charles III. of Spain, the pieces satirizing John Law and his Mississippi scheme; those relating to the conflicts between the Kings of France and England in the New World, and to battles and treaties affecting their colonies on this side of the ocean, etc.

Bigelow, Poultney. The borderland of Czar and Kaiser: notes from both sides of the Russian frontier; il. by F: Remington. N. Y., Harper, 1895. c. 6+343 p. D. cl., $2.

In a series of chapters called "In the barracks of the Czar," "Why we left Russia," "The Russian and his Jew," "Side-lights on the German soldier," "Emperor William's stud-farm and hunting forest," "On a Russian farm," "Preaching the gospel in Russia," and "Russification," is a striking presentation of the people and conditions along the line which divides the possessions of the German Empire from those of the Czar of all the Russias. There is an element of personal experience and adventure which is very delightful, illuminated as the narrative is by Mr. Remington's sketches made on the spot.

Bikélas, Demetrios. Tales from the Ægean; tr., by Leonard Eckstein Opdycke; with an introd., by H: Alonzo Huntington. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1894. c. 4–258 p. S. cl., $1.

Eight little stories, originally written in modern Greek and now translated into English, make up this attractive little volume. M. Bikélas is, perhaps, the most popular living author in his own land; his historic tale, "Loukis Laras," made so great a sensation when published at Athens about fifteen years ago that it was translated into nearly every language of Europe. Of these tales some are sad, some imbued with a gentle humor—cheerful rather than merry—and all are pure and refined in sentiment. But their especial value lies in the realistic pictures they paint of Greek life in our own times—its social customs, dress, courtship, and marriage.

Bishop, Mrs. Isabella Bird. Among the Tibetans; il. by E: Whymper. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell Co., [1894.] c. 3–159 p D. cl., $1.
The part of Asia known as Tibet comprises a territory of 700,000 square miles, a large part of which is the home of wild animals only. The author has gathered the facts embodied in this little volume in the course of her work for the Royal Scottish Geographical Society. Her "Unbeaten tracks in Japan" has made her graphic amusing style well-known to lovers of description.

Bishop, W: H: A pound of cure: a story of Monte Carlo. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 5+200 p. D. cl., $1.
The picturesque scenery about Monte Carlo is admirably described. The story enacted in its midst illustrates the growth of the gambling spirit in a young American, who, from a brief visit to the tables at Monte Carlo made in a spirit of fun, becomes a desperate gambler, and is led to the verge of suicide; the hero is an illustrator of American books, and is the possessor of a charming home, and a wife and child whom he dearly loves.

Bishop, W: H: Writing to Rosina. N. Y., The Century Co., 1894. c. '93, '94. 2+117 p. Tt. shp., $1.
An exquisite little gift-book, telling the story of Knox D. Lanfair, the successful salesman of the Excelsior Screw and Tack Co., who, upon falling in love, induced his friend to conduct his correspondence with the lady for him. Many complications followed, told with the sunny humor of the author of "The house of a merchant prince," "A pound of cure," etc.

Bissell, Mary Taylor, M.D. A manual of hygiene. N. Y., The Baker & Taylor Co., [1894.] c. 12+338 p. D. cl., $2.
Dr. Bissell, professor of hygiene in the Woman's Medical College of the New York Infirmary for Women and Children, says "this book has been written as the result of experience in the class-room of the need of a concise text-book on hygiene adapted to American conditions." Treats of public health and preventable disease, micro-organisms, air, climate, water, food, the dwelling, ventilation and heating, household disposal of garbage and excreta, exercise, clothing, baths, infectious diseases, etc.

The play gives an excellent picture of Norwegian family life. It raises the question, "How far is society justified in ordaining one moral code for men, another for women?"

Black, Clementina. An agitator: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1895 [1894.] c. 2+177 p. S. (Harper's little novels.) cl., $1.
Kit Braud, the agitator, is secretary of a labor union which has been directing a strike of English wire-workers. Kit is a single-minded man who has lost his wife and child and gives up all personal pleasures, his whole intelligence and strength to help his fellow-workman. Circumstantial evidence makes it appear that Kit is unfaithful to his trust, and he is imprisoned and prosecuted. Some wise thoughts regarding capital and labor are interwoven.

Black, W: Highland cousins: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 6+444 p. il. D. cl., $1.75. [2645
The characters are taken from middle-class Scotch life; the scene is laid in Dumtroone, a small seaside Scottish town; the hero is a young schoolmaster; there are two heroines, the cousins, Barbara and Jessie Maclean. The former is a beautiful, ignorant girl, whose vanity leads her into strange paths, and whose career is brought to a tragical and unexpected ending. A game of golf is described in one of the chapters. Essentially a love-story.

Blackmore, R: D. Perlycross: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 4+493 p. D. cl., $1.75.

The story is set, sixty years since, in the village of Perlycross, in the heart of East Devon. Sir Thomas Waldron, the chief land-owner of the parish, dies, and shortly after the funeral it is discovered that his grave has been desecrated. Suspicion of the "body-snatching" falls chiefly on a young doctor, who loves Sir Thomas' daughter. The conflict of gossip and speculation throughout Perlycross, the measures taken by the Waldrons, the troubles of the lovers whose hopes are frustrated by the catastrophe—all these disturbing elements are finally harmonized by the unexpected solution of the mystery.

Biographies of Abraham and Isaac, Jacob and Joseph, and Moses.

Blair, E: T. Henry of Navarre and the religious wars. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1895 [1894.] c. 3–307 p. pors. il. Q. cl., $4.

The author spent two years in Béarn, among the Pyrenees, in the birthplace of Henry IV. of France. Finding how little exists in the English language on this interesting period and character, he resolved to avoid partiality and present a faithful picture of characters and events which have been so distorted by partisan writers. He begins with Henry II. and Catharine de Medici, and gives a full account of Henry III., using the bluntest terms to describe the dissipations of this sovereign. The chapter devoted to the massacre of St. Bartholomew is full of new details. Handsomely printed and illustrated. Full index.

Blossom, H: M., jr. The documents in evidence. St. Louis, Mo., Buxton & Skinner, 1894. c. '93. unp. F. pap., $1.50.

Through a clever correspondence between three people, a bright little romance is evolved. The "make-up" of the volume is more important than the story, being unique in its way. The eight letters which tell the story, some newspapers clippings, and some verses, "the documents in evidence," are given in fac-simile; in each letter appears a characteristic handwriting, on a perfect sheet of note or letter paper, with monogram or business heading, etc. Each document is fastened to a sheet of stiff paper, the letter being complete in its folds, not printed on the stiff sheets, which are left blank on one side, and enclosed in a paper cover, the design of which includes the envelopes of the letters in fac-simile, bills for flowers and bon-bons, etc. The whole is enclosed in an official envelope with an official red seal, and tied with red tape.

Blouet, Paul, ["Max O'Rell," pseud.] John Bull & Co., the great colonial branches of the firm, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa. N. Y., C: L. Webster & Co., 1894. c. 319 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

"Max O'Rell" describes the English colonies throughout the world with far more fairness than his books of travel have hitherto shown. He says "for any young man, steady, hard-working, and persevering, no country offers such present advantages and future chances as England's colonies. What they want is fresh and ardent youth, workers of all sorts, skilled artisans, intelligent vineyard hands, hardy field laborers, men with healthy bodies and upright minds." All his old sarcasm brightens his new book.

Blow, Susan E. Symbolic education: a commentary on Froebel's "Mother play." N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 18+251 p. D. (International education ser., no. 26.) cl., $1.50.

A commentary on one of the most important of Froebel's works—Mutter- Spiel und Koselieder—which was published fifteen years after "The education of man," and gives the fruitage of Froebel's long thinking and experimenting. Kindergartners will find this a great help in the study of Froebel's work. Contents: Atomism; Development; The childhood of the race; The symbolism of childhood; The meaning of play; Old Lady Gairfowl; Pattern experiences; Vortical education.

Blümner, H. The home life of the ancient Greeks; from the German, by Alice Zimmern. N. Y., The Cassell Pub. Co., 1893 [1894.] 15+548 p. il. D. cl., $2.

Not an absolutely literal translation of Dr. Blümner's text; such slight alterations have been made as the different and more concise character of the English language seemed to demand. Chapters on: Costume; Birth and infancy; Education; Marriage and women; Daily life within and without the house; Meals and social entertainments; Sickness and physicians, death and burial; Gymnastics; Music and dancing; Religious worship; Public festivals; The theatre; War and seafaring; Agriculture, trade, and handicraft; Slavery.

This tract was printed in 1849, when the writer was in his first rectorship in south Jersey. It was never published, having been intended for use in his own parish; to show the evils and wickedness of the divisions among Christians, and to answer questions constantly put to him, then a young person, Is not division among Christians a good thing? Also as to the origin and history of the Episcopal Church in England and in this country."—Preface. Bishop Coxe found the tract so helpful that he advised its publication.

Boldrewood, Rolf, [psued. for T: Alex. Brown.] A modern buccaneer. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. c. 4+338 p D. cl., $1.25.

A young Australian of twenty years back tells the story of his voyages with Captain William Henry Hayston in the brig Leonora through the South Pacific. Hayston was an American and a dishonored naval officer; he was a handsome, accomplished fellow, with many pleasing qualities, but utterly reckless and unscrupulous. Thrown out of the navy, he takes to trading with the South Sea Islanders; the hero, filled with a passion for adventure, accompanying him as supercargo. The deeds recorded are violent in the extreme, including robbery and murder and the seizure of vessels and the property of the native islanders under many or any pretexts.

Bollioud-Mermet was born at Lyons in 1709, and filled the position of secretary to the Academy of Lyons from 1736 to 1793, the year of his death. He wrote the present essay on the book-collectors of his time on account of the extreme to which "bibliomania" was then carried. The title-page explains that it was "first published anonymously in 1761, and now done into English, and republished for the perusal and delectation of the members of the Grolier Club of New York et amicorum." Printed on linen paper, with narrow page and wide margins.

Bonner, J: A child's history of Spain. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 6+365 p. por. il. D. cl., $2.

By the author of "A child's history of France." Begins with the Roman conquest, followed by chapters on: The Goths in Spain; The Moorish conquest; Who were the Moors?; An account of Abderahman and his successors; The Christians of northern Spain; Séville; The Moors at Granada; The discovery of America, etc., etc.

Bonney, T. G. The story of our planet. N. Y., Cassell Publishing Co., 1894. il. O. cl., $5.

Not a text-book. Written for that numerous class of readers, "who, while they have received a good education and feel much interest in the history of the earth on which we live, have neither the leisure nor the inclination to master the technicalities or to enter into the minute details of any one branch of science." But in trying to tell "the story of our planet" in fairly plain words, the author has not shrunk from dealing with some of the more difficult questions which it involves. In short, the plan on which the book has been framed is generally similar to Sir C. Lyell's "Principles of geology." Glossary. Index.

Book of prayer for the church and the home, with selections from the psalms. Rev. ed. Bost., Universalist Pub. House, 1894. c. 5+191 p. S. cl., 75 c.

Designed to be a help in the offices of religion in the church and in the home. As originally published, it included many instructions and prayers which are now omitted, the aim being, in this revised edition, to provide simple services of worship for those who desire them, and to give suggestion, if not formal direction, to those who are called to the various ministrations of religion, in public and in private.

Booth, C: The aged poor in England and Wales: condition. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 525 p. 8°, cl., $3.50.

Booth, Mrs. Eliza M. J. Gollan, ["Rita," pseud.] A husband of no importance. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 5+186 p. nar. D. (Incognito lib., no. 4.) cl., 50 c.

Through a brief, but entertaining story, the author scores the "advanced woman" and aims to show that her theories are untenable. Mrs. Hex Rashleigh, a writer of books and pamphlets, and a speaker in public on the emancipation of women, has lived a selfish, independent life, bestowing little thought or care upon her husband, whom she considers a nonentity. The husband writes a play, which not only brings him fame, and surprises his wife, but almost miraculously alters her views on the woman question.

Booth, Newton. Newton Booth of California, his speeches and addresses; ed. with introd. and notes by Lauren E. Crane. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 12+521 p. por. O. cl., $2.50.

Newton Booth was born in Washington Co., Indiana, Dec. 30, 1825. In 1850 he went to California to engage in mercantile pursuits, and continued to reside in the state till his death in 1892. In 1862 he was elected State Senator; he was elected Governor of California in 1871, and in 1873 was elected United States Senator from California for six years, commencing March 4, 1875.

Boothby, Guy. In strange company: a story of Chili and the southern seas; il. by Stanley L. Wood. Chic., F. Tennyson Neely, 1894. c. 5+300 p. D. (Neely's international lib.) cl., $1.25.

A London defaulter, who has robbed his bank of two hundred thousand pounds and fled to Chili, is there, in turn, robbed of his treasure by an English adventurer. The money is shipped to England and put in charge of a London banker, who is instructed to give it only to a person presenting a certain token. The story tells of the various persons who obtain the token, of the crimes committed for its possession, and of the "strange company" in which its possessors find themselves. The first part of the story takes place in Chili during the revolution of 1891; later the scene shifts to Australia, and finally to England.

Botta, Mrs. Anne C. L. Memoirs of Anne C. L. Botta, written by her friends, with selections from her correspondence and from her writings in prose and poetry. N. Y., J. Selwin Tait & Sons, 1894. c. '93. 14+459 p. por. O. cl., $3.50.

Opens with a biographical sketch by Mrs. S. M C. Ewer, in which the principal events of Mrs. Botta's life are recorded. Following are many tributes to her memory in the form of letters written after her death from intimate friends to the editor, which reveal her gifted personality through many interesting details and anecdotes. To these have been added selections from Mrs. Botta's own letters, some of her poems, and letters written to her by distinguished people. Mrs. Anne C. Lynch Botta died in New York City in 1891; for over a half a century she had been a conspicuous figure in N. Y. literary circles, drawing around her the great writers and famous people of all countries. She was distinguished as a teacher, author, and artist. A limited edition printed on Holland paper, gilt top, and untrimmed edges.

Bourget, Paul. A saint; tr. from Paul Bourget's "Pastels of men," by Katharine Prescott Wormeley; il. by P. Chabas. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1895 [1894.] 3-82 p. D. bds., $1.

Travelling in Italy about ten years ago the writer casually heard of some very fine frescos which had been recently discovered in an abandoned monastery. He was an artist and journeyed there at once. He found the place guarded by an old monk, a wonderful character, who proves to be the "saint." Bourget's cosmopolitan liberality and his keen sense of humor are shown in the descriptions of the people of various nationalities his hero is supposed to meet.

Bourget, Paul. Steeple-chase (Maurice Olivier); il. by André Brouillet. N. Y., Meyer Bros. & Co., 1894. 4+152 p. T. (Collection Lemerre illustrée.) pap., 60 c.

In a beautiful villa of Florence a young French widow spends a season surrounded by four or five lovers, whose characters are dissected with the old skill of Bourget, who is an expert in psychology. The young widow encourages and discourages them all, and her final choice is a surprise almost to herself. Maurice Olivier is her young cousin, which accounts for the sub-title of the romance.

Bouvé, E: T. Centuries apart. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1894. c. 8+347 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A novel idea is worked out in this romance by which the laws, manners, customs, and dress of England at the period of the reign of Henry VII., and of America during the Civil War, are contrasted. An American war-ship, by a train of remarkable events, finds itself in an open Antarctic polar sea, and there meets a war-ship of the sixteenth century; they exchange visits, and the wonderful story of "South England," a hitherto unknown country in latitudes far south, inhabited by English people who still retained the manners and customs of the period when they emigrated is told. The people of the nineteenth and sixteenth centuries are strongly contrasted.

Bouvet, Marguerite. My lady: a story of long ago; il. by Helen Maitland Armstrong. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1894. c. 18–284 p. S. cl., $1.25.

The heart-history of a young girl, related by her old nurse. "My Lady's" girlhood is passed, and her wooing takes place in the old family château in Provence. The story is set in the days of the French Empire, but the historical interest is slight, and it is mainly a love-tale, pure and simple.

Bowes, Rob., comp. A catalogue of books printed at, or relating to, the university, town, and county of Cambridge, from 1521 to 1893; with bibliographical and biographical notes. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 32+516 p. il. O. cl., $3.

A catalogue of over 3500 books, in the possession of Macmillan and Bowes, of Cambridge, England. It is arranged chronologically, and largely annotated throughout. The books printed up to 1700 are described with unusual fulness, by giving the title unabbreviated, by an exact collation with the sizes according to form and not to measurement, and by noting any apparent imperfections, even to the blank leaves at the beginning and end—so as to make the work bibliographically useful. Although the compiler states that the publication "is only a bookseller's catalogue, not a bibliography," it will generally be conceded to be a very valuable bibliography in the absence of anything more complete on the subject. An interesting collection of ornaments (head and tail pieces, etc.), alluded to in the text, precedes the catalogue.

Boynton, G: M., D.D. The pilgrim pastor's manual: a handbook of forms. Bost., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., 1894. 235 p. 16°, flex. leath., $1.

This manual is intended for aid to pastors in the various services they are called upon to conduct outside of the pulpit. It contains a service for laying a corner-stone, for dedicating a church building; forms for household baptism, for the administration of the Lord's Supper, and for Christian marriage. It gives an unusually large selection of scripture to be used in connection with these services and with the offerings, for the sick-room and for funerals. All these selections are from the Revised Version. It is an entirely new work, replacing a similar one published by the society in 1871.

Brace, C: Loring. The life of Charles Loring Brace chiefly told in his own letters; ed. by his daughter, [Emma Brace.] N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 11+503 p. pors. O. cl., $2.50.

The story of Mr. Brace's life may almost be said to be the history of philanthropic effort in the United States. Thirty-five years ago he first turned his attention to the youthful criminals and outcasts of the city of New York—the result being the establishment of the grand and useful organization of the Children's Aid Society, which now comprises industrial schools, night schools, lodging-houses like the News-Boy's Lodgings and the Girls' Lodging-House—farm school for boys, summer and health homes, dressmaking and typewriting schools, a printing shop, etc. Through these, thousands of waifs and strays have been rescued, taught to earn a living, and placed in comfortable homes. The organization has furnished to many cities in this country and Europe an inspiration and a model. He was the author of "Gesta Christi," "The unknown God," "The dangerous classes of New York," etc. His daughter tells his life from his earliest years, through his correspondence, which is held together by her commeuts and exposition.

Bradford, Gamaliel. Congress and the cabinet-II. Phil., Amer. Acad. of Political and Social Science, [1894.] 1+68–88 p. O. (Publications of the society, no. 106.) pap., 25 c.

In 1892 Mr. Bradford published a paper called "Congress and the cabinet," which discussed the advisability of giving cabinet officers seats in Congress. Dr. Freeman Snow made an answer to this article in another called "Cabinet government in the United States," in which he stated that such government would not only be unconstitutional, but highly undesirable. In the present paper Mr. Bradford considers the subject further, and replies to Dr. Snow.

Bradley, Mrs. M. E. Martha's mistakes. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, [1894.] c. 5+348 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

Martha is a natural little girl, who is discontented with her simple every-day life in a New York flat. She envies the good times of a girl neighbor, even though those good times are purchased by extravagance and general shiftlessness; but her chief temptation comes when she finds a pocket-book, spends some of the money contained, and returns the purse anonymously to its owner. This is the most serious of her mistakes, and is indirectly the means of bringing her contentment and peace of mind. A long and happy country summer is pleasantly described.

Brassington, W. Salt, ed. A history of the art of bookbinding; with some account of the books of the ancients. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., [1894.] 14+277 p. il. Q. leath., $6.

An exhaustive and scholarly work based on John Hannett's "An inquiry into the nature and form of the Books of the Ancients." The work, however, is practically a new one and is a review of the subject from the prehistoric to the present time. The author treats, in the fullest manner possible, the progress and development of the art of bookbinding and decorating in Europe and Great Britain, and gives transcripts of a number of scarce documents relating more or less directly to the subject. Has a very full and admirably made index.

Bray, Claude. Ivanda; or, the pilgrim's quest: a tale. N. Y., F: Warne & Co., 1894. 4+355 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

Through an odd series of accidents a young Englishman in India becomes the custodian of a tiny golden vessel, the sacred emblem of the headship of a religious order in Tibet; in receiving it he had made a solemn promise to restore it, at all hazards, to the sect to which it belonged. Unfortunately he does not know the name of the sect that he has been directed to seek in "the unknown land that lies beyond the eternal snows." With a companion he starts on his journey of discovery, and stumbles upon the sect he is seeking in the heart of Tibet. The descriptions of the monastery, where its followers abide, and its surroundings, are rich in the marvellous. The hero's adventures are on the same order, a dazzlingly beautiful young woman figuring in them.

Bray, Claude. Sir Joseph's heir. N. Y., F: Warne & Co., [1894.] 3+181 p. S. (The Tavistock lib., no. 7.) pap., 50 c.

"Sir Joseph's heir" finds his legacy hampered with the clause that he must be married. How he goes about it to accomplish this while leaving himself heart-whole and quite unfettered is the substance of a bright, if sometimes unnatural story.

Brearley, W. H., (pseud.) Wanted a copyist. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1894.] c. 3+153 p. nar. D. (The unknown lib., no. 33.) cl., 50 c.

The scene opens in the office of the Evening Gleaner; Mr. Williamson, the business manager, while reflecting on a sermon heard the previous Sunday, makes a resolution to act on its precepts. An opportunity soon presents itself, as in answer to his advertisement, "Wanted a copyist," he is called upon to interview an aspirant for the position; in the dialogue with this young lady, and a series of other dialogues with people of varied social positions is seen the relation of a journalist to the public, besides the humorous scenes which result from these interviews. Morals that are apropos of the occasions follow each chapter.

Briggs, C: A:. D.D. The Messiah of the gospels. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 13+337 p. O. cl., $2.

In the autumn of 1886 "Messianic prophecy" was published as the first of a series of volumes upon the Messianic ideal. (See notice, "Annual Catalogue," 1886. Dr Briggs' share in the Revision Movement of the Presbyterian Church has delayed the second volume of the series which is now offered and treats of the Messianic ideas of pre-Christian Judaism and of the Messiah of the Gospels. Dr. Briggs thinks the Christian Church has looked too much upon a cross with a dead Saviour upon it. He wishes the cross to be held more as a symbol of the resurrection as well as the death, and aims to inspire all Christians with a living faith that will make them do away with all that is sad, gloomy, and sour in religion and cling to its brightness and hope.

Endeavor is made in the present work, first [illegible] due prominence to the principles of the subject, and, secondly, to avoid the use of [illegible], as far as [illegible] in the solution of problems and worked examples, and instead to deduce the results by direct application of these principles. It is believed by the authors that many of the methods contained are new. Considerable attention is given to average and relative velocity, and due prominence is likewise given to the metric system of units. Throughout the text worked examples are freely inserted.

The ground covered includes those portions of statics which are generally read in an elementary course, and for which little or no knowledge of trigonometry is required; therefore it is claimed that endeavor has been made to remove, as far as possible, all difficulties experienced by beginners when reading statics for the first time. For this reason, hints and explanations have been freely given wherever it seems desirable, and the important propositions have been profusely illustrated by worked-out examples. These examples are arranged in a way that will facilitate the students working out similar problems.

A reticent, noble nature is illustrated through these five "links in a chain." The "links" might stand for five different stories, though together they make a perfect history of a man's disinterested love for a selfish, heartless woman. Two of the chapters, "A sidelight" and "His I. O. U." appeared in the Century. By the author of "Perchance to dream."

Bristol, Frank M., D.D. Providential epochs. Cin., Cranston & Curts, 1894. c. 269 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

The material of this book first took form in a series of lectures on providential epochs, intended for young people, who were presumably taking up certain courses of reading along historical lines. The epochs are the Renaissance, the Reformation, the discovery of America, and the settlement of our country. The author aims to demonstrate the history-shaping activity of Divine Providence.

Brooks, Byron A. Earth revisited. Bost., Arena Pub. Co., 1893 [1894.] c. 3–318 p. D. cl., $1.25; pap., 50 c.

The story of a man who, long after death, and after a varied experience in other spheres, revisits the earth in 1992, returning to his native city of Brooklyn. The changes which he witnesses that have been wrought in the way of moral, material, and spiritual progress in the course of one hundred years, are minutely described. Churches and creeds have disappeared, and the "reign of righteousness is in full bloom and life." Chiefly aims to delineate the effects of real religion as contrasted with ecclesiasticism.

Brooks, Elbridge S. The century book for young Americans: showing how a party of boys and girls who knew how to use their eyes and ears found out all about the government of the United States. N. Y., The Century Co., [1894.] c. 4+249 p. il. O. cl., $1.50.

Tells in an attractive story just what every American boy and girl ought to know about the government, the functions of the President, the Senate, and the Supreme Court, the duties of the different Cabinet officers, and the work of the various departments—how state, municipal, and town governments are carried on, and what are the duties and responsibilities of an American citizen. The characters are a party of bright boys and girls who visit the city of Washington, under the charge of a genial and well-informed uncle. The book is issued under the auspices and seal of the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, and its introduction is written by General Horace Porter, president-general of that society.

Sarah Dakota—named after her native state—is a motherless hoyden of fourteen, the only child of a careless, good-natured, "cattle-king," Colonel Vandercar. The introduction of a young stepmother into the ranch home results in Sarah's departure for the east, to be educated and trained into propriety by her mother's maiden sisters in the old homestead in the Mokawk Valley. Her unconventionalities, shocking the proprieties of Van Dorn manor, her school life and religious development, the influence of her honest, unselfish nature on her silly, selfish cousin Julie, and her final recognition of her stepmother's love, make the story.

among the Indians, and in India, are embraced in six chapters, called "The heroism of patience," "The pioneer in Japan," "The graves by the Victoria Nyanza," "A pioneer in the far west," "The pilgrim missionary of the Punjab," and "The men who died at Lokoja."

Buckley, Ja. M., D.D. Travels in three continents: Europe, Asia, Africa. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1895 [1894.] c. 600 p. il. O. cl., $3.50.

The author is the distinguished editor of The Christian Advocate. The travels described occupied six months, from November, 1888, to May, 1889. Dr. Buckley sailed from New York to England, travelled the beaten track until reaching Spain, then wandered along the African coast, back again along the European coast of the Mediterranean, again entering Africa by way of Egypt. He took with him erudition and a great love of nature and saw many things often passed by those not fitted to see clearly and explain with literary skill. The Asiatic travels are specially full of excellent description.

In the first and second editions the subject was connected with literature quoted from many authors. In this edition the scope of the work has been much increased by connecting the subject with sculpture and painting. Many fine illustrations and descriptions of the works of celebrated artists are given, as well as their present location specified. Nearly 100 pages have been added and the index has been much enlarged and much better planned. Published first in 855 by T: Bulfinch, and in 1881 by S. W. Tilton.

In the preparation of this book the author has had in mind the requirements of a class of students who are pursuing a course of laboratory work in invertebrate zoölogy. An effort has been made to direct the work, without, at the same time, actually telling the student all that there is to be learned from the specimen. In the appendix a few words are given regarding laboratory methods, etc.

While the sketch is descriptive largely of Mr. Conwell's work in connection with the Temple, it touches upon his entire life as soldier, orator, newspaper correspondent, lawyer, traveller, lecturer, educator and clergyman, which has made his career one of unusual activity and usefulness. The story of this great institutional church (the largest in the country), with its related work, and of its minister, is graphically told by Mr. Burdette in his own vivid style.

Burnett, Mrs. Frances Hodgson. Piccino, and other child stories; il. by Reginald B. Birch. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. 6 +203 p. O. cl., $1.50.

Burnham, Mrs. Clara Louise. Sweet Clover: a romance of the White City. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. 3+411 p. D. cl., $1.25.

"Sweet Clover" is a young girl who marries a rich widower, whom she respects and likes but does not love, to rescue her family from poverty. The scene is laid in Hyde Park, near Chicago, and the story takes in the time of the Columbian Exposition, of which a pretty full description is given. Clover's husband and several of her family die suddenly, and she is a young and attractive widow when she visits the Exposition. She and her sister are then the heroines of fresh love-stories.

Burnham. Hampden. Adeline Gray: a tale. N. Y., Wynkoop & Hallenbeck, prs., [trade supplied by the news companies, 1894.] c. 155 p. D. pap., 25 c.

The writer is a Canadian of Peterborough, Ontario. Adeline's father dies, and under the severe strain put upon the family by reverses in fortune and also owing to disappointment in love, the young girl fails in health. Her lover goes to Africa to fight for England's colonies. He meets endless adventures and finally returns to clear up misunderstandings and marry a blind girl.

Burr, F: M. Life and works of Alexander Anderson, M.D., the first American wood-engraver; il. with three portraits of Dr. Anderson, and over thirty engravings by himself. N. Y., Burr Bros., [C: T. Dillingham,] 1893 [1894.] c. '93. 3–210 p. O. hf. rus., $4. [Edition limited to 725 copies.]

Dr. Anderson was born in New York, of Scotch parentage, April 21, 1775, and died in Jersey City in 1870. He began his art labors at the early age of twelve, and worked with untiring industry until his ninety-third year. Mr. Burr, in writing this sketch, had the unrestricted use of Dr. Anderson's diary, now preserved in manuscript in the Phœnix Collection of Columbia Library. Extracts are given relative to the visitation of yellow fever in New York in 1795, with other interesting details. The illustrations, nearly forty in number, have been selected as showing his progress in the art from his earliest wood-cuts for "The looking-glass of the mind," to his own portrait, engraved in his best style in his eighty-first year.

Although many histories have been written of the Baptists, the society thinks there is room for still another work—at once more extensive and more minute, in so far as our own country is concerned. This is the first volume of a series in which the volumes will be devoted to special sections of the country. While it contains much that is old, it also embraces a great deal that is new. It goes back to the earliest days of the colonies and is brought up to the present time.

Burrell, Arthur. The man with seven hearts, and other stories. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1893 [1894.] 3+188 p. S. cl., $1.

These "puzzle-tales" are read in midwinter to the "critic" and his wife, "the philosopher," and an old German gentleman called the "casual," who is only occasionally present. They are often in the form of allegories and often sad and morbid. The "philosopher" frequently gives an appropriate song at the end of the story.

Butt, Beatrice May. Keith Deramore. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1892 [1894.] 4+379 p. 12°, (Longmans' paper lib., no. 3.) pap., 50 c.

Keith Deramore was a proud, undemonstrative, rather good-looking young fellow, with a weakness for flirting, yet not bad withal. He was an officer in the British army, and had just returned from India when the story opens. His character is developed through several circumstances—chiefly a hopeless love for a good woman and his mother's unselfish devotion—his virtues and best traits coming to the surface.

Butterworth, Hezekiah. The great composers. New rev. and enl. ed. Bost., Lothrop Publishing Co., 1894. c. '84, '94. 7+195 p. il. D. (Great composers' ser.) cl., $1.

An attractively bound edition of a book quite popular ten years ago. See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., June 7, 1884, [645.]

Butterworth, Hezekiah. The parson's miracle and My grandmother's Christmas candle: Christmas in America. Bost., Estes & Lauriat, [1894.] c. 3–32 p. il. D. (Christmas in many lands ser.) hf. cl., 50 c.

Two stories of long ago in New England. The first is an amusing narrative of the attempt of tender-hearted Parson Pool to kill a pullet for the Christmas dinner. The second relates to an old forgotten New England custom of the burning of the Christmas candle. The illustrations are printed in color.

Butterworth, Hezekiah. The patriot schoolmaster; or, the adventures of the two Boston cannon, the "Adams" and "Hancock": a tale of the Minute-men and the Sons of Liberty; il. by H. Winthrop Peirce. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 9+233 p. O. cl., $1.50.

The story relates to Sam Adams, the leader of the Boston town-meeting, who was called in his day, "the father of America," one of the most lovable men in our history. It follows the events associated with the two guns, the "Adams" and "Hancock," which were hidden from the British forces by a patriot schoolmaster and his equally patriotic school-boys, in several mysterious ways, until they could be taken into the American lines. The story opens September 27, 1768, and ends with the sailing away of the British fleet in March of 1776.

Butterworth, Hezekiah. Zigzag journeys in the White City: with visits to the neighboring metropolis. Bost., Estes & Lauriat, 1894. c. 4–320 p. il. O. (The zigzag ser.) cl., $2.

The sixteenth volume of the Zigzag series. It is a very good history of the Columbian Exposition, from its inception to its ending, with its most conspicuous features fully described. Manton Marlowe, who was superintendent of the public schools, and president of the Village Improvement and Folk-Lore Society of his native town, is sent by the people to the Fair with directions to report to them the funniest, most useful, and the grandest thing to be seen there. His son and father accompany him. Incidentally many New England folk-lore stories are told, and a history given of the white bordered flag. Bound in red and white cloth.

C., A. E. Hymns and their stories; with a preface, by Edgar C. S. Gibson. N. Y., E. and J. B. Young & Co., 1894. 201 p. 16°, cl., 80 c.

Cable, G: W. John March, southerner. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 8+513 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The industrial resurrection of a sleepy little southern town, by means of a modern "boom," affords Mr. Cable an opportunity for presenting a graphic and careful picture of the complex phases of southern life under post-bellum conditions. John March's childhood during the last years of "the wah," his school days at Rosemont College, in Suez, his native town, and the part he plays in the commercial "boom," which opens to Suez an entirely new era, make the chief elements of the story, which has, of course, its thread of romance. The story is full of war reminiscences, of phases of the ever present race problem, it is rich in local color and of true southern "atmosphere," and is told with a wealth of detail and a multiplicity of characters.

Caine, Hall. The deemster: a romance. Chic., E. A. Weeks & Co., [1894.] 3-377 p. D. (Enterprise ser., no. 5.) pap., 50 c.

Caine, Hall. The Manxman: a novel. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 3+529 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The Isle of Man is the scene of the story, which like "The deemster," is a faithful and minute study of Manx life, customs, and superstitions. A curious Manx custom, that of leaving an engaged girl in the care of another, who shall not only continually sing the praises of the absent love, but also perform many of his duties—that is, act the lover by proxy—is the starting-point of the plot. The zeal of the "proxy" proves both his own and the girl's undoing, and many complications and tragical scenes ensue. Many typical character studies are introduced, and charming pictures of the Manx harvest home and the wedding ceremonials, etc.

An Australian millionaire leaves his fortune to a nephew and niece on condition that they marry each other within three months after his death, and that the nephew assumes the family name of Ochiltree. While the pair are firm friends, they are not "in love," and rebel bitterly against the conditions—but finally go through "a marriage ceremony" in order to save the property. A pretty comedy ensues, in which Mr. and Mrs. Ochiltree are depicted as changing from indifference to love. The scene opens in England and shifts to Australia.

The family of whom the story is told seemed to have been unfairly condemned by their neighbors. The father, it is true, was a worthless spendthrift, and the mother, originally a ballet-dancer, had eloped with her coachman when her youngest daughter was a year old, but the three girls of the family had many noble and admirable qualities, which are brought out in their various careers. The youngest girl, a great beauty, is the heroine, who before she is safely married goes through some painful experiences. Scenes and characters are English.

The story turns upon cousins' extreme likeness to each other; the one, Rupert Carroll, is attacked and beaten by thieves under the supposition that he is his cousin Lord Netheville, who was to have been on the same train with him, having in his possession valuable jewels he was carrying to his betrothed. Carroll's skull is injured, and after many days of unconsciousness recovers with an impaired memory—forgetting completely a lovely girl he had just proposed to. Her unhappiness and the subsequent events in Carroll's life before his memory returns are the leading themes of the novel.

The scene opens on the deck of The Bounding Wave, a clipper ship en voyage from Hong Kong to Boston. One of her passengers, who feels that he cannot reach port alive, confides to another passenger his history, and entrusts the stranger with some tokens of remembrance for his relatives. Supposing the former to be dead, Raymond betrays his trust, and personates Manley Clavering. On this incident is founded a story of intricate plot and romantic conclusion.

A rector in one of the beautiful rural parishes of England dies, and his children, reared in luxury and in a position of influence, are obliged to accept a home with their father's brother, a small shopkeeper in another rural district. The girl of twenty, full of class prejudice and of a dreamy, artististic nature, suffers keenly. The boy of thirteen, blessed with a keen sense of humor, immediately becomes a favorite. The girl is a violiuist, and by this talent finally enters a social position, where she finds happiness and learns patience and humility.

"It shows how the world was made in a style that all can comprehend. In doing this, it severely tests the Bible account of creation at every point in a new way. It then shows how this age will end—at least, how it is predicted to end—and tests these predictions with the same remorseless logic. Then it groups together a mass of startling scientific facts concerning the possibilities and probabilities of a tremendous crisis coming upon the earth."—Preface. Formerly published as a subscription-book.

Divided into two parts, the first gives a brief history of spiritualism in all ages, with an explanation of its most important public "tests," including the latest and most extraordinary phenomena. The second part —"The original sin"—"examines the available statements and facts concerning the real nature of the sin committed by Eve, and of the sin of the wicked angels with the daughters of the antediluvians." This sin the author seeks to prove was one of sex. Chapter on cross and phallic worships. Has heretofore been sold only by subscription.

Carus, Paul. Fundamental problems, the method of philosophy as a systematic arrangement of knowledge, [essays.] 2d ed. enl. and rev. Chic., The Open Court Pub. Co., 1894. 9+373 p. D. (The religion of science lib., v. 2, no. 2.) cl., $1.50; pap., 50 c.

The contents are chiefly derived from the old Buddhist canon. Many passages are copied literally from the translations of the original texts. For those who want to trace the Buddhism of this book to its fountain-head a table of reference has been added, which indicates the main sources of various chapters and points out the parallelisms with western thought, especially in the Christian Gospels. The book aims to impress readers with the poetic grandeur of Buddha's personality and to set them thinking on the religious problems of to-day. A comparison of the agreements and differences between the two greatest religions of the world is made in a fair philosophic spirit.

Carus, Paul. The nature of the state. Chic., The Open Court Pub. Co., 1894. c. 9+56 p. D. (The religion of science lib., v. 2, half no. 1.) pap., 15 c.

This essay first appeared in several instalments as editorial articles in The Open Court. Contains an explanation of the nature of the state and the nature of treason, intended to spread broadcast a sound knowledge of the state, its main functions and purpose, especially among those who find it advisable to struggle and strike for an improvement of their condition. This legitimate aspiration, and treason to law and order are carefully weighed and made clear to all state citizens.

Carwardine, Rev. W: H. The Pullman strike. Chic., C: H. Kerr & Co., 1894. c. 135 p. por. D. (Unity lib., no. 36.) pap., 50 c.

An impartial history of the late strike, from its beginning in Pullman, Ill. The author lived in Pullman for two years as pastor of the First M. E. Church, and writes as one thoroughly acquainted with both sides of the story. While giving due credit to Mr. Pullman for the industry and many energetic qualities which have made him a successful business man, he plainly states the side of his employees, showing by indisputable facts that they certainly had a grievance to arbitrate.

Castleman, Virginia Carter. A child of the Covenant. Milwaukee, Wis., The Young Churchman Co., 1894. c. 2–220 p. il. S. cl., net, $1.

In a little home in the northern suburbs of New York City, a dying mother has her daughter made "a child of the Covenant" by baptism. The little girl, left wholly orphaned at four years of age, lives in different homes until she is twenty-four and then marries in a way that is a surprise to the reader. Charities and work of education among the poor figure largely in the story.

Castlemon, Harry, [pseud. for C: A. Fosdick.] Oscar in Africa. Phil., Porter & Coates, [1894.] c. '92, '94. 4+347 p. il. D. (Hunter ser., no. 3.) cl., $1.25.

Completes the Hunter Series. Oscar is a resolute young American, who is sent to the wilds of Africa to procure specimens of animals for a university museum. He returns successful after numerous adventures in making up his outfit and in his encounters in the field.

Castlemon, Harry, [pseud. for C: A. Fosdick.] Sailor Jack, the trader; il. by G: C. White. Phil., Porter & Coates, [1893.] c. 3+467 p. il. D. (Castlemon's war ser.) cl., $1.25.

This volume ends the series. Tom Randolph figures largely in it, and has a very disagreeable experience as a conscript, and tries to get his revenge by aiding in burning what he thinks is another man's cotton, but which turns out to be his father's property. "Sailor Jack," is Jack Marcy, the young Union sailor, whose career was begun in previous volumes. He has a wonderful success as a blockade-runner and some thrilling adventures. The story ends with the fall of Atlanta and Sherman's march to the sea.

Cathcart, W:, D.D. The ancient British and Irish churches; including the life and labors of St. Patrick. Phil., American Baptist Pub. Soc., 1894. c. 347 p. maps, il. O. cl., $1.50.

Written to controvert the claims of the Roman hierarchy respecting the ancient British and Irish churches. Points out that early commentaries and other writings show a remarkable agreement with the creeds and practices of evangelical Christians of to-day, especially with those of the Baptists. Looks upon St. Patrick as a mighty evangelical preacher, afterwards claimed by Rome, because he was so beloved by the Irish heart which she wished to fasten to herself.

Century cyclopædia of names: a pronouncing and etymological dictionary of names in geography, biography, mythology, history, ethnology, art, archæology, fiction, etc.; ed. by B: E. Smith. N. Y., The Century

Co., [1894.] c. 6+1085 p. F. subs., cl., $10; hf. Am., $12.50; hf. rus., $13; shp., $15.

This "Cyclopædia of names" is an outgrowth of "The Century dictionary." It was part of the plan of that work to include in its final volume a somewhat fuller appendix of names of persons and places than had before been given in general dictionaries; but as the size of the book increased, it became obvious that this could not be done in the available space, and it was decided to place the appendix in a separate volume. The result, with many modifications of the original scheme, is the present work. It is entirely independent in subject and use, yet serves as a supplement to the dictionary by extending the name-list into regions which the dictionary could not occupy, and by enlarging its encyclopedic field. The entries comprise not only names in biography and geography, but also names of races and tribes, mythological and legendary persons and places, characters and objects in fiction, stars and constellations, notable buildings and monuments, works of art, institutions, historical events, sects, parties, books, plays, operas, celebrated war-ships, yachts, horses, etc. The only condition of insertion has been that the name should be one about which information would be likely to be sought. While primarily a dictionary, the work is secondarily an encyclopædia in its somewhat fuller treatment of several thousands of the more important articles. Uniform in size and binding with the "Century dictionary."

Cesaresco, Evelyn Martinengo (Countess). The liberation of Italy, 1815–1870. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. 10+415 p. por. O. (Event of our own time series.) cl., $1.75.

A retrospect, in which are traced the principal factors that worked toward Italian unity. "Italy from the Battle of Lodi to the Congress of Vienna" is the subject of the first chapter. After is related the history of the Carbonari and the Society of Young Italy, Mazzini's propaganda, the accession of Charles Albert, and events leading to the election of Pius IX.; the insurrection in Sicily and the expelling of the Austrians from Milan and Venice; the arrival of Garibaldi and abdication of Charles Albert; the history of the House of Savoy; "The war for Lombardy," "What unity cost," "The march of the thousand," "The meeting of the waters," "Beginnings of the Italian Kingdom," "Rome or death," "The war for Venice," "The last crusade," and "Rome the capital," are the topics of the concluding chapters. Contains portraits of Garibaldi, Mazzini, Victor Emmanuel, and Cavour.

Chadwick, J: White. Old and new Unitarian belief. Bost., G: H. Ellis, 1894. c. 9+245 p. por. D. cl., $1.50.

Contents: Historical introduction; The doctrine of man; Concerning God; The Bible; Christianity; Concerning Jesus; The future life; The great salvation; Loss and gain. With the exception of the first and last chapters, the contents of this book were given as a series of monthly lecture sermons during 1893 and '94, to Mr. Chadwick's Brooklyn congregation. The first chapter was originally prepared as a lecture in a course on the different churches of Christendom. The concluding chapter was read at Meadville, Pa., June 12, 1894, in connection with the fiftieth anniversary of the Meadville Theological School.

Chamberlain, H. R. 6000 tons of gold. Meadville, Pa., Flood & Vincent, [The Chautauqua Century Press,] 1894. c. 4–349 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The discovery of an immense treasure of gold in Patagonia, which the aged head of a native tribe finds, works so much evil that he gladly gives it away for a small consideration to a Scotchman and an American, that a train of incidents has let to South America, is the basis of the story. The responsibilities and troubles of an excess of money to individuals and countries is illustrated in the story. The Scotchman loses his life in carrying the gold away, and the American becomes an unhappy, morose man, after he has possessed it a short time. His attempts to invest it dangerously disturbs the finances of the country, and makes a war imminent in Europe. A good illustration of the currency question. The author is the London correspondent of The Sun, New York. The story ran as a serial in the Chautauquan.

Chambers' (W. & R.) concise gazetteer of the world: topographical, statistical, historical. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1895 [1894.] 768 p. O. hf. leath., $2.50.

A gazetteer of the world, comprehensive, yet handy, containing the latest and most reliable information about nameworthy places at home and abroad; the last census of civilized countries and the most authentic official figures have been taken advantage of in every available case. The etymology of the names, where it is significant and interesting, has not been neglected; and an attempt has been made to do justice, however briefly, to history and literary associations. References to standard works have been added to the articles on the more important and interesting countries, towns, and even villages. The useful volume is largely based on the geographical articles of Chambers' Encyclopædia, but many of the articles are new, and there are numerous additions to the list.

The setting of this story is true to fact; it is the quaint and charming art village at Shinnecock, Long Island, where Mr. William M. Chase, the artist, is the presiding spirit and critic, and where many art students pass their summer vacation sketching outdoors and working in classes. "Witch Winnie," "Millie," and the other girl friends who, when last heard from, were studying art in Paris, are gathered here. One of the characters is a young coachman, who is a genius, and there is a pretty romance.

Chaperoned: a brief page from a summer romance. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1894.] c. 2+173 p. nar. D. (The unknown lib., no. 32.) cl., 50 c.

The story is told through letters, all the characters in the book engaging in the correspondence. The principal character is Rita Weldon, a beautiful young girl who goes for a matrimonial campaign to a fashionable watering-place, chaperoned by her Aunt Hamilton, while her mother economizes in an out-of-the-way farm-house. The aunt becomes so deeply involved in her own matrimonial designs that she neglects her niece, who loses her heart to the wrong man, a rising young doctor. Her determination to throw him over for a millionaire, and the final outcome of the whole affair is quite cleverly related.

Chauncey, Shelton, [pseud. for Rev. C. W. de L. Nichols.] The Greek Madonna. N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1894. c. '93. 4–315 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The scene is laid in New York City. The hero, whose name is "Shelton Chauncey," is first a student of Trinity Theological Seminary, and afterwards a chaplain in one of the hospitals on the city's islands. The story is a rambling narrative of his affection for two women, his courtship taking place mostly on the elevated roads. His special religious ideas, which seem to run to high churchism, he symbolizes under the figure of the Greek Madonna. Names of fashionable New Yorkers are freely mentioned, and incidents of local history drawn in regardless of chronology. The author is a clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church of New York.

Chavette, Eugene. Mystery of Hotel Brichet: a novel; from the French; il. by Ja. Fagan. N. Y., Rob. Bonner's Sons, [1894.] c. 358 p. D. (Ledger lib., no. 116.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Paris of the last century is the scene. The great robber Cartouche on his trial betrays his associates, and it is through one implicated by his testimony that the author introduces the history of the house of Brichet. Truth is said to be stranger than fiction, but the story of the galley-slave who escapes from Toulon to figure as the possessor of millions in the capital of France will compare favorably with anything that ever happened in the world of reality.

Cheever, Mrs. Harriet A. Jacky Lee, his lessons out of school. Bost., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., [1894.] c. 286 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

Jacky Lee was a small boy who learned a good many lessons in school, but it is those which he learned out of school which are here described. They were of all sorts, but all very valuable to him. The readers of the book will be interested in Jacky and his four companions, as well as in good Silas Wishwell, the ideal "hired man," while the lessons are of a sort which other boys need to learn.

Cheever, Mrs. Harriet A. St. Rockwells' little brother. Bost., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., [1894.] c. 395 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

St. Rockwells was a prosperous New York business man, living in luxurious bachelor apartments; "his little brother" was a street arab, with whom he was accidentally thrown in contact and for whom he feels his responsibility. His attempts to influence the lad, and open for him a way to a better life, is the story.

Cheiro, (pseud.) Cheiro's language of the hand: a complete practical work on the sciences of cheirognomy and cheiromancy, containing the system, rules, and experience of Cheiro the palmist; il. by Theo. Doré; reproductions of famous hands taken from life. N. Y., published by the author, Cheiro, 432 5th Ave., [for sale at Brentano's,] 1894. c. 14+194 p. por. O. el., $2.

The anonymous author of this work claims to be both a seer and a palmist: he reads the character from the hand, and looks into the future at the same time, for those who make him personal visits; in the present work he writes of palmistry as a science, and offers many facts, both medical and scientific, to demonstrate that "as the hands are the servants of the system, so also all that affects the system affects them." The book is interestingly illustrated with pictures of typical hands, abnormal hands, and hands of famous people.

Cheney, W. T. An apocalypse of life. Bost., Arena Pub. Co., 1893 [1894.] c. '93. 6+312 p. D. pap., 50 c.; cl., $1.25.

An allegory demonstrating the soul's immortality. The hero, after death has closed his eyes on earth, awakens in spirit in the "Home of Psyche, the abode of perfected life;" here he is called "Assurance," and is comforted and instructed by his soul's affinity, "Clareese of the Pleiades," their long conversations in which "Meoön of Orion," "Ristus of Sirius," "Ariel," "Christ," and "Benedictus" take part, depict the powers and activities of the soul in its pure psychic state, show the purpose of man's dual nature, and the divine necessity of earthly suffering, trials, and death. Celestial voyages to Sirius, Orion, the Pleiades, and the sad sphere of "Plutone," are described.

Cherbuliez, Victor. A Phidian horse: art and archæology on the Acropolis; from the French by Elizabeth Hill Bissell Roberts. Phil., [for sale by J: Wanamaker.] 1893 [1894.] 331 p. il. sq. S. el., $1.

By a thread of story the characters are transported to Athens; the book is an artistic fantasy upon Greek art and Greek thought, for which the frieze upon the Parthenon furnishes the keynote. It was first published in 1860, and was the foundation-stone of Cherbuliez's reputation as a novelist, who was always remarkable for accurate scholarship and vivid imagination.

Chester, A. S. M. Up the chimney to Ninny Land: a story for children. N. Y., T: Nelson & Sons, 1894. 5–86 p. il. sq. O. el., $1.

Chester, Evelyn. Miss Derrick: a Boston society girl's diary. N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1894. c. 297 p. D. pap., 50 c.

The author professes to give a true picture of Boston fashionable society, through the confessions of a girl's diary. The so-called "follies" described by the heroine consist of flirtations with married and unmarried men verging upon indecency, skirt-dancing, cigarette-smoking, and champagne-drinking carried to excess by women as well as men. Miss Derrick ends her career by eloping with a married man, after having had a succession of lovers and experiences.

Cheyney, E: P. The mediæval manor; translation of a typical extent. Phil., American Acad. of Political and Social Science, [1894.] 75–91 p. O. (Publications of the society, no. 101.) pap., 15 c.

An "extent" is a description and estimate of the area and value of the manor, including a list of the tenants, with their holdings, rents, and services, compiled on the testimony of a sworn jury of inhabitants of the manor. It gives an insight into the life and organization of the mediæval manor, the normal, habitual life of the vast proportion of Englishmen during the Middle Ages, as indeed of other nations also in the same period.

It is fitting that the essays on woman's coiffure, contributed by the lamented author to Harper's Bazar, should be put into permanent shape. Descriptions are given of the coiffures, ancient and modern, of Egypt, Asia, Athens, Rome, Florence, Venice, and Spain. The Middle Ages and romantic period are specially described, and a chapter is furnished on jewelry and ornaments. The illustrations are important additions to the instructive text.

Church, S: Harden. Oliver Cromwell: a history; comprising a narrative of his life, with extracts from his letters and speeches, and an account of the political, religious, and military affairs of England during his time. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 15+524 p. por. O. cl., $3.

For nearly six years the writer devoted the whole of his leisure to the preparation of this work. He aimed to produce a history—from a vast collection of authorities—half-way between the extremes of Hume and Carlyle. Also to give more fully the early political events that made possible Cromwell's extraordinary career than most historians have done. "With this plan of work in mind I have written my book," he says, "not as a biographical sketch, for of such there are many already, but as a narrative or study which aims to present, with sufficient detail, the formation of the Commonwealth and its strange paradox of the permanent establishment of civil and religious liberty through a dictator who respected no law in working out England's salvation but the law of necessity."

This story was written in 1885, and published in France under the title of "Jean Mornas." It has been translated into English and published under the name of "Hypnotism." See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., Nov. 5, '92, [1884.] The character of the hero is taken from life in careful observations of the experiments made by the illustrious Charcot and his associates in the Salpêtrière. It is offered as excellent material for rapid reading.

Clark, A. Arnold. Beneath the dome: a novel. Chic., The Schulte Pub. Co., 1894. c. 361 p. por. O. cl., $1.25.

A story of social and political life, with the scene laid in Detroit; the corruption in the legislature of Michigan is strongly dwelt upon, and the unfairness of the Michigan state law under which men seeking work away from home may be cast into jail as vagrants is pointedly illustrated. Actual instances of corruption have been used by the author in his story. He believes that private ownership in land is at the root of all industrial troubles, and brings this idea out in his work. Mr. Clark was born in Michigan; this was his first novel; he died before it was published. It is said to embody many of the events of his own short but notable life.

Clifford, Mrs. W: K. A flash of summer: a novel. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 2+361 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A novel by the author of "Aunt Anne." Its heroine is a young girl who is forced by a hard and brutal uncle to marry a man equally hard and brutal, who takes the girl in the expectation of obtaining the uncle's money. When his hopes appear doomed to disappointment he behaves so cruelly that his wife runs away from him. Under her maiden name she travels from England to Italy, falls in with some pleasant people—one of whom is an old school-mate who has always lived in India—and finds in one of the group a man who loves her and whom she loves and who is quite worthy of her love. This "flash of summer" is followed by a dark and dreary winter.

Clowes, W. Laird. The double emperor: a story of a vagabond Cunarder. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1894. 4+238 p. il. D. el., $1.25.

Carl, King of Ruhland and Lusatian Emperor, tired of the burthen of greatness, and having happily found a man almost a counterpart in appearance of himself, determines to make him share with him the duties of his position. It is fortunate he does so, for at a most unexpected moment he and his suite are kidnapped by a party of Americans who hold them for an enormous ransom. The kidnappers have chartered a Cunarder, upon which they place the emperor, and go on a cruising expedition in the Atlantic. The emperor's double saves the situation through his cleverness and fidelity, and the emperor, after exciting adventures, is restored to his empire and his betrothed.

The scene is France during the thirteenth century. The Duke of Burgundy, father of the heroine, is about to join Louis IX., who has previously gone to the Holy Land with the Crusaders, for the purpose of rescuing Palestine from the Moslems. Before starting, however, he seeks to marry Blanche to a chosen subject. On this incident is founded a story of sensational and historic interests.

The scene opens in the north of France, in the year 1792; the hero of the story had just returned from America, where he had been for five years, receiving his education; he finds his château in ruins, and his life threatened from a secret Jacobin fraternity. A young girl he loved as a boy is being forced into a marriage with a man she loathes, that her father's life may be spared. The parties all try to escape to the seashore, and thence to England, and go through an exciting series of adventures.

Cobb, T: The disappearance of Mr. Derwent: a mystery. Chic., F. Tennyson Neely, 1894. c. 263 p. D. (Neely's lib. of choice literature, no. 35.) pap., 50 c.

The disappearance of an author leads to an investigation, and causes a succession of sensational incidents. The novel has an English scene.

Cobban, J. Maclaren. The red sultan: the remarkable adventures in western Barbary of Sir Cosmo MacLaurin, Bart., of Monzie in the County of Perth. Chic. and N. Y., Rand, McNally & Co., 1894. c. 5+313 p. D. (Rialto ser., no. 64.) pap., 50 c.

A story of pure adventure; while the work shows fidelity of local coloring, the incidents are at times highly improbable and bordering on the horrible. Rider Haggard seems to have been the writer's model.

Cobban, J. Maclaren. A soldier and a gentleman. N. Y., Lovell, Coryell & Co., [1894.] c. '91. 2–211 p. D. el., $1.

The basis of the plot is the attempt to substitute one man for another in order to fulfil the conditions of a will. George Ferrers, an ex-guardsman and a bankrupt in pocket, is tempted, through his poverty, to personate another man for a few weeks, in what is represented to him to be an innocent scheme. This scheme is quite ingenious, and promises to succeed, but Ferrers falls in love with the heroine, learns the true condition of things, and revolts. Scenes and characters are English. By the author of "The horned cat."

Cobbe, Frances Power. The life of Frances Power Cobbe, by herself. Bost., Houghton Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 2 v., 6+330; 3+331–662 p. por. il. D. el., $4.

Miss Cobbe, now in her seventy-first year, tells her own story with much skill and humor. Her lifework has been of extraordinary interest as she has lived in so notable a period in the world's history and has been devoted to so many large causes; her association with famous and influential persons in all classes has been so wide and varied that her reminiscences are of unusual richness. She knew Mrs. Somerville and Fanny Kemble, Walter Savage Landor, Sir Charles Lyell, Tennyson, Browning, Arnold, John Stuart Mill, Theodore Parker, Gladstone, Lord Shaftesbury, and many other remarkable men and women. She long struggled in private and public for the suffrage for women and for the repeal of laws that were unjust to English married women, also against vivisection and other cruelties to animals. She was a journalist and a lecturer, and always a figure in the social life of the century in England.

Cobbleigh, Tom, [pseud. for Walter Raymond.] Love and quiet life: Somerset idylls. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1894. c. 264 p. D. el., $1.25.

The author of "Gentleman Upcott's daughter" has written another idyll of Somersetshire in the years immediately preceding the Oxford Tractarian movement. Love comes to Marian Burt in early girlhood, and with it disillusionment and sorrow—then a long quiet life of upwards of three score years and ten. The father, the old, retired nonconformist minister, is a fine character study. Rustic life and religious prejudices are the motives.

Cobbleigh, Tom, [pseud. for Walter Raymond] Young Sam and Sabina. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1894.] c. 2+174 p. nar. D. (The unknown lib. no. 31.) cl., 50 c.

"Young Sam" is the son of old Sam Grinter, of Church Farm; Sabina Chiselett is the daughter of the parish clerk of Middlency. Their courtship, which, of course, does not "run smooth," is the central thread of this pastoral of Somersetshire, in which rustic life and local customs are described with pleasing fulness.

Coffin, C: E. The gist of whist: being a concise guide to the modern scientific game; embracing the improved method of American leads and a complete glossary of the common and technical terms; to which is added the laws of whist as revised at the Third American Whist Congress. N. Y., J. Selwin Tait & Sons, 1894. c. '93. 12+100 p. nar. S. cl., 75 c.

The object of the book, as stated in the introductory, is "to reduce the precepts and principles of the standard game to convenient and practical form, so arranged and systematized that its theory may be easily comprehended, its rules quickly committed, and its practice readily acquired." In pursuance of this object, the author has examined all the standard authorities, and presented the gist of the whole subject in the least possible compass and in the most interesting form. It embraces the improved method of American leads and the laws of whist as revised by the recent Whist Congress at Chicago, so that the technical part of the work is in accordance with the latest authorization.

Collar, W: C., and Daniell, M. Grant. The first Latin book. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1894. c. 7+286 p. por. il. D. cl., $1.10.

This is not a revision of "The beginner's Latin book," nor is it intended to supersede that work. It has been written for the purpose of offering to schools that cannot afford the amount of time and practice required to complete "The beginner's Latin book," a work not less thorough, but easier, and demanding not more than two-thirds as much time. The reduction has been made almost wholly by shortening the exercises for translation, particularly those to be turned into Latin.

Collier, Price. Mr. Picket-Pin and his friends; il. by Walter Bobbett. N. Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., [1894.] 8+157 p. D. cl., $1.

The author has written a very serious review of the present political position of the North American Indian, to which race Mr. Picket-Pin belongs. The four principal influences which now affect the more or less helpless wards of the United States are the taking of their land, education, whiskey, and intermarriage. They have been nursed into incompetency and weakness by too much legislation, too much philanthropy, and too much sectarian rivalry. Their distinctive racial qualities are fast disappearing, and Mr. Picket-Piu's type will be lost in fifty years.

Heather Den, the scene of the larger part of this romance, stood on a lonely heath beside a wood. In this farmhouse Anthony Dexter, a famous musician, had secured board, hoping the quiet and seclusion would restore him to his normal condition of health. Rhoda Wichelow, who lives here, is the "daughter of music." She has a singular dual nature, which seems to embrace all the possibilities of good and evil. She is engaged to be married when Dexter meets her, and though Dexter, through his great musical gifts, wins her love, she remains true to her promise, and marries Paul Garnet. After her marriage she again meets Dexter and elopes with him; they have a brief space of happiness in Venice, and then separate, Rhoda returning to London and abject poverty, from which she is rescued and taken home by her husband. The story of her long expiation is painfully sad.

Judith Mackenzie is, at the time the story opens, thirteen years old, staid and demure beyond her years on account of her ready service as nurse and housekeeper to an invalid mother. After the latter's death she goes to Bensalem to live with two maiden aunts; the principal incidents of Judith's life here are given. The interest centres in a romance of her grown-up days, in which a young minister is the hero.

"Having had occasion to study transportation in several of those practical aspects that are demanding attention at the present day, I came to believe that if one was ever to understand this subject he must begin further back than writers upon it were accustomed to do. I therefore conceived the plan of writing a theory of transportation that should unfold the most important of its relations to economic and political life. I also, about the same time, began to be familiar with the writings of the newer school of sociologists, and thought that I found in their analysis of society, particularly in that of Schäffer, a basis upon which to work out my plan."—Peface.

Cotes, Mrs. Everard, [Sara Jeannette Duncan.] A daughter of to-day: a novel. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 2+392 p. D. cl., $1.50

The first novel of the author of "A social departure" and other descriptive works. It describes the life of a modern young woman who aspires to be a great artist. Elfrida Bell is born in Sparta, Illinois; after her school days she goes to Paris, and lives an independent life in the Quartier Latin, studying art and associating with Bohemians of every variety. Her parents' loss of fortune throws her entirely upon her own resources; she has made no mark as an artist, and turns to literature for a living. She removes to London, and becomes a journalist, working successfully as a reporter for several papers. Her career pictures the life of many young girls of to-day, and has many sad and tragical elements.

Cotterell, Constance. Tempe: a novel. N Y., Harper, 1894. 3+244 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new ser., no. 743.) pap., 50 c.

The story of Tempe Rivers, a young English girl living in Stuttingen with her uncle. Tempe was a happy, clever, attractive girl, whose aim in life was "the cultivation of her own individuality." She is first introduced at a crowded Volksfest, where becoming separated from her chaperon she indulges in a ball on ascension in company with handsome Major Wainwright to the intense surprise of the "Mrs. Grundys" of Stuttingen. Her uncle's loss of fortune, her literary work, her life in England, and the love offered her by three different men are the chief incidents. The story is told in a bright, sympathetic style, and with many details.

Countess Obernau: a novel; after the German by Julien Gordon; il. by Ja. Fagan. N. Y., Rob. Bonner's Sons, 1894. c. '93, '94. 4-281 p. D. (The Ledger lib., no. 106.) cl., $1.25; pap., 50 c.

The interest centres in the action of the Countess

Obernau, a young widow, who is at the time of the story living in Dresden. Believing herself to be in love with the Baron Andlan, she betrothes herself to him; after this she wins the love of a German count and a young student, and brings about the unexpected development which closes a sensational history.

During its successful run as serial in the Atlantic Monthly, the author's curiously intimate knowledge of the scenery and inhabitants of eastern Tennessee was shown in every instalment. Again "the moonshiners" play startling parts, and all the horrors of illicit whiskey distilling and its consequences are brought to light. Miss Murfree shows poetical religious feeling in telling of "His vanished star," which the book shows was "a celestial visitant charged with a moral mission to several besides the hero."

Craik, H:, ed. English prose selections; with critical introductions by various writers and general introductions to each period; ed. by H: Craik. V. 2, Sixteenth century to the Restoration. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 8+599 p. D. cl., $1.10.

The general introduction to this volume is from the editor, Henry Craik. It gives a brief account of the literature of the period and traces the sources which influenced it. The general introductions to authors are from the pens of such men as Henry Craik, William Minto, A. W. Ward, George Saintsbury, Alfred Ainger, E. K. Chambers, J. H. Overton, and others. The authors represented begin with men whose life belonged in part to the reign of Elizabeth; they end with those who had reached manhood before the close of the commonwealths. The names of Bacon, Hayward, Doune, Ben Jonson, Sir Thomas Overbury, William Drummond, George Herbert, Sir Thomas Browne, Izaak Walton, Milton, Jeremy Taylor, Richard Baxter, and others famous in the world's literature are included, being represented by six and often a dozen excellent excerpts from their writings.

Crawford, Marian. Mam'zelle Beauty. Chic., Charles H. Sergel Co., [1894.] c. 3–254 p. D. (Sergel's railway lib.) pap., 25 c. [1206

A somewhat sensational story of New York fashionable life. "Mam'zelle Beauty" is the sobriquet bestowed upon the heroine, Beatrice Standish, who had lived until her seventeenth year on a farm near Montreal. The writer must not be confused with the celebrated author, F. Marion Crawford.

Crawford, Fs. Marion. Katharine Lauderdale; il. by Alfred Brennan. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. c. '93. 2 v., 4+332; 4+336 p. il. por. S. cl., $2.

With this novel Mr. Crawford begins a series which deals with the fortunes of two American families, the Lauderdales and the Ralstons, in the same manner as the stories of the Saracinescas were given us. The love and jealousy, the strife and intrigue, the romance and commonplace, which enter into their lives are graphically pictured in a thoroughly American atmosphere. The background of this volume is New York City; the characters belong to the "400"; Jack Ralston, the hero, is a "failure" from a business point of view, and is addicted to drink. A secret marriage he enters into with his cousin Katharine Lauderdale is the motive. The author indulges in many philosophical remarks about heredity, the drink habit, etc., etc.

Crawford, Fs. Marion. Love in idleness: a tale of Bar Harbor; il., reproduced from drawings and photographs. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. c. 2+218 p. D. cl., $2.

A gilt-edged illustrated edition of a picturesque romance that first appeared in the Century. It tells the story of Fanny Trehearne, a clever society girl, and the wooing of her two lovers in a bright and witty manner, that is very attractive.

Contains besides "The upper berth" a gruesome ghost-story of the sea—a second story called "By the waters of paradise," which has also a supernatural element, although a pretty love-tale.

Creighton, Mandell, D.D. A history of the papacy during the period of the Reformation. V. 5, The German Revolt, 1517–1527. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1894. 10+384 p. O. cl., $5.

The ten years embraced in this volume are among the most memorable in the history of the papacy and of Europe. They cover the close of the Pontificate of Leo x., the brief interlude of Adrian vi's occupancy of the Papal chair, and the first years of Clement vii.'s reign. Among the great civil events of the period are the election of Charles v. as emperor, the peasants' war, the battles of Pavia and Mohacs, and the fall of Rhodes. In each of these the Papacy had an important stake, but naturally the interest of the volume is mainly concentrated on the rise of Luther and the development of the Reformation movement in Germany.

Crockett, S. R. The lilac sunbonnet: a love-story. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 4+296 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Amid the crags and heather of Scotland, Ralph Peden, a young theological student, and Winsome Charteris, the laird's pretty grand-daughter, plight their troth. Ralph is found shaky in some of the doctrines of the Marrow Church, and sent back to his father, also a clergyman, in disgrace. There is a secret in the life of Winsome known only to her grandfather and two clergymen. Ralph is a poet and a lover, and marries Winsome regardless of the prejudices of the church. She is the bewitching wearer of the lilac sunbonnet.

Crockett, S. R. Mad Sir Uchtred of the hills. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. c. 6+195 p. nar. D. cl., $1.25.

A story of early English days. A fierce Scotch peer, a hunter and fighter, for cruelty towards a Nonconformist minister, was condemned by the latter, whom men called a prophet, to go mad, as did Nebuchadnezzar. The madman flies to the mountains, where he spends three wild demi-savage years; his brother hunts him with dogs to get the inheritance, but his loyal wife finds him and restores him to reason and happiness.

Crockett, S. R. The play-actress. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 3+194 p. 1 il. T. cl., $1.

In a Scotch parish, a great preacher had ended a stirring mission sermon, when a young woman approached him, leading a little child, which she convinced him was his dead son's baby-girl. She explained that her sister, the child's mother, was a "play-actress" and a woman not fit to bring up a daughter The aunt, the "play-actress" of the story, had carefully taught the little girl. The great preacher goes to London to look up the mother, and the pathetic tale gives glimpses of the perfect self-sacrifice of sisterly love, sacrifice in a wholly hopeless cause. The great preacher hears a sermon from the heart of a "play-actress."

Crockett, S. R. The Stickit minister and some common men. [New cheaper ed.] N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 283 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Fourteen short stories, all relating to Scotch ministers, and many of them telling of inspiring self-sacrifice and devotion to humanity. The author has sparkling humor and deep pathos. He dedicates his book to Robert Louis Stevenson, and says the stories were all written with him in mind, and a promise made to read them all, to which he holds his friend. A "stickit minister" is a student of theology who has not succeeded in graduating, but is allowed to do duty in out-of-the-way places. The reasons for failure involve some searching questions in life and character.

Two merchants' wives in East India, who have made envied social positions for themselves, decide almost simultaneously to bring out two young misses and marry them off in a way to cast new lustre on their social talent. The girls are strongly contrasted, one is the young and pretty, repressed English girl, of decided mental ability; the other, the loud, sickly, man-aping species. Mr. Jervis succumbs to one. The story is told cleverly.

The aim of this work is to reconstruct ideas and opinions adverse to the south, in so far as they are founded on ignorance and prejudice. The writer says: "It is my purpose to inquire, Has the south made any special, distinctive contribution to the constitution, the government, civilization, to liberty, civil or religious, to national independence and honor, to pivotal epochs in our history? Have its thoughts moulded policy, formed parties, acquired territory, prevented national wrong? Have its men led armies, become great thinkers, impressed themselves beneficially upon our age and institutions?" The volume is dedicated "To all Americans who love justice and truth."

Curtin, Jeremiah, comp. Hero-tales of Ireland; collected by Jeremiah Curtin. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1894. c. 52+558 p. D. cl., $2.

In 1887 Mr. Curtin made a journey to Ireland, when he collected tales from which were selected the twenty forming the "Myths and Folk-Lore of Ireland," published by the same firm in 1889. Others were published in the Sunday edition of The Sun, and it was through the co-operation and interest of the editor of that paper that Mr. Curtin again visited Ireland, collecting the other Gaelic tales which make up this volume. They represent types almost extinct, and relate to heroes and adventures of an ancient time, and contain elements peculiar to early ages of story-telling.

"In that the aim of this little volume is the stimulation of an observant love of nature, and especially the increase of knowledge about our plants, it is similar to 'How to know the wild flowers.' But in each book this has been attempted in so different a mood and manner that I feel confident that neither encroaches upon the province of the other. The present classification—if a word so suggestive of technicalities can be used—is 'according to season' and incidentally, locality, enabling the reader to start upon each tour of discovery with so clear a notion as to what he may expect to find, and where he may expect to find it, as materially to increase the chances of a successful expedition"—Preface.

Dandelyon, Ritter. The dissolution: a projected drama. N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1894. c. 4+219 p. D. cl., $1
The author in this romance condems all marriage unions without love as unnatural and unholy, and offers as a solution of the question the establishment by law of platonic unions between man and woman, which shall only become intimate with the consent of the woman. His story, laid in mythological times, illustrates this theory in the action of its heroine.

Luigi Da Porto's novel is the original of the Veronese story of "Romeo and Juliet," which Shakespeare has made immortal. It was afterwards amplified by others, in English versions, from which Shakespeare probably got his plot, but the "Juliet and Romeo" here given is the original story, first published in Italian in the early part of the sixteenth century. An account of Da Porto is given, and also of the various versions of the story in Italian and English.

The anthor is Fellow of Balliol College, Oxford. More is known of Cicero than of any other person of the ancient world. He was born B.C. 106 and died B.C. 43. The purpose of this volume is to set forth from the writings of Cicero a terse accounnt of the disastrons but not inglorious failure of the last Free State of the ancient world. Cicero was an exponent of the best thoughts and noblest aspirations of his nation, and a great orator who loved his country well.

Davidson, T: The education of the Greek people and its influence on civilization. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 12+229 p. D. (International education ser., no. 28.) cl., $1.50

"In my recent book, 'Aristotle and the ancient educational ideals,' I endeavored to set forth the facts of Greek education in historical order. The present brief work has an entirely different purpose—which is, to show how the Greek people were gradnally educated up to that stage of culture which made them the teachers of the whole world, and what the effect of that teaching has been. Hence, education, in its narrow, pedagogic sense, is presented, but in the barest outline, while prominence is given to the different stages in the growth of the Greek political, ethical, and religious consciousness, and the effect of this upon Greek history and institutions, as well as upon the after-world."—Preface.

Teaches in detail, step by step, through over five hundred figures, the skinning and stuffing of birds, mammals, crustaceans, fishes, and reptiles; there are also examples of characteristic forms and attitudes of various species of the animal kingdom. The text is by Oliver Davie, who has made taxidermy his life study and profession. The originals of the illustrations were made in India ink from time to time as the actual subjects could be obtained from which to make the various procedures. They were drawn by the eminent bird and mammal artist, Theodore Jasper, M.D., whose experience in the art of taxidermy extends over a period of fifty years.

The complete history of the Union Pacific Railway, beginning with its inception in 1832; shows how localism and sectionalism defeated Congressional action from 1845 to 1860; the action of Congress from 1861 to 1864, when the charter acts were signed by Lincoln; the building of the road, completed in 1869; the history of the Credit Mobilier; the action of the Treasury Department; the proceedings in the U. S. courts under the Thurman Act; and a discussion of the various plans proposed for the settlement of the question. Maps showing the various routes proposed and their terminals and official statistics accompany the work.

Davis, R: Harding. The exiles, and other stories. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 3+221 p. por. il. D. cl., $1.50.

"The exiles" tells of a New York district attorney, whose life had been devoted to "reform," who went to Tangier in search of health; here he met other "exiles," not like himself, but mostly in hiding for some unexpiated crime—two in particular being men he had helped to prosecute. The influence the lawless life has upon him and the influence he exerts upon others is most effectively related. That man may be excused for sometimes being a law unto himself seems to be the moral. The other stories are: "The writing on the wall," "The right of way," "His bad angel," "The boy orator of Zepath City," "The romance of the life of Hefty Burke," and "An anonymous letter."

Davis, W: Morris. Elementary meteorology. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1894. c. 12+355 p. il. O. cl., $2.70.

The plan of this book may be concisely stated. The origin and uses of the atmosphere are first considered, with its extent and arraugement around the earth. Then, as the winds depend on differences of temperature over the world, the control of the temperature of the atmosphere by the sun is discussed, and the actual distribution and variations of temperatnre are examined. Next follows an account of the motions of the atmosphere in the general and local winds; the moisture of the atmosphere is then studied in regard to its origiu, its distribntion, and its condensation into dew, frost, and clouds: storms are then discussed, in which are included cyclones, tornadoes, and other disturbauces, etc., etc., and closing chapters are given to the succession of atmospheric phenomena that ordinarily follow one another on which our local variations of weather depend, together with some account of weather prediction.

A selected list is embraced in this report of topographical maps published by our various governmental bureaus, with special mention of such sheets as best illustrate the physical features of our country. It was prepared and published for special distribution among school superintendents and teachers, so that they might, as far as possible, secure the specified maps, together with the map of the district in which the school is situated (if such a map is yet published), and introduce them in the teaching of geography. The address of officers to whom applicatiou should be made for them is given. Many of these maps or sheets may be had gratis, others at a very moderate cost.

Lesser Bremen, an English Jew, and a poor clerk, unexpectedly became a very rich man in his twenty-fifth year, through the death of an American relative. He at once went in search of a wife, and found one in Vienna—a beautiful woman, who accepted him only for his money. The danghter born of this union is the heroine of the story. Her mother wishes her to marry an Anstrian connt, who turns out an impostor, while her father would give her to a poor, but honorable Englishmau. The story ends with a tragedy.

Shall incompatibility of temper, an absence of mutual sympathy on almost every subject, and other minor causes, of which the law takes no cognizance, be sufficient reasons for a married couple separating? Such is the question which Mrs. Deland considers, but fails to solve in a deeply interesting story of old Chester, Pa. Philip is high principled, ascetic, severe—an artist, but poor; his wife is rich, indolent, and selfish, of a warm, sensuous nature and with a low estimate of right and wrong. They have a dear little girl, "Mollie." The story of their unsympathetic, unhappy life, in which this child plays a strong part, is powerfully portrayed. There is a charming love-story besides, and a number of most graphic and amusing character sketches. Has been the leading attraction of the Atlantic for the year just closing.

"This article is prepared to vindicate the Prussians from the unfounded charge that less credit was due to them and their leader, . . . and that they did less to accomplish the fall and ruin of Napoleon than the British, and to disprove that to the British, who have arrogantly assumed and claimed that the glory—of the victory of Waterloo—is the sole property and glory of Wellington and of his nation, and of his Anglo-allied army."—Author's introduction.

The author dissects Napoleon's tactics and character in a scientific and impartial manner, and seems to prove that the battle of Waterloo was lost by Napoleon's own lack of foresight and almost wilful waste of time. Besides a description of the battle the author gives clear-cut estimates of Blücher, Wellington, and Napoleon.

De Peyster, J: Watts, ["Anchor" pseud.] Waterloo. N. Y., J: Watts De Peyster, 1893 [1894.] 14 p. Q. pap. (Printed for private circulation.)

N. Y., Home Series Pub. Co., 114 Fifth Ave., [1894.] c. '93. 6+118 p. il. D. cl., $1.
The aim of this little work is to supply the general public, as well as vocalists, public speakers, etc., with such information regarding diseases of the nose, throat, and ear, as to enable them to take the proper hygienic measures for their prevention, and to suggest certain simple methods of treatment adopted for use in the household. The author, who is a well-known New York specialist in this class of diseases, has made no effort to supplant the physician in the more serious form of catarrh, but has aimed to afford the reader an intelligent idea of the more trivial affections of the nose, throat, and ear, and their best mode of treatment.

Man is largely the producer, woman the consumer, the author says—"to woman has fallen the task of directing how the wealth brought into the house shall be used, whether much or little shall be made of it, and what kind of wealth shall be brought. In the current theories, the importance of this latter function has been absurdly underestimated. With a clearer recognition of its true relation to the whole subject of wealth, there must result an increased respect on the part of economists for the industrial functions which woman performs."

Dickens, Mary Angela. A valiant ignorance: a novel. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 3–383 p. D. (Macmillan's dollar novel ser.) cl., $1.

When Julian Romayne is about six years old his father commits suicide at the Hôtel Florian, Nice; a telegram had informed him that a long career of crime carefully hiddeu under a respectable outward life had been discovered, and he prefers death to arrest and punishment. His young wife and Julian are thrown penniless upon the world, hut London relatives care for them, and after some years Mrs. Romayne is again a rich woman, through the unlookcd-for inheritance of a large fortune. Hoping to preserve Julian from his father's fate, she keeps him in ignorance of his father's history, and indulges him in every way. His mistaken educatiou and hereditary tendencies find a striking illustration in the sequel. There is a romance and several other well-defined characters besides Julian and his mother

Dickinson, Emily. Letters of Emily Dickinson; ed. by Mabel Loomis Todd. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1894. c. 2 v., 12+228; 5+229–454 p. S. por. il. cl., $2.

The lovers of Emily Dickinson's poems have been so eager for her prose that her sister has gathered these letters, and committed their preparation to Mabel Loomis Todd, who also furnishes an interesting introduction on Miss Dickinson s personality.

Dickinson, Mrs. Mary Lowe. Three times and out. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1895 [1894.] c. 4+137 p. D. cl., 75 c.

During the meeting of the sewing circle at Bascom's farm-house, the fate of the city work-girl is discussed until the sympathy of Mrs. Bascom and two of her neighbors is aroused, and they offer homes to three girls who have decided to quit the shops and take places in the country. To Mrs. Bascom's lot falls a certain Bessie. In a final chapter Mrs. Bascom enumerates the times she lost her temper, declares her intention for the future, and decides upon a course that brings about a happy ending to a story with a moral.

Dickson, W. K. L. and Antonia. The life and inventions of Thomas Alva Edison; with drawings and photographs, by W. K. L. Dickson, R. F. Outcalt, L. Bauhan, and J. Ricalton. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., [1894.] c. '92–'94. 16+362 p. pors. il. Q. cl., $4.50.

This handsomely made and profusely illustrated volume embraces a most interesting biography of "The wizard of Menlo Park." The authors have been for some years attached to the Edison Works at Orange, New Jersey, and they have thus come to know the inventor very intimately. He has given them the benefit of his aid in describing the evolution of his most remarkable inventions, and has to a certain extent superintended the biographical portions of the work. It may be taken, therefore, as the standard and only authentic "Life" of him. It is brought down to the immediate present, even including a description of the kinetograph, that wonderful apparatus which by meaos of successive photographs brings processes directly before the eye, and euables man to study his own motions. The book is written with enthusiastic admiration, is filled with entertaining anecdotes and vivid descriptions, and gives a most delightful impressiou of the personality of the man.

Dictionary of scientific illustrations and symbols: moral truths mirrored in scientific facts; designed for the use of the senate, the bar, the pulpit, the orator, and the lover of nature, by a barrister of the Honorable Society of the Inner Temple. N. Y., W. B. Ketcham, [1894.] c. 420 p. D. cl., $2.

This book is an assemhlage of striking and interesting scientific facts, arranged so as to be of immediate use to men who require a suggestive topic, a forcible analogy, a cogeut symbol, or a suitable illustration. Arranged alphabetically, kindred topics being grouped together. There are two indexes: one of all the general topics, and another of natural objects, technical terms, places, things, and creatures. There is also a list of the books from which the various important facts have beeu culled (4 p.).

Dillingham, Lucy. The missing chord: a novel. N. Y., G: W. Dillingham, 1894. 6–206 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Juliet Lea, the daughter of a mother devoted to social pleasure, decides to study music in Berlin before making her début in New York society. The story tells of her life with an aunt and cousin who are surrounded by German students and artists. Love comes to Juliet and changes the artistic bent of her life. She marries an American professor devoted to the improvement of his fellowmen. After a short year her life is once more wholly changed, and the unselfishness of her husband seems almost visionary.

Dillon, J: Forest. The laws and jurisprudence of England and America: being a series of lectures delivered before Yale University. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1894. c. 16+431 p. O. cl., net, $4.

Twelve lectures dealing with nearly all the great living questions connected with our laws and jurisprudence, such as legal education, trial by jury, judicial tenure, the origin, development, and characteristics of the common law, written constitutions, legislation, case law, the law reports, judicial precedents, codification, and legal reform. Although these subjects are presented in a popular way, and with an endeavor to surround them with their appropriate historical and literary accompaniments, the real purpose is always a serious purpose, having in view practical ends and results. The discussions are not intended alone for students of the law, but for the practising lawyer as well.

Dixon, Ella Hepworth. The story of a modern woman. N. Y., The Cassell Pub. Co., [1894.] c. 4+322 p. D. cl., $1.

Her father's death forced Mary Erle, a young English girl, out into the world in search of means to gain a livelihood. She first studies art and then drifts into literature, and writes a novel. She has her romance, which ends in disappointment. Scenes are given from London art and literary life, which are full of color.

Doctor Zernowitz. [Also] Villa Montrose, by K. Sutro-Schücking. [German.] Chic., Laird & Lee, 1894. c. 3–194 p. D. (German-American ser., no. 3.) pap., 25 c.

A celebrated New York City physician has in his employ a coachman, who one day betrays that he knows Latin. The doctor demands his story, and its recital makes the novel, which is said to be founded on fact. "Villa Montrose" tells the story of a civil engineer who loves a woman more than his life and commits suicide upon her grave.

Dodd, Mrs. Anna Bowman. In and out of three Normandy inns; il. by C. S. Reinhart and others. [New cheaper ed.] N. Y., Lovell, Coryell & Co., [1894.] c. '92. 6+394 p. il. D. (Illustrated ser., no. 21.) cl., $1.50; pap., 50 c.

See notice, "Annual Catalogue," 1892.

Dodd, Mrs. Anna Bowman. Struthers; [also] The comedy of the masked musicians. N. Y., Lovell, Coryell & Co., 1894. c. 4+31 p. D. (Series of American novels, no. 13.) pap., 50 c.

The first story, "Struthers," deals with the experiences of a young couple who, having achieved business prosperity, leave their modest Tenth Street flat and launch out upon the tide of New York "society" life. Their social strivings are due to the snobbery and Anglo-mania of the husband, but the young wife's unaffected freshness and attractiveness are the factors which finally place them within the "charmed circle" at home and abroad. "The comedy of the masked musicians" is a short story of a disinherited son and heir, who is finally reconciled to his family through the efforts of a kindly woman. The scene is English.

Dodge, C: Wright. Introduction to elementary practical biology: a laboratory guide for high-school and college students. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 23+422 p. D. cl., $1.80.

"The guide consists essentially of questions on the gross and minute structure and on the physiology of a series of common animals and plants which are typical of their kind—questions which can be answered only by actual examination of the specimen or by performance of the experiment. Directions are given for the collection of specimens, for their preservation, and for preparing them for examination, also for performing simple physiological experiments."—Preface. A classified list of literature (15 pages) is given, which the student may consult after having finished the study of each organism; glossary and index. Author is professor of biology in the University of Rochester.

Dodge, Joseph Smith, D.D. The purpose of God. Bost., Universalist Pub. House, 1894. c. 8+257 p. D. cl., net, 75 c.

Dodge, Mrs. Mary E. (Mapes.) The land of pluck: stories and sketches for young folk. N. Y., The Century Co., 1894. c. 5+311 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

A book about Holland, by the author of "Hans Brinker"; a picturesque account of the interests and the oddities of that remarkable country, with a number of stories and sketches, many of them first published in St. Nicholas.

Dodge, Mrs. Mary E. (Mapes.) When life is young: a collection of verse for boys and girls. N. Y., The Century Co., 1894. c. 9+255 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

Many of the poems and rhymes brought together in this book originally appeared in St. Nicholas; some of them were unsigned, and some were published under various pen-names, and others under the initials "M. M. D." The rest are now printed for the first time.

Dodgson, Rev. C: L., ["Lewis Carroll," pseud.] Curiosa mathematica. Pt. 2, Pillow problems thought during wakeful hours. 3d ed. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 16°, flex. cl., net, 75 c.

Dodgson, Rev. C: L., ["Lewis Carroll," pseud.] Sylvie and Bruno, concluded; il. by Harry Furniss. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 30+423 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The sequel to Sylvie and Bruno, like the preceding story, is written in a style resembling "Alice's adventures in Wonderland," excepting that there are innovations in addition to the imaginative experiences of the two dream-children whose puns, quaint sayings, and strange adventures are quoted for the delight of young readers. Many subjects of deep and current interest to older readers are discussed.

Dogs (The) and the fleas, by One of the dogs. Chic., Douglas McCallum, 90 Washington St., 1893 [1894.] c. '93. 2+273 p. il. sq. S. cl., $1; pap. 50 c.

A political and social satire: the poor and oppressed are the "dogs," the rich and powerful the "fleas," who grow richer and more powerful at the expense of the "dogs."

Dolbear, Amos E. Matter, ether, and motion: the factors and relations of physical science. New rev. enl. ed. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1894. c. '92, '94. 10+407 p. O. cl., $2.

Enlarged by three new chapters. The first of these, "Properties of matter as modes of motion," presents the evidence that all the characteristic properties of matter are due to energy embodied in various forms of motion. The second, on "The implications of physical phenomena," points out what assumptions are made in explaining phenomena. It is the substance of a series of articles published in the Psychical Review in 1892 and 1893. The third, on "The relations between physical and psychical phenomena," was read as a paper before the Psychical Congress at the World's Fair in August, 1893.

Dostoyevsky, Fedor M. Poor folk; from the Russian, by Lena Milman; with an introd. by G: Moore. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1894. c. 15+187 p. il. S. el., $1.

George Moore, who writes the preface of this story, says that it places the author "side by side with Tourgueneff and Tolstoi." It is a simple romance of Russian "poor folk," told in letters which pass between an old copying clerk who sometimes gets drunk, and whose reckless generosity and improvidence keep him always in trouble, and his young relative, a poor girl, who lives over the way, and earns a miserable living by embroidering. Both these people have a story, which is narrated in the letters, which also give details of the poor people around them.

A story dealing with the social problems of capital and labor, crime and immorality, demand and supply, justice and charity. The author finds the solution in obedience to the old command—love thy neighbor as thyself. Full of details of the lives of idle and busy working people.

Doudney, Sarah. When we two parted. New il. ed. N. Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., [1894.] 4–477 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Attracted by a sweet tenor voice singing the refrain of Byron's "When we two parted," Lydia Meade is suddenly brought into an association with a fascinating stranger, which incident leads her to forget what is due to her betrothed lover's memory, the latter having been it was supposed, buried on the day of this chance meeting. At a crisis in Lydia's affairs the return of the supposed dead lover brings about several surprises and a romantic but unexpected conclusion to the story.

Douglas, Amanda M. In the king's country. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1894. c. '92, '94. 300 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Pearl Disbrowe tells Sabrina Eastwood, an heiress, of a cherished plan to help people, which, however, a lack of means prevents her from carrying out. Sabrina, becoming enthusiastic over Pearl's idea, furnishes not only the means, but a grand old house for the furtherance of the scheme, which, in accordance with Pearl's fancy, is called "In the king's country." The story tells how Sabrina and Pearl co-operated in their good work, what came of it, and finally gives a romantic incident in the life of the heroine.

An amplification of an essay written for Canadian readers by a Canadian long resident in the United States. That some change must come in the future in the alliance between Canada and the mother-country, he thinks inevitable. Whether it shall be political independence, annexation to the United States, or whether Canada shall make one in the talked-of scheme of British imperial federation, he thoroughly discusses. He sees no gain industrially for Canada in annexation to the United States, and rather favors her independence until the time comes for her to make one of the links of the confederation.

"There is a world of childhood, underrated, misunderstood, slighted, snubbed, thwarted, oppressed," says the writer. To a better understanding of it, he gives to parents these studies of his own children, containing records concerning a period of over sixteen years. The purpose of the book is both to awaken sympathy and to inform. It pleads for justice to children by exhibiting some phase of the strength and the weakness of child-nature.

A story of American missionary work in Northern Mexico. The ranch of San Bernahé, the patriarchal home of Don Eduardo Vera, a Baptist convert, is the home of Mary Summers, a young missionary sent out by the Baptist Board of Missions for religious work among the Mexicans. Her success as nurse, teacher, and proselytizer, the plottings of the local schoolteacher and priests, the burning of the little Baptist chapel, and the final triumph of the mission work, are the chief elements in what is essentially a "missionary story."

Du Maurier, G: Trilby: a novel; il. by the author. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 6+464 p. D. cl., $1.75; edition de luxe, $10.

Three English artists, known familiarly as "The Laird," "Taffy," and "Little Billee," have a studio in common in the Quartier Latin of Paris. Trilby is a beautiful young girl of English and Irish extraction, an artist's model, and a thorough Bohemian, who is admitted to close comradeship with the three friends. Out of this companionship grow the incidents of the story, which are beautifully pathetic. The power of hypnotism in the hands of an unscrupulous man is startlingly illustrated in part of Trilby's career. Art life and the artists of some thirty years ago, both of England and France, receive delightful illustrations from Du Maurier's pen and pencil.

Dunn, G: Red cap and blue jacket: a story of the time of the French Revolution. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 5+587 p. sq. S. cl., $1.

A tragieal episode, given as a prologue, that has for its seene a eoral islet in the South Pacifie is the key to the story. To tell it would be to spoil the interest in the plot. The main story has its seene first in Scotland towards the elose of the eighteenth ceutury, and afterward in Franee. The Freneh Revolution colors the story throughout. The eharacters are vividly deliueated, aud there are many dramatie incidents on sea and land; a fight between an English and a French man-of-war, a shipwreck, the elosing scenes of the Freneh Revolution, and two romanees.

From a long line of ancestry, traced in unbroken line to the beginning of the fourteenth eentury, Philippe Auguste Matthias de Villiers de l'Isle Adam inherited his cumbersome name. This Freneh poet, dramatist, and novelist, was born in 1838 and died in 1889. He was an artist in letters, and fought the utilitarian spirit in literature in a manner to make him many enemies. He was intimately aequainted with Riehard Wagner, and wrote a novel ealled "L'Eve future," which was mueh appreciated by Thomas A. Edison, who is the hero of it. Villiers was offered the throne of Greeee, it is said, before it went to the Danish family.

Cleopatra's fleet, that sailed against Greece, had already been defeated, when the story opens at Alexandria and Mark Antony's brilliant career forever ended at Actium. The few remaining events in the lives of these royal lovers, Antony's tragic death, the coming of the Roman conqueror, and Cleopatra's dramatic exit from life are related with many details. The author shows a strong admiration for the Egyptian queen, and depicts her as a tenderly loving mother and faithful friend. The passionate attachment of her women and others near to her are offered as proofs of the fine qualities claimed for her. A second romance, with political intrigues and vivid description of the life of the period, fill out the volumes.

A quarto volume with back and half sides of reversed purple cloth, the front half side being covered with tracery and a circular frame stamped in gold, enclosing a small fac-simile of one of Mrs. Edgerton's water-color sketches; with outer half sides in an illuminated design of purple and white violets, with gold heavily embossed.

Edgeworth, Maria. The life and letters of Maria Edgeworth; ed. by A: J. C. Hare. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1895 [1894.] c. 2 v., 4+339; 3+340-704 p. por. il D. cl., $4.

Miss Edgeworth, although often asked, always refused to write a biographical preface to her novels. "As a woman," she said, "my life, wholly domestic, can offer nothing of interest to the public." A collection of Miss Edgeworth's letters, printed by her stepmother after her death for private circulation only, proved the contrary, however. They are a valuable record of her times and of the many who were prominent figures in them, and give quite unconsciously a picture of a simple, honest, generous, high-minded character, filled from youth to age with love and goodwill to her fellow-creatures that it is pleasant to dwell upon. These letters are now given to the general public, the editor having had little more to do than to make a selection and to write such a thread of biography as might unite them together.

The red flag of anarchy is the rejected symbol. Rev. Darby Jones, the supposed pastor of a church in Bumbletown, a thriving town on Long Island, tells, in a rather flippant way, his incidental history, especially dwelling upon a rather questionable passage with one of his parishioners and presenting his general views of socialism and anarchism. He also introduces the main facts about the Haymarket riots and a brief sketch of Albert Parsons.

Ellis, E: S. The great cattle trail. Phil., Porter & Coates, [1894.] c. 4–313 p. il. D. (Forest and prairie ser., no. 1.) cl., $1.25.

As Captain Shirril and his nephew Avon, a young fellow of about eighteen, are about to start from their home in western Texas through upper Texas, the Indian Nation, and Kansas over the great cattle trail with a large herd of cattle, their home is attacked by a gang of Comanches. The captain, his wife, and the colored servant defend the cabin bravely with their rifles, while Avon makes a daring dash from the house for the camp of the cowboys for help. Thrilling and unexpected events characterize the whole story.

Ellis, E: S. Honest Ned. N. Y., The Merriam Co., [1894.] c. 236 p. il. D. (Brave and honest ser., no. 2.) cl., $1.25.

Opens with the discovery that a valuable black diamond has been abstracted from the safe of a firm of diamond brokers in Maiden Lane, New York City. Circumstantial evidence points directly to Edmund Melton, a young clerk in the employ of the firm, and the interest of the story centres in the unravelling of the mystery and the clearing of the lad's good name, through the detective skill of a fellow-clerk.

Ellis, E: S. Righting the wrong. N. Y., The Merriam Co., [1894.] c. 217 p. il. O. (Brave and honest ser., no. 3.) cl., $1.25.

Takes up the adventure of Edmund Melton, forming a sequel to "Honest Ned" in the same series. In the present story young Melton is driven by his guardians' harshness to run away from home, and is suspected of taking with him a package of diamonds belonging to his employers. A professional detective is employed to trace him, but the boy is finally found and the puzzle solved by the young fellow-clerk who figured in the previous story.

The little Lady of Lavender was the sobriquet given to Evangeline Herbert, granddaughter of the rector of Lavender. Eva's rescue of Davy the poacher, a notable visit to Captain Rausom, the terror of the country folk, an adventure in a snow-storm, and a trip to London are described, and the quaint little heroine of seven years remains the centre of attraction in a story of English country life.

Elwood, G: M. Some earlier public amusements of Rochester; read before the Rochester Historical Society, 1894. Rochester, N. Y., Democrat and Chronicle Print., 1894. 2–62 p. T. pap., 25 c.

Covers the years from 1820 to 1863, mostly by quotations from the newspapers of the time. Shows how strong the Puritan traditions remained among the new, and for their day most enterprising settlers of "the west."

Ely, R: T. Socialism: an examination of its nature, its strength and its weakness, with suggestions for social reform. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., 1894. c. 11+449 p. D. (Library of economics and politics, v. 3.) cl., $1.50.

Divided into four parts. Pt. 1 is historical and descriptive, and is devoted to an exposition of the progress and nature of socialism, making plain the differences existing among the various schools. Pt. 2 shows the possibilities of socialism as a scheme of production and for the distribution and consumption of wealth; what it might do for art and literature, and how it might increase the collective happiness of mankind. Pt. 3 is devoted to pointing out the dangers and weaknesses of socialism. The author sums up in pt. 4 what he calls "The golden mean or practical social reform," and points out advantages that would result to society if certain features of socialistic reform were adopted. Numerous appendices, containing the programmes and platforms of various socialistic bodies and an exhaustive bibliography (44 p.) add greatly to the value of this volume.

Count Gustav Adolph Dynar, living on the German side of the borderland between Germany and Poland, adopts under peculiar circumstances the son of a Polish refugee. In later years the Countess Dynar takes exception to her father's action and questions the right of the Pole to her family titles. On the action of Janek Proezna at this juncture is dependent the interest of a sensational love-story.

Eschstruth, Nataly v. (Baroness.) Her little highness: a novel; from the German, by Elise L. Lathrop; il. by Ja. Fagan. N. Y., Robert Bonner's Sons, [1894.] c. 4–303 p. D. (Ledger lib., no. 109.) cl., $1.25; pap., 50 c.

Count Cyprian Lankowitz, a German courtier, marrying in extreme youth, is soon left a widower. In his later life he falls in love with a German princess about the same age as his son; the story tells of the results of this, in the lives of both father and son, and of the complications brought about by the action of Cyril, the count's son, and finally of a romantic love-affair, in which both men play interesting parts.

Eschstruth, Nataly v. (Baroness). The opposite house: a novel; from the German, by Mary J. Safford; il. by H. M. Eaton. N. Y., Rob. Bonner's Sons, [1894.] c. 5–282 p. S. (Ledger lib., no. 118.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The handsome young hero is from the merchant class of Germans; his father had made an immense fortune in a mill, which the son had largely squandered at the gaming-table and upon a beautiful dancer. His life breaks his mother's heart, her sudden death bringing his reckless career to a standstill. He determines to reform, and is upheld in his intentions by the young Baroness who lives in "the opposite house." These young people love each other, but for a long time are separated by class prejudices, and the bitter enmity of a discarded mistress and her equally unscrupulous partner in vice.

Prince Gregory Sobolefskoi, the chamberlain of the czar, falls into disfavor with the latter, on account of his marriage with a popular actress. After Vera Czakaroff becomes the Princess Sobolefskoi, she settles in Moscow, but ennui and a slight misunderstanding bring about a separation, which is followed by the supposed death of Vera and the tragic death of the prince; their heir is the hero of the story, which deals with his sad history. The time is that of the Franco-Prussian War.

A young woman who had been betrayed and deserted is found starving, with a babe of a few days, by a poor but warm-hearted doctor, in a London lodging-house. She is induced, through certain reasons, to give up her child, marry a rich man, and go out with him to Australia. The child is amply provided for, and becomes the daughter of a Jewish family named Cohen. They give her a parents' love and tenderness, and raise her in their faith, though she is a Christian. The power of heredity is shown in her subsequent career. In the character of her supposed father, Aaron Cohen, a very noble and honorable type of Jew is represented.

Fawcett, Edgar. Her fair fame: a novel. N. Y., Merrill & Baker, 1894. c. 220 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Ogden Hamilton, a rich New York art patron, meets Foulke Bradhurst, a dissipated, talented young painter, in Paris. He patronizes Bradhurst, and finally induces him to come to America. Hamilton and Bradhurst become rivals for the love of Hamilton's ward. The scene shifts to Trouville, France, where many doubts affecting the fair fame of the heroine are finally put to rest. Hamilton is a psychological study. The heroine sacrifices herself throughout for the best good of her husband's health and his art career.

The "mild barbarian" is a young fellow of twenty-four who, after having lived all his life with an invalid mother in the complete seclusion of a small New England town, falls heir, soon after his mother's death, to a million-dollar fortune and a town-house in New York. His unworldliness and frank naïveté are ill-suited to the society life in which he is launched, and where he creates more or less social havoc. He loves a fashionable New York society girl, but there are mutual misunderstandings, and it is only after considerable unhappiness and long separation that the course of true love is finally smoothed.

Fields, Mrs. Ja. T. A shelf of old books. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 7+215 p. il. O. cl., $2.50.

Mrs. Fields is the widow of the publisher James T. Fields, who, during his successful career, came into personal relations with almost all the literary men of his day. The shelf is chiefly filled with volumes, once the property of Leigh Hunt, many of which were inscribed to him by their authors—Shelley, Keats, Lamb, Dr. Brown, and Walter Scott. There are also many precious volumes of classics bearing the names of former owners, who in many instances presented them personally to Mr. Fields. Portraits of many writers of the Victorian age, fac-similes of their handwriting, and pictures of the houses in which they lived give this book a strong literary interest.

Fiske, J: Edward Livingston Youmans, interpretor of science for the people: a sketch of his life; with selections from his published writings and extracts from his correspondence with Spencer, Huxley, Tyndall, and others. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 6+597 p. por. O. cl., $2.

The late Dr. Youmans is best known through his contributions to the Popular Science Monthly; he was the founder of this magazine, and its editor for twenty-eight years; it was through its pages that he introduced Spencer, Tyndall, Huxley and other scientists to an American audience; he was also the originator and editor of the International Scientific Series. His life and correspondence are a record of the scientific progress of this country during the past quarter of a century. He was born in the town of Coeymans, Albany Co., N. Y., on the 3d of June, 1821, and died in January of 1887. A list of his works, covering a page, is given. The chief ones are his "Class-book of chemistry" and "Handbook of household science."

Fiske, J: A history of the United States for schools; with topical analysis, suggestive questions, and directions for teachers, by Frank Alpine Hill. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 21+471 p. il. por. maps, D. cl., net, $1.

Mr. Fiske has made not a compilation, but a fresh history of the United States, from the discovery of America to the present time, especially calculated to interest young students, both from the attractive style of the narrative and the form in which the publishers have issued it. The book contains some very valuable appendixes—one giving the origin of the names of the States and Territories, with mention of books on the history of the States; another naming books treating of successive epochs; another indicating novels, poems, and songs relating to American history; another on the calendar and the reckoning of dates. The book is very fully illustrated, but not for mere embellishment; all the maps and pictures have a positive historic value.

Fletcher, W: I. Library classification; reprinted with alterations, additions, and an index from his "Public libraries in America." Bost., Roberts Bros., 1894. 32 p. O. flex. cl., $1.

"There are already in the field many rival schemes of classification for libraries. The present publication is not intended to add one to the number, but rather to offer a way of escape for those who shrink from the intricacies and difficulties of the elaborate systems, and to substitute for painstaking analytical classification a simple arrangement which it is believed is better adapted to be practically useful in a library, while doing away with most of the work involved in carrying out one of these schemes."—Introduction.

Fletcher, W: I. Public libraries in America. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1894. c. 6+169 p. il. S. (The Columbian knowledge ser., no. 2.) cl., $1.

Occasional papers (with some new ones) read before meetings of librarians, and published in the Library Journal and elsewhere. In making them into a book, they have been thoroughly revised and sometimes rewritten, bringing them into conformity with the latest progress in library development. Their subjects are: The public library movement, its history and its significance; Library laws, how libraries have been established; The public library and the community; Library buildings; Classification and catalogues; Minor details of library management; Selection and purchase of books; Reference work—the public library in relation to the schools, to university extension, etc.; The librarian, his work and his training for it; The American Library Association; A few representative libraries; Special libraries; Public libraries in Canada; The future of the public library. In an appendix are given: Scheme of classification; Special collections; Sunday opening of libraries; Gifts to libraries: Statistics; Library rules; and biographic sketches of W. F. Poole, A. R. Spofford, G: Ticknor, and Justin Winsor.

Fletcher, W: I., and Bowker, R: R. The annual literary index, 1893; including periodicals, American and English; essays, book-chapters, etc.; with author-index, bibliographies, and necrology; ed. with the co-operation of members of the American Library Association and of the Library Journal staff. N. Y., Office of The Publishers' Weekly, 1894. c. 7+213 p. O. cl., $3.50.

The present volume forms the second supplement both to the new five-yearly volume (1887–1891) of Poole's "Index to periodical literature," and to the new "A. L. A. index" to essays and book-chapters of Mr. Fletcher. The index to periodicals of 1893 covers 121 pages; the index to general literature of 1893, with list of books indexed covers 22 pages; there is a full author-index to the indexes to periodicals and general literature of 1893; also a rich list of bibliographies issued in 1893, and a necrology of writers deceased in 1893.

Flint, Rob., D.D. Historical philosophy in France and French Belgium and Switzerland. V. 1. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 27+706 p. O. cl., $4.

The first volume of a great work, the fruit of many years of study and research, which contemplates in its entirety a history of the intellectual development of France, Germany, Italy, and England under the general title of "History of the philosophy of history." It contains an analysis and discussion of historical philosophy in France and French-Belgium and Switzerland. It is a contribution also to some extent to the history of France. Montesquieu, Turgot, Voltaire, Rousseau, the Utramontanist and liberal Catholic schools, the socialistic schools, the "spiritualistic movement," naturalism and positivism all form subjects of chapters. Dr. Flint is professor of divinity in the University of Edinburgh.

This story, which relates to the riots in the Cœur d'Alene mines in the Rocky Mountains in 1892, includes an engaging love-story. The hero is a young Englishman, the son of one of the directors, sent over from England to investigate the manager and the management of the mine. He falls in love with the manager's daughter, a lovely New York girl who had come west directly from school, and who is quite ignorant of her father's lack of principle.

Foote, Mary Hallock. In exile, and other stories. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 3+253 p. D. cl., $1.25.

"In exile" has its scene in a mining-camp in California; the exiles are Frances Newell, a little schoolteacher from Connecticut, and Arnold, a civil engineer from Massachusetts. Their little romance is picturesque and touching. The other stories of the west and east are "Friend Barton's concern," "The story of the Alcázar," "A cloud on the mountains," "The rapture of Hetty," and "The watchman."

Foote, S:, and Hook, Theodore. Bon-mots of Samuel Foote and Theodore Hook; ed. by Walter Jerrold; with grotesques by Aubrey Beardsley. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 192 p. 18°, cl., 75 c.

Ford, Mary H. Otto's inspiration. Chic., S. C. Griggs & Co., 1895 [1894.] c. 2–243 p. D. cl., $1.

On a warm summer afternoon a little tramp with a fiddle and dog drifts into a New Hampshire farmhouse. He is allowed to stay to please the delicate daughter. He lives for music, and later goes to Germany to study. Beethoven is his favorite composer, and with but little practice he plays the most difficult compositions of the master in a marvellous manner. He insists that he is inspired by angels. He and his lovely wife devote their lives to the helpless.

Ford, Paul Leicester. The honorable Peter Stirling and what people thought of him. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1894. c. 3+417 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The Hon. Peter Stirling comes to New York City fresh from Harvard College. He puts out his sign as a lawyer in the most crowded part of Broadway, and for two years he has not a single client. He has some means, and while waiting he makes a study of New York City tenement-house life, and finally uses his legal ability and great eloquence to bring home to the authorities the wrongs of the poor, the abuse of trusts, the general corruption of city life. The view of the evil that exists is optimistic in spite of the plain words spoken of bossism, railroad thievery, milk adulteration, liquor laws, and the thousand other disgraces of New York City. A stream of romance makes the truth palatable for the general reader.

Foster, R. F. Foster's duplicate whist: a complete system of instruction in whist strategy. N. Y., Brentano's, [1894.] 7–245 p. S. cl., $1.25.

Gives a history of duplicate whist, with directions for playing it. In the chapters devoted to whist strategy, the writer says: "Several of the fundamental principles, and 'extensions of principle' of our great authorities are set aside, such as 'the invariability of the lead from the longest suit, whatever the score; the reckless giving of information, whatever the hand; the useless and confusing system of leads, erroneously called American; the assumption that the discard is always directive; the total disregard of finesse and tenace; and the refusal to acknowledge the merits of the short-suit game." Ample reasons are given for the rejection of these principles.

The author covered the information to be found about the earliest years of Christianity (from 30 to 45 A.D.) in a former volume entitled "The beginnings of the church: St. Peter and the first years of Christianity." The present volume covers from 45 to 62 A.D., beginning with events recorded in the thirteenth chapter of the Acts, which show the forceful, energetic nature, capable of breaking down and dominating all resistance and proceeding to show from the Epistles the grace and tenderness and softer lines of the nature of this great missionary. Gives a detailed account of the countries, their history, manners and customs in which St. Paul labored with thorough understanding of existing conditions.

Published by the Harpers in English, under the title of "The crime of Sylvestre Bonnard." See "Annual Catalogue," 1890. The author's consent was given to reproduce his work in this form, for the use of schools and colleges. The story is not at all sensational, in spite of its title.

Francis, H. R. Junius revealed, by his surviving grandson. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1894. 6+82 p. O. cl., $1.75.

Contains a fac-simile of a document in the possession of the author, the existence of which has been known to very few individuals, and which forms a connecting link, hitherto wanting, in the chain of evidence pointing to Sir Philip Francis as the author of "Junius."

Francis, Laurence H., ed. Chatterbox zoo; il. by Harrison Weir and others. Bost., Estes & Lauriat, [1894.] c. '83–'94. unp. nar. F. bds., $1.25.

A large odd-shaped book consisting of stories and pictures from Chatterbox, about animals. The stories are in big type.

Francis, M. E. The story of Dan. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 3+290 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A pathetic story of Ireland. The characters belong to the peasant class. The ambition of a vain woman, who discards a faithful lover on account of the attentions of a richer man, hoping he will make her his wife, is the cause of a distressing tragedy.

A quaint story of lowly life among Dutch peasants. The heroine is left motherless at fourteen. She takes hold of the family burdens, but does it in a hard, sad way, until advised by her pastor to see "God's will" in all things. Her father arranges a marriage between herself and a cousin "of the earth, earthy." At the marriage altar she says "no" where "yes" was expected by the reader as fully as by the attending friends, a point giving great literary merit to the romance. The other stories are: "Our journey," "A Christmas story," "The first," and "The scorcher."

The author claims there has as yet been no comprehensive treatise on the subject of this book. Questions of the gravest importance attach to handwriting totally apart from the questions of fraud or forgery. This volume gives the various observations to be taken into consideration by experts on handwriting, and shows the physical and psychological data on which some of the most noted cases of forgery have been judged. The author has devoted his life to the investigation of handwritings.

In 1883, the four hundredth anniversary of Luther's birth, Freytag was requested to publish in a separate volume those chapters of the Bilder aus der deutschen vergangenheit which treats of the life and work of Luther. He accordingly revised the first four chapters of the volume which deals with the Reformation, publishing them under the title of Doktor Luther. This book has already reached the third edition in Germany.

Freytag, Gustav. Freytag's technique of the drama: an exposition of dramatic composition and art; an authorized tr. from the 6th German ed., by Elias J. MacEwan. Chic., S. C. Griggs & Co., 1895 [1894.] c. 9+366 p. D. cl., $1.50.

An historical and philosophical exposition of dramatic composition and art, stating the general principles governing the structure of plays, the creation of characters, and the rules of acting. The qualifications of actors are clearly set forth, and attention is given to stage arrangement. An important feature of the work is its critical examination of the plan, motive, color, characters, etc., of the principal dramas of Sophocles, Shakespeare, Lessing, Goethe, and Schiller, thus making it of special value to dramatic authors, critics, and students of literature. Freytag ranks among the first of living playwrights and novelists, and playgoers will find in the work that which must be helpful to a better appreciation of the nature and value of the drama.

Selected from the first volume of Freytag's "Bilder aus der deutschen vergangenheit" for intrinsic value and interest and also because the three essays consist largely of direct and simple narrative, adapted for the second year of the study of German. The editor is instructor in German at Harvard University.

Johanna Mosen, the protégée of a wealthy German merchant, is suddenly thrown on her own resources by her foster-father's bankruptcy. The story tells of her unsuccessful attempts to earn her living, how she came to fall in love with Karl Wenzel, and finally of an episode in the career of Wenzel, which almost terminated in his moral and social ruin.

Ten stories told to an imaginary little girl, who sits in front of an open fire with the teller of the stories, and tries to see the gods and goddesses and other heroes and heroines he finds in the flame. The stories are concerned with the figures of Wagner's dramas now so familiar to every one, and are made understandable to young people.

Froude, Ja. Anthony. Life and letters of Erasmus: lectures delived at Oxford, 1893–94. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 3+433 p. O. cl., $2.50.

Erasmus was born at Rotterdam in 1467. Caxton was setting up his printing-press and Columbus making his adventurous voyages. The author has been obliged to abridge, compress, and epitomize the letters on which he has so largely drawn for his facts. He thinks the best description of the state of Europe in the age immediately preceding the Reformation may be found in the letters of Erasmus. Erasmus died in 1536, after Anne Boleyn had met her fate, when Roman Catholics and Protestants of high degree were contending for the hand of Henry VIII.

Viticulture has taken such rapid strides in the past few years that a new edition of this work was found necessary; it is materially enlarged and brought up to date. The list of standard grapes is carefully revised, and a large list of the more recent, but as yet unestablished varieties, is given for consideration.

Fuller, Anna. Peak and prairie, from a Colorado sketch-book. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 6+391 p. il. S. cl., $1.

Stories of Colorado life in which fictitious characters are set in a real environment. They are thirteen in number, and as follows: A pilgrim in the far west; Brian Boru; Jake Stanwood's gal; At the Keith ranch; The Rumpety case; The lame Gulch professor; The boss of the wheel; Mr. Fetherbee's adventure; An amateur gamble; A Rocky Mountain shipwreck; A stroke in the game; The blizzard picnic; A golden vista. Originally published in Harper's, Scribner's, and other magazines.

Fuller, J:, sr. Art of copper-smithing: a practical treatise on working sheet-copper into all forms. N. Y., D: Williams, 96–102 Reade St., 1894. c. '93. 8+327 p. por. il. O. cl., $3.

The material embraced in this work first appeared as a serial in The Metal Worker. The author acquired proficiency in copper-working through a long apprenticeship and many years of actual labor at the bench. The instruction he gives is therefore entirely practical. A special feature is the illustrations, which add not only to the interest but to the value of the text, as they show the work in all stages of progress and illustrate all the appliances, patterns, and tools. The work is divided into sections, each treating a separate topic, and is thoroughly indexed. The style of writing is exceedingly simple and the descriptions of work go into the smallest details.

Remains in general plan like former editions—that is, definitions and discussions are followed by laboratory experiments, in which the student makes the demonstrations for himself. It is printed only on the left-hand page, thus leaving the right blank for notes. The figures have been increased from about 50 to 103 and have been distributed in the text instead of being collected into plates. In matter, the book has been increased from 96 to 165 pages; this is due in part to the elaboration of the old text and in part to a wholly new chapter, "On photo-micrography and on photographing natural history specimens in a horizontal position with a vertical camera." The author "hopes that the book as it now appears may, while remaining strictly elementary, still more fully meet the needs of those who wish to use the microscope for serious study and investigation."

Margaret Weld is an artist, who at twenty eight loses the fortune left by her father and attempts to earn her living, never hesitating to express her doubts of religion, to demand the same moral law for men and women; reeognizing the soul in some fellow-beings she meets, but denying the existenee of soul in herself. She is finally redeemed through love. A whole-souled Roman Catholie priest and a lovely Quakeress and her son teaeh Margaret many lessons.

Gardner, Sarah M. H. Quaker idyls. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1894. c. 3+223 p. il. 1 nar. S. buckram, 75 c.

Eight studies of Quaker life, among which "Some ante-bellum letters from a Quaker girl" are conspieuous for their historie interest. These letters are supposed to be written during a visit to Boston; they give the writer's impressions of political and soeial life in the "Hub" just before the rebellion, with apt deseriptions of well-known abolitionists whom the heroine meets socially. One letter, dated from Philadelphia, gives a striking pieture of Lueretia Mott sitting beside a negro slave on trial in the "Quaker City." Twelfth Street meeting; A Quaker wedding; Two gentlewomen; Our little neighbors; Pamela Tewksbury's eourtship; Unele Joseph, and My grandame's secret, are the titles of the other stories, whieh likewise portray a phase of life fast beeoming extinet.

An exhaustive book on the diseases of women other than those covered by the special science of obstetrics. It is wholly practical, avoiding theoretical discussions and treating the pathology very briefly. Anatomy is treated discursively, because the text-books as yet have not satisfactorily described this branch except in the science of gynecology, and most of the large encyclopedic works are beyond the reach of the general practitioners and students for whom this work is specially intended. The chief object has been to give modes of treatment as practised in America. Many of the illustrations come from the writer's own operations, dissections, and microscopical examinations. Dr. Garrigues is by birth a Dane. He is Prof. of Obstetrics in the New York Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital, and holds many other highly responsible posts as consulting obstetriciau.

Gerard, Dorothea. Lot 13. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. '93. 4+304 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 135.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The story opens in London and changes to the West Indies, where the sugar plantation known as "Lot 13" is situated. "Lot 13" has been persistently unlucky, failing to make money under any management. Simon Berrincott, in a malicious mood, wills it to his cousin James, whom he hates, and from whom he has been separated for many years. Simon leaves a son called Bernard, and James has a daughter named Marian. These young people are the leading characters, and, of course, "fall in love" with each other. "Lot 13" becomes unexpectedly prosperous, and Bernard loses his English estate, because his father unwittingly had married Bernard's mother—his second wife—before his first wife was dead. Marian then becomes an heiress, and complications are numerous.

Gerard, Dorothea. The rich Miss Riddell. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 3+208 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 142.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The story of a plain-looking Englishwoman of thirty who is burthened with great wealth; it has not only made her the object of constant persecution from mercenary suitors, but has separated her from the only man she loves or who honestly loves her. With a young companion, a little Austrian governess who is weary of England, she goes to Vienna, hoping to escape from people who know she is an heiress. Her story reaches its climax here, and fate reconciles her to being a rich woman.

Myra Barth, the heroine, is the sleep-walker. She is also heiress to a great estate, but when the story opens the birth of a half-brother, soon after her father's death, has deprived her of her inheritance. Consequent unhappiness brings on the somnambulistic state, and in this condition she rises at night, takes the sleeping babe from his cradle and casts him into a reservoir about a mile from her home. The child is rescued, adopted by honest cottagers, and recognized by a rascally physician who is heir to the estate after Myra. From this point there is a constant succession of plots and counterplots to prevent the recovery of the child and to keep Myra from marrying.

Gestefeld, Ursula N. The leprosy of Miriam. N. Y., The Gestefeld Library and Pub. Co., 1894. c. 265 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Miriam's leprosy was "the leprosy of scientific materialism." She was a highly intellectual woman, who only lived to gratify her ambition for power and influence: she ignored her higher nature and the true office of woman, to shine upon the platform and to public applause. She loves a man who confesses to her his sins, the chiefest being that he is a father of a child born out of wedlock, who he desires to acknowledge; but she refuses to be his wife, if he carries out his design. There is another story entwined with this, of an unhappy marriage—a pure young girl having married a man to reform him.

Giberne, Agnes. Life in a nutshell: a story. Bost., A. I. Bradley & Co., [1894.] 4-222 p. il. D. cl., $1.

When ill health compels the Rev. Stephen Balfour to resign his pastorate in Norfolk, and seek relief in an entire change of scene, his daughter Katie goes to the home of her uncle, in Penshurst; by common consent, however, she soon changes her abode for the homely fare and kind hospitality of a quaint little house called the "Nutshell;" life here is contrasted with life at the Walnuts, and a sad episode in Grace Balfour's brief history is given, with the incidents in Katie's happy love-story.

Giberne, Agnes. The starry skies; or, first lessons on the sun, moon, and stars. N. Y., American Tract Soc., [1894.] c. '94. 234 p. il. D. cl., $1.

A new volume explaining astronomy to very youthful minds in the happy manner of the author's "Among the stars:" "Sun, moon, and stars," etc. After describing certain facts in the government of the heavens, the subject is impressed on the young readers by means of a skilful résumé by question and answer.

Giffin, W: M. Supplementary work in arithmetic. Pt. 1, Lines. Chic., A. Flanagan, 1894. c. '93. 57 p. il. O. cl., $1.

The motives of this work are: to necessitate the use of the rules by the children; to exercise their judgment; to give tests in the five fundamental operations, viz., addition, subtraction, multiplication, division, and partition.

Gifford, J: B. Elementary lessons in physics. Bost., Thompson, Brown & Co., [1894.] c. 8+161 p. il. D. cl., 60 c; Teacher's ed., 75 c.

The author is Superintendent of Schools in Peabody, Mass. The lessons here given have grown into their present form for several years, while they have been in use under the supervision of the author. Intended to train pupils to observe, to think, and to express thought and to reveal to them some of the laws in accordance with which physical changes occur. The work laid out may be done in a year. The pupils bring in descriptions of all experiments in writing, thus teaching them to think and express themselves clearly and technically.

Gilder, R: Watson. Five books of song. N. Y., The Century Co., 1894. c. '75-'94. 15+240 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A complete and revised collection in one volume of Mr. Gilder's poems. Includes the separate books known as "The new day," "The celestial passion," "Lyrics," "Two worlds," and "The great remembrance;" also fourteen poems not hitherto printed in book form.

Gildersleeve, Basil L., and Lodge, Gonzalez. Gildersleeve's Latin grammar. 3d ed. rev. and enl. N. Y., University Pub Co., 1894. c. 10+550 p. D. cl., $1.20.

This standard grammar, as now revised and enlarged, is a complete text-book for Latin study. It expresses the leading principles of the language in simple terms for beginners, and also contains a full historical treatment of varying usages for advanced study. The whole book is thus designed as a handbook for continual use, not requiring to be supplemented by more comprehensive grammars. The historical feature is new.

Giles, Fayette Stratton. Shadows before; or, a century onward. N. Y., The Humboldt Pub. Co., 19 Astor Pl., [1894.] 2–286 p. D. (Twentieth century lib., no. 57.) pap., 50 c.

Another of the visions of what the world will be one hundred years later. New York in 1993 is the scene. A Japanese professor on a visit to New York asks questions which bring out comparisons between the old and new dispensations. There are long discussions on the effects of accepting Herbert Spencer, Darwin, and Huxley as authorities, also on railroads, government, education, marriage relations, dress, longevity, burial customs, etc., etc. A thread of romance gives form to many excellent theories of national and individual life in coming years.

N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1893 [1894.] c. '92. 4–527 p. por. il. D. cl., subs., $2.50.

The main object of this work is to support Captain Glazier's claims as discoverer of the sources of the Mississippi; he gives also a history of Mississippi exploration from the days of Cabeza de Vaca. Presented in popular form.

Gleason, Clarence W. The gate to the "Anabasis"; with colloquia, notes, and vocabulary. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1894. c. 4+47 p. map, S. (School classics.) cl., 45 c.

This simplified text of the first book of the "Anabasis" is divided into forty-six lessons, and these are followed by conversations in Greek, with notes and vocabularies. A thorough trial in the class-room has proved that the method introduces the learner to the complete text of the author sooner than was formerly possible and makes him familiar with Greek as a spoken language.

Gleason, E. B., M.D. Essentials of the diseases of the ear, arranged in the form of questions and answers prepared especially for students of medicine and post-graduate students. Phil., W: B. Saunders, 1894. c. 3–147 p. il. D. (Saunders' question compends, no. 24.) cl., $1; interleaved, $1.25.

Mainly for physicians who may desire to take a post-graduate course in otology, in order to enable them, with as little preliminary reading as possible, to acquire the rudimentary facts of ostology, which are essential to appreciate properly what is seen and heard in the actual work of an ear dispensary. Also designed to supplement the necessarily brief course of lectures that undergraduates receive in otology, and to serve as a manual of reference during the period of their practice work in the dispensary.

Godkin, Edwin L. The problems of municipal government. Phil., American Acad. of Political and Social Science, [1894.] 26 p. O. (Publications of the society, no. 118.) pap., 25 c.

The editor of the Evening Post has chosen the municipal history of New York to show the details of the problems of municipal government. It is the largest and the typical American city—the city in which the tendencies which make the government of American cities difficult can best be traced. He points out that "there is a growing perception that the present condition of city governments in the United States is bringing democratic institutions into contempt the world over, and imperilling some of the best things in our civilization."

Prof. Ely in his prefatory note tells the story of this volume: "The author, a theological student, perplexed by conflicting theories and reports touching the lot of the wage-earners, their habits of thought, their struggles and their aspirations, determines to become a wage-earner himself, and, donning the garb of a workman, finds employment in a large manufacturing establishment in industrial Saxony. He mingles for three months with his fellows, who never suppose him to be anything else than a wage-earner; he shares the r life, participates in their amusements, attends their political meetings, and then tells what he has seen and heard with that simplicity which is in itself literary art of a high order." The book was greeted by the wealth and culture of Germany like a revelation, and has had many excellent practical results.

These reminiscences were written by the author when she was eighty years old; her recollections cover a period of more than fifty years. She knew personally both Napoleon and the Duke of Wellington and all the lesser personages in both France and England who figured in the dramatic period, beginning with the French Revolution and extending down to the Restoration of the French monarchy. When Louis XVIII. returned to France to the throne of his ancestors the Duchess and her family were summoned by him; she was made lady-in-waiting to the Duchesse de Berry, and continued attached to the court until after the abdication of Charles X. She became Gouvernante to the "Children of France"—the son and daughter of the Due de Berry, known in after life as the Duchess of Parma and the Comte de Chambord. Of all these noted personages she gives graphic pictures, and recounts many gossipy anecdotes. Her reminiscences of Robert Fulton, the inventor of the steamboat, are very amusing, and those of Marie Antoinette and her children quite sad.

Gonzales, (pseud.) In the clutch of Rome. Phil., The Jordan Pub. Co., 1894. c. 4+190 p. S. (Realistic ser., v. 1, no 1.) pap. 25 c.

The mother superior of a Spanish convent confesses on her deathbed that she had assisted a young novice in making her escape from the convent twelve years before, to marry a rich California merchant, who had since become United States Senator. The story tells how the priests schemed to get at the fortune of the California family. Written in most bigoted spirit.

Goodwin, Maud Wilder. The colonial cavalier; or, southern life before the Revolution; il. by Harry Edwards. N. Y., Lovell, Coryell & Co., 1894. c. 3–304 p. D. cl., $1.
As far as the provinces of the New World could represent the mother country, Virginia and Maryland reflected the Cavaliers as Massachusetts and Connecticut reflected the Puritans. Through local gossip and homely details of life and customs, this little volume offers a sense of fireside intimacy with the Colonial Cavalier with his open-handed hospitality, his reckless profusion, his chivalry to women, his quick-tempered, sword-thrusting honor, his lace ruffles, buckles, jewels and feathers. Gives glimpses of the ancestry of the Washingtons, Jeffersons, Madisons, Lees, etc. Appendix gives list of authorities on southern colonial history.

A little book written by a young man for young men. The topics discussed are "Originality," "Genius," "Individuality," etc., the discussions being all suggestive of the founding, the building, and the upholding of character. Author is general secretary of the Boston Young Men's Christian Association.

Gordon, Julien, [pseud. for Mrs. Julia Van Rensselaer Cruger.] Poppæa. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1894. c. 2–320 p. D. cl., $1.
The New York girl oddly named after the Roman empress, marries for money a man more than twice her age for whom she simply feels gratitude for the luxury with which he surrounds her. After several seasons among the "smart" set of New York and Paris, where her beauty and grace make her a conspicuous figure, she meets her fate in the person of a brilliant journalist, whose father (an American) had married a Parisian. The many vicissitudes of Poppæa's sad love-story, with its sudden and tragical ending, are related with much power.

Gospel (The) according to Peter: a study by the author of "Supernatural religion." N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1894. 3+139 p. O. cl., $2.
An examination of the interesting fragment discovered in the sepulchre of a monk in the cemetery of Akhmim, the ancient Panopolis, in Upper Egypt. It is identified with the gospel quoted by the patristic writers of the second century, and condemned as Docetic by Serapion. Its relation to the canonical gospels is carefully considered, with the result that its independence seems to be established.

Gosse, Edmund W. The Jacobean poets. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. 4+226 p. D. (University ser.) cl., net, $1.
An attempt to direct critical attention to all that was notable in English poetry from 1603–1625; the first attempt to concentrate attention on the poetry produced during the reign of James I, many writers appearing here for the first time; the writer has tried to find unfamiliar beauties rather than to reprint for the thousandth time what is already familiar.

Gossip, G. H. D. The chess pocket manual: a pocket guide for beginners and advanced players. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. 3–198 p. il. nar. D. cl., $1.
"The present little work will, it is hoped, be found a useful and handy book of reference for all classes of chess-players — alike for the novice, the practised player, and even occasionally the master. It is not merely a portable guide to the openings, but also contains what is necessary for beginners to guide them safely into the labyrinths of the game, as well as endings of games in actual play, with diagrams of exceptionally remarkable and instructive positions and a collection of carefully selected illustrative games by acknowledged celebrities, some of which will be found to be brilliants of the first water."—Preface.

Gottheil, W: S., M.D. Manual of general histology. N. Y., Sabiston, Murray & Co., 1894. c. 8+148 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.
Histology, the science of the microscopic structure of organized beings, is the foundation of the physician's art as anatomy is of the surgeon's art. The author presents this science in the simplest form, excluding all theories and moot questions and reducing the explanations of the structure of the body to terms suitable for beginners. Dr. Gottheil is Professor of Pathology to the American Veterinary College, N. Y., and connected with other hospitals and dispensaries as physician and dermatologist.

Gould, Nat, ["Verax," pseud.] Banker and broker. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, [1894.] 288 p. D. cl., $1.50; pap., 50 c.

The two leading charaeters are business men of Sydney, New South Wales, Australia; they both have a passion for horses, the result being in the banker's ease, that he robs the bank of whieh he is manager, and is sent to prison. Horses and horse-racing play a large part in the story.

Gould, Nat, ["Verax," pseud.] Harry Dale's Jockey, Wild Rose: her life and adventures. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, [1894.] 5+304 p. D. cl., $1.50; pap., 50 c.

The scene is in Sydney, New South Wales, Australia. "Wild Rose" is a beautiful young girl, who is a wonderful rider; in a jocky's dress she rides an almost unmanageable horse in a steeplechase. There are many scenes from sporting life, a murder, some detective work, and a love-affair.

Gould, Nat, ["Verax," pseud.] Jockey Jack. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, [1894.] 3–320 p. D. cl., $1.50; pap., 50 c.

A story of racing life in Australia, dealing with episodes of "training" and plots to defeat a probable cup winner. Jockey Jack is a homeless lad who enters the employ of a well-known trainer. The revelatiou of his parentage and connections furnishes the chief elemcnt in the rather sensational plot.

Gould, Nat, ["Verax," pseud.] Running it off; or, hard hit. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, [1894.] 4–310 p. D. pap., 50 c.

The scene is in Australia. Rolf Standish, the son of a bankrupt English mcrehant, going to the Colonies to try his luck in the gold-diggings, falls in with the Hon. Robert Briscoe, who offers him work at his station, where he falls in love with Briseoe's daughter. The interferencc of a wealthy suitor causes a stormy seene, and Rolf leaves Yeronaga. His story after this is highly romantic.

Gould, Nat, ["Verax," pseud.] Stuck up. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, 1894. 2–311 p. D. cl., $1.50; pap., 50 c.

Australian seenery and sporting charaeters are the ingredients of a story that has all the elements of a conventional novel: a hero always first and eapable of surmounting all difficulties, a heroine faultlessly beautiful, and a eomplieation of adventures that bring out the heroism, endurance, and thcories of life of all coneerned.

Gould, Nat, ["Verax," pseud.] Thrown away; or, Basil Ray's mistake. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, [1894.] 4–300 p. D. pap., 50 c.

The seene is Heron Hall, near Sydney in Australia. While the hall is full of guests there is an attempted robbery and the murder of the host's son-in-law. After a conventional period of mourning, the murdered man's widow betrothes herself to a former lover, Basil Ray, and the prospective bride's father declares that Basil is thrown away ou his daughter. These words are proven in a surprising way in a story with a romantie ending.

Dr. Grandin is Ohstetric Surgeon to the New York Maternity Hospital, Gyuæcologist to the French Hospital, etc.; Dr. Jarman is also Ohstetric Surgeon to the New York Maternity Hospital, Gynæcologist to the Cancer Hospital, etc. The volume is written from a teaching basis and is not crowded with statistics. The works of Barnes, Charpentier, Lusk, Cazeaux, and Oscar Schaeffer have furnished many of the wood-cuts. The photographic plates have heen prepared from nature, under personal supervision of the authors. The authors enforce strougly that wherever possible a woman should he thoroughly examined during pregnancy, that peculiar tendencies may he corrected with surgical skill.

The scene is an English country parish, in which a young, athletic, worldly, good-natured rector is tryiug to please his patrons by introducing ritualism. The hero of the book is the old, low-church, spiritual man, who has spent his days as curate-in-charge £30 given for a new article of chancel furniture disappear, and circumstantial evidence is puzzling for many months. The curate's wife and daughter and the rector's young girl cousin are remarkably well-drawn characters.

Green, Anna Katharine, [now Mrs. Rohlfs.] Miss Hurd: an enigma. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 5+357 p. D. (The Hudson lib., no. 2.) pap., 50 c.

A very beautiful woman, married against her wishes to a San Francisco millionaire, runs away from time to time, and appears under different names and earning her living by different employment from the highest to the lowest. The explanation of the many startling episodes leads to an unsatisfactory climax.

Green, Evelyn Everett. Miss Uraca. Bost., A. I. Bradley & Co., [1894.] 4–253 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Uraca Underwood was the youngest of four sisters, who were, with the exception of herself, all beauties; on account of this inferiority in personal appearance she is accorded the place of "ugly duckling." Ratcliffe Fontaine, an heir to a fortune, and likewise below the accepted standard in good looks, feeling it his imperative duty to marry, and revolting against being accepted for his fortune, meets Uraca while masquerading as a tutor; besides the interest felt in the unconventional courtship which follows, there is an additional one in the transforming process of an apparently plain girl into the beauty of the family.

The "Bunthorne" of London society, with his pessimism and artificiality, is cleverly satirized in this story of modern life; the literature and art also of today come in for witty and rather sharp criticism. The "cult of the green carnation" means a putting aside of the old ideals, and setting up in their place a dyed and artificial goddess who has no counterpart in life or nature.

Three visits to the Netherlands, and a careful study, of Dutch historians and also of Dutch-American archives were the preparations made for writing this history of Holland. Its chief aim is to show the influence which that country exerted upon the Colonial. Revolutionary, and constitutional founders of American order and liberty. The language is simple, and the narrative within the comprehension of young readers.

The home of the Elksville girls was in central Ohio; having all been converted about the same time each girl resolved to do something in the cause of the religion she had just espoused. Besides giving a record of the individual efforts and results of the five heroines, the story introduces some of the Elksville boys, notably Otis, whose sad experience brings about an unlooked-for event.

Undertakes an eliminating process, by which all stories with bad morals, evil motives, magic interpositions in favor of idlers and tricksters, cruel stepmothers and unnatural fathers are entirely excluded. The editor has taken some liberties in bringing about certain changes in plot or phrase needed to preserve the eternal spirit of love and justice which educators have decided should alone be inculcated in children's literature.

Grossmann, Mrs. Edwina Booth. Edwin Booth: recollections by his daughter, Edwina Booth Grossmann, and letters to her and his friends. N. Y., The Century Co., 1894. c. 7+292 p. pors. O. cl., $3. Edition de luxe, on Holland paper, $12.50; on Whatman paper, $25.

Mrs. Grossmann's recollections cover twenty-eight pages, and describe Edwin Booth as a loving father, most tender in all his family relations. The rest of the handsome volume is occupied with letters from Booth to his daughter and to others of his friends. They are simple and unaffected, and convey a more intimate knowledge of the character of the man than could be gained from any memoir. The regular edition and the edition de luxe are illustrated with twenty artotype reproductions of portraits, trophies, etc., of the great actor, and are printed and bound in a most artistic form.

Africa is the home of the "Children of the mist." Two brothers, Thomas and Leonard Outram, heirs to a fine English estate, are ruined by their spendthrift father and go to the Zulu country to seek fortune in the gold-fields. The eldest dies. Leonard, with a devoted Kaffir servant, a dwarf named Otter, meets a mysterious native woman, who begs him to rescue her mistress from Arab slave-traders, and promises as reward to lead him to the land of the People of the mist, where are stores of gold and jewels. Both rescue and treasure hunt are undertaken, and abound in astonishing adventures among slave-traders and savages, and the fierce priests and bloodthirsty inhabitants of the country of the mist.

This treatise on whist is based upon the system of leads known as "American leads." The principle underlying these leads is the invention of N. B. Trist, of New Orleans; and as now extended and simplified the whist world is indebted to Mr. Henry Jones ("Cavendish") of London. The purpose of this volume is to present to the student of the game the rules and maxims of play as laid down by the authorities and practised by the strongest players; and an effort has been made to simplify and render clear the applications of the many rules and maxims by copious analyses and numerous illustrations. Much space is devoted to the play of second hand, the intricacies of end-play, the department of inference, and to the management of trumps.

The time is the sixteenth century. The scene is Peru. Coitlan, an Inca princess, is the heroine. The story is founded on the incidents preceding and succeeding the Conquest of Peru by the Spaniards. The action of Pizarro is introduced. Quohitl, the lover of Coitlan, tells her romantic history, and describes the habits and customs of the Incas, and gives much of the incidental history of Peru.

Harben, W: N. The Land of the Changing Sun. N. Y., The Merriam Co., [1894.] c. 233 p. il. S. cl., 75 c.

An English and America balloonist meet with an accident and fall to earth upon a lonely island. Their bonfire attracts the attention of the inhabitants of the "Land of the Changing Sun," and they are carried off by the peculiar vehicles into a land lighted by electricity, where time is told by color, where seasons are controlled and storms only allowed at great intervals to allow the people to realize the music of thunder, where there are no sick or unhappy people, and where all mechanism has reached perfection. Full of surprises and some practical moral lessons.

ing them under their familiar English names. N. Y., The Baker & Taylor Co., [1894.] c. 11+271 p. il. S. cl., $1.

Most of the matter in this little book has appeared in articles contributed to Demorest's Family Magazine and to the New York Evening Post. The papers are free from technical terms, and are delightfully chatty, carrying the reader through the whole season with the wild flowers as they make their appearance. They are intended for those who love flowers as flowers, and who like to read about them without getting into too close contact with technical terms and classifications

Hardy draws real men and women and preserves his faculty of seeing the touch of humor in the most harrowing situations.

Hare, A: J: C. The story of two noble lives being memorials of Charlotte, Countess Canning, and Louisa, Marchioness of Waterford. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., 1893 [1894.] 3 v., 6+381; 4+489; 3+495 p. pors. il. D. cl., $8.

The work begins in the third quarter of the eighteenth century, long before the "two noble lives" came into existence. Lady Hardwicke and Lady Stuart de Rothesay, the grandmother and mother of the two beautiful women designated by the title, contribute two charming collections of prefatory letters. Lady Hardwicke's husband was Lord Lieutenant of Ireland from 1801 to 1806, and she gives some amusing sketches of Dublin society of that time. Lady Stuart de Rothesay's letters are dated from the English Embassy at Paris, and are rich in reminiscences of men and events of the period. Her daughters, Lady Canning and Lady Waterford, belonged to the second quarter of the present century. Mr. Hare gives interesting details of their childhood in France and England and of their marriages. Lady Canning's married life was spent in India during the eventful period of the mutiny, her journal being full of the thrilling scenes there enacted and of accounts of the actors in them. Lady Waterford spent her long widowhood among her husband's tenants in Ireland. With many domestic details are anecdotes and recollections of some famous people.

Harland, Marion, [pseud. for Mrs. Mary Virginia Terhune.] Mr. Wayt's wife's sister. N. Y., The Cassell Pub. Co., [1894.] c. 4+314 p. D. cl., $1.

Mr. Wayt is a minister with a great gift of oratory, unbounded self-appreciation, and total lack of consideration for his wife and five children. The wife adores him; his wife's sister keeps the house together during the many changes of parishes. At the time of the story he is settled in a New Jersey country parish. A crippled daughter is made a very interesting character. By chance the family skeleton is seen by the lover of Mr. Wayt's wife's sister. Two other stories are included: "A social success" and "The articles of separation."

The story of a refined, proud woman, left, after seventeen years of married life, with six children dependent on a married brother. The husband and father, after posing for years as a misunderstood man too fine for daily work, absconds with a woman after embezzling money. Marion Harland teaches many of her helpful lessons to this family by means of nurses and clergymen. Her specialties of cooking and the physical and mental training of young girls are skilfully worked into this tale, of which the scene is first Brooklyn, later New Jersey.

This little book is a modest attempt to secure better preparation for the language work of the high school by a scientific and thought-inspiring method of presenting English grammar, by a reduction of the number of facts presented, to the few actually essential, by increased emphasis on certain matters often neglected but essential to any real mastery of the subject, and by adapting the terminology and method of presentation more closely to that used in German and Latin grammars. These "Inductive studies" were printed three years ago, and bound for ready reference with the "Inductive Latin primer" of the same authors. They have been now carefully revised and somewhat enlarged.

Harraden, Beatrice. In varying moods. American copyright ed. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 6+286 p. S. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Seven stories by the author of "Ships that pass in the night." They are all of a somewhat sombre tint, and several are quite fantastic. The opening tale, "At the Green Dragon," gives a charming picture of domestic life in Shropsbire; Hieronymus Howard, a literary man, is detained by an accident at the "Green Dragon"—a pleasant country inn—and a story grows up around him, which has an unconventional heroine and a sad ending; it is not, however, devoid of a certain grim humor. Besides this story are: "The painter and his picture," "The umbrella-mender," "A bird of passage," "The clockmaker and his wife," "Sorrow and joy," and "An idyl of London."

Tbe story takes place at Petershof, a winter resort for consumptives, in the Swiss mountains. The chief characters are Robert Allitsen, a rich young Englishman whose days are numbered, and Beriardine Holme, an intellectual young English girl, who has broken down under a strain of work in teaching, writing, etc. Their story is a simple, every-day one, the novelty being in tbe telling, and in the many shrewd and philosophical remarks of the writer, betraying a deep study of life and human nature. The apt title is taken from Longfellow—"Ships tbat pass in a night, and speak each other in passing," etc.

Tbe characters are at first a little girl who lives with her grandfather the owner of a small second-hand book-store, and an old man who keeps a bird-sbop, and has a parrot who bas been taugbt to say "Things will take a turn." Business has been so bad, that money is very scarce in both shops, when things do take an unexpected turn. The little girl, in the absence of her grandfather, serves a customer who takes a great fancy to ber, and makes her the companion of his invalid daughter: and tbough some sickness and trouble intervene, permaneut prosperity is restored.

Harris, Frank. Elder Conklin, and other stories. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. c. 2+277 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Stories of the present, with their scene in the far west. "Elder Conklin" is a fine character-study and an odd combination of heroic qualities and petty meannesses. His daughter is beautiful and ignorant and vain. She throws herself at a young schoolmaster from Boston, boarding in her father's house, and when she realizes his contempt, elopes with a "flashy" elderly lawyer. The other stories are: The sheriff and his partner; A modern idyll: Satin Crow: The best man in Garotte; and Gulmore the Boss. The author is late editor of the Fortnightly Review.

Harris, Joel Chandler, ["Uncle Remus," pseud.] Little Mr. Thimblefinger and his queer country; what the children saw and heard there; il. by Oliver Herford. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 2+230 p. sq. O. cl., $2.

A series of adventures of a small boy and girl, with a small black nurse, in the magical land in which Mrs. Meadows, Brer Rabbit, and Uncle Remus' other characters live. Mr. Herford's pictures are spirited and very funny. Of the stories the author says himself: "some of them were gathered from the negroes, some are Middle-Georgia folk-lore stories, and no doubt belong to England, and some are merely inventions."

Harrison, Mrs. Constance Cary, [Mrs. Burton Harrison.] A bachelor maid; il. by Irving R. Wiles. N. Y., The Century Co., 1894. c. 4+224 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A novel of contemporary New York society—"deliciously modern in its sketching of the everlasting woman's question." It has just been completed in the Century Magazine. It is the story of a pure and noble woman, animated by a desire to benefit her sex, and dazzled by the prospect of a higher womanhood, yet hardly understanding the things to be accomplished or the means of their accomplishment. The reader is introduced to fashionable New York drawing-rooms, the "swell" clubs, and to the fads of metropolitan society.

Harrison, F: The meaning of history, and other historical pieces. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. c. 7+482 p. O. cl., $2.25.

The chapters on "The meaning of history" occupy about one-half of this volume of collected historical essays. The author subdivides his subject into the use of history, the connection of history, some great books of history (giving a choice of books to be obtained in the English language which together give a comprehensive view of authentic history from the beginning of the human race), a criticism of the manner of teaching history at the universities and the French revolutions and their consequences. Many of the essays have appeared in The Forum and The Fortnightly Review. The more important are four chapters on The city—ancient, mediæval, modern, and ideal, essays of Constantinople, Paris, London, and the sacredness of ancient buildings.

Hayes, M. Horace. Among men and horses; il. by reproductions from photographs. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1894. 10+358 p. por. il. O. cl., $4.

The life of Captain M. Horace Hayes, a well-known English trainer and owner of horses, and also a writer on the horse of such books as "The points of the horse," "Riding," "Veterinary notes," etc. His wife, also a skilled horsewoman and a writer on the subject, figures largely in the book. It begins with Hayes' early life in Ireland, his experience afterward in India in the Royal Artillery, and also as a horse breaker and trainer; he travels back and forward from India to South Africa, and from England to China, his interests being entirely among horses and turfmen; of these he tells innumerable anecdotes, at the same time giving interesting and valuable information to lovers of sport.

The author, who is professor of history in the Worcester Polytechnic Institute, traces the beginning of representation and suffrage from the days when Massachusetts was a religious oligarchy and church membership a condition of citizenship, through the manifold changes by which tolerance in religion at last found a footing among the pilgrims and the suffrage was given regardless of personal creed.

The volumes embrace twenty-seven sketches on unfamiliar Japan, the life of the uu-Europeanized Japan which the author has studied for four years under specially advantageous conditions. He has given special attention to popular religious ideas, particularly to those derived from Buddhism, which he studies and compares with Christian creeds from the standpoint of an agnostic. Every day he has found more and more charm in the extraordinary goodness, the miraculous patience, the never-failing courtesy, and the intuitive charity of the great common people of Japan.

A young girl, Andrée Nugent, of English and French parentage, is the "ward in chancery:" her parents have been dead for several years, and she has been the barely tolerated inmate of a Bohemian pension, kept by her hard French aunt in Paris, when unexpectedly she finds herself heiress to a large fortune. Her English half-uncle, Mr. Landon, is the executor of the will, and she is obliged to go to London and live under his roof until she reaches her majority. The Landons are commonplace, respectable, well-to-do people, utterly out of harmony with Andrée's nature. The account of her uncongenial life among them, of her own special friends, her love-story, and Richard Landon's attempts to win her for her fortune, make up a quiet, readable story.

German ed., by Prof. Louis H. Tafel. Phil., Boericke & Tafel, [1894.] c. 7+201 p. il. O. cl., net, $1.50.

This work was first published about ten years back. The author ascribes the origin of internal diseases to a diminished electric force. This condition he traces to the loss of electrifying blood-salts, through improper feeding or unfit hygienic conditions. Sulphur, lime, and iron are the great needs of the body, and food must be chosen to supply them. The value of chemistry is brought out and attention called to scientific discoveries that may be traced to folk-medicine. Rather underates the standpoints hitherto customary in the study of anatomy, physiology, pathology, and therapeutics.

Hensel, Julius, and others. Bread from stones: a new and rational system of land fertilization and physical regeneration; from the German. Phil., A. J. Tafel, 1894. c. 135 p. S. bds., 25 c.

A brief outline of the theories propounded by Hensel and put into practice in Germany for the last five or six years with amazing success. Hensel saw that plants require healthy food in order to flourish as much as man or beast does, and that sewage, etc., was not a healthy food—or fertilizer. In his search for plant food he went back to the beginning, and found it in the primeval rocks. It is this stone-dust used as a fertilizer of which the book gives an account.

The story of Tom Wade, an English lad of sixteen, who crosses the ocean and goes out to Denver to join his uncle, who has been mining and hunting in the west for many years. The date of the story is over thirty years ago, when that portion of the United States in which the scene is laid was wholly unexplored. Tom's life is marked by a succession of daring adventures with Indians and hair-breadth escapes. But finally Tom and his uncle discover a gold-mine and return to England with ample fortunes.

Henty, G: A. When London burned: a story of Restoration times and the great fire; il. by J. Finnemore. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 6-403 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

A story of adventure, intrigue, and heroic achievement, with a dashing young hero. His father, Si Aubrey Shenshone, had devoted himself and his fortune to his monarch, Charles I, only to be left to die in poverty. The hero, almost destitute, makes a brave fight against misfortune, winning his way from an humble beginning to the position his birth entitles him to fill. He serves in the war against the Dutch, and after many exciting experiences during the great fire and plague of London finally regains possession of his father's estate.

Henty, G: A. Wulf the Saxon: a story of the Norman conquest; il. by Ralph Peacock. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 3-383 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Wulf of Steyning is a page at King Edward's court when the story opens; he is a young fellow of fifteen or sixteen, of evident Saxon descent; a quarrel with a fellow-page, who is a Norman, banishes him for a time from the court. Through all the thrilling events of the Norman conquest the young hero bears a prominent part, yielding finally to William the Conqueror, by whom he is advanced in power and influence. The book presents a vivid picture of this important period of English history, and ends with a graphic description of the battle of Hastings.

The writer had been engaged to superintend some dyeing processes in Woodbine. Here he came into contact with Hiram Golf, the pastor of the church, a Mr. Van Brunt, and a few other choice spirits. They formed "The Fireside Club," in which they discussed matters of the life here and the life hereafter and gave each other hopeful, practical encouragement of all kinds. Van Brunt, who had lost his wife and ten-year-old boy on the same day, was brought from a state bordering on insanity to one of peace and hope. The writer is former pastor of the Church of the Messiah, N. Y. City, and the author of "Hiram Golf's religion," published in 1893 anonymously.

Heredia, José-Maria de. La nonne Alferez; il. by Dan. Vierge. N. Y., Meyer Bros., 1894. 8+175 p. T. (Collection Lemerre illustrée.) pap., 60 c.

A translation of the story of the nun Alferez, which was written by its heroine, Catlina de Eranso, and first published in Spanish in 1625. It is a true story. The nun was a novice in a Dominican convent. She fled, dressed in man's clothes, travelled, robbed, gambled, fought battles and duels, and led the wildest life, remaining a wholly chaste woman. When she returned to Spain she was famous and revered, and was the only woman privileged to wear men's clothes. The original editions of this story are very scarce and others are not accurate.

While musing over the harrowing details of a sensational murder, a London barrister is astounded by seeing Elmersley, the supposed murderer, sitting opposite him in his chambers. Elmersley claims that he is an apparition, and insists upon giving the details of a strange story, in which supernatural agencies bring about the important issues. A tragedy of error; Dandy's license; The gray friar of St. Drome; and From Lethe's banks, are the titles of the other stories.

Although Paul Heyse is the author of two strong novels, "Children of the world" and "In Paradise," his work during the past fifteen years has been confined almost entirely to short stories, of which he has produced an enormous quantity. Three specimens are offered in this volume, "A divided heart," "Minka," and "Rothenburg on the Tauber." They illustrate German home life and the domestic virtues.

Hicks, J: The man from Oshkosh: a story in several chapters and a preface. Chic., C: H. Sergel Co., 1894. c. 6+406 p. D. (Sergel's international lib., v. 1, no. 7.) cl., $1.25; pap., 50 c.

The hero of the story is Horatio Juniper, whose parents emigrated from Maine to the far west when he was a little boy; one accident after another deprives him of father, mother, and several brothers and sisters, so when he comes of age he is entirely alone in the world. His adventures are followed minutely. After working in a saw-mill and in a logging camp, he goes to New York, and finally enters business in Peru, where he is very successful; comes back to Oshkosh, finds himself a wealthy man by the increased value of some land he had held, and marries the girl he loves. The author is the late minister of the United States to Peru.

Hickson, Sydney J. The fauna of the deep sea. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. 9+169 p. il. D. (Modern science ser., no. 6.) cl., $1.

Since it has been found that animals can and do live even at the greatest depths of the ocean, scientists have been continually adding to the valuable literature of that subject: their knowledge given in detail is generally embraced in the reports of the scientific expeditions fitted out by our own and foreign governments, and in memoirs and notes scattered through the English and foreign scientific journals. This little book brings together in a small compass some of the more important facts and considerations that are included in this great mass of literature, and presents them in a form for popular reading.

Higginson, Mrs. S. J. The Bedouin girl. N. Y., J. Selwin Tait & Sons, 1894. c. 3+347 p. il. D. cl., $1.25; (Tait's illustrated lib., no. 5.) pap., 50 c.

The Haj caravan had just started on its annual pilgrimage from Bagdad to Meeca, when Obeyd Alee, a young Turkish official, travelling as the guest of the prince in command of the caravan, was surprised at an untimely hour, by the sudden entrance into his tent of a beautiful Bedouin girl, who was flying from an Arab sheikh, who would forcibly make her his wife. Obeyd rescues Feydeh, as the girl is called, places her under the protection of a good man, who educates her. Feydeh becomes a beautiful woman, and loves her first benefactor. Her story is one of love, jealousy, and intrigue, with scenes from eastern life, as the women of the Orient know it at present.

A life-like picture is presented of the business classes in ancient Rome about nineteen centuries ago; the object of the story is "to show the remarkable manner in which history is repeating itself in modern cities, such as New York."

Hiltzheimer, Jacob. Extracts from the diary of Jacob Hiltzheimer of Philadelphia, 1765–1798; ed. by his great-grandson, Jacob Cox Parsons. Phil., Press of W: F. Fell & Co., 1893 [1894.] 4–269 p. O. cl., $1.50; $2.

Jacob Hiltzheimer was born at Mannheim on the Rhine, and in 1748, when nineteen years of age, came to Philadelphia. He soon became apprenticed to John Nagle, a silversmith on Front Street. During the war for independence he stuck by the Colonies. He held very important city positions for many years. He died of yellow fever in 1798. His daily record of thirty years affords evidence of the high esteem in which he was held by his fellow-citizens.

"The highest problem in the physical sciences is the determination of the constitution of matter. The sciences of chemistry, physics, and crystallography are equally interested and equally required in the solution of the problem of atom-mechanics. Before we can proceed to the solution of any problem in mechanics we must know the distribution of the masses as to weight and place. Accordingly, we begin atom-mechanics by the determination of the weight and the form of the atoms. The solution of the first of these problems is given in the present volume."—Preface.

Hinton, R: J. John Brown and his men; with some account of the roads they travelled to reach Harper's Ferry. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls Co., 1894. c. 752 p. por. D. (American reformers' ser., no. 12.) cl. $1.50.

John Brown was born at Torrington, Connecticut, May 9, 1800, and was hung at Charleston, West Virginia, December 2, 1859. This volume is written in most enthusiastic appreciation of the anti-slavery hero, who was the master-spirit of the convention which met in Canada in May, 1859, and who organized an invasion of Virginia for the purpose of liberating the slaves. On the 16th of October he surprised Harper's Ferry and captured the arsenal and armory. He was wounded, captured, and hung, but his bravery was a great encouragement to the soldiers called out about a year after to take part in the Civil War.

Teresa Warcop, an English heiress, who is accredited with being rather plain in personal appearance, falls in love with Sidney Wiche, an aspirant for the hand of Lady Mallinger, a very young widow. Just after the latter accepts Wiche as her suitor a quarrel between the two rivals and an interview between Wiche and his betrothed causes some diversion, and brings about the unexpected ending of a decidedly unromantic love-story.

Hobson, J: A. The evolution of modern capitalism: a study of machine production. N. Y., imported by C: Scribner Sons, 1894. 15+388 p. D. (Contemporary science ser.) cl., $1.25.

Selecting the operation of modern machinery and motors for special attention, the author has sought to enforce a clearer recognition of organic unity, by dwelling upon the more material aspects of industrial change which mark off the last century and a half from all former industrial epochs. In the final chapters he indicates the chief bearings of the changes of industrial structure upon a few of the deeper issues of social life, in particular upon the problem of the Industrial Town, and the position of woman as an industrial competitor. The keynote of his claim is that "there is always room at the top."

44–67 p. O. (Publications of the society, no. 105.) pap. 25 c.

"It is my object in this paper," says Mr. Hobson, "to show the wide divergence which the theory of distribution presents according as we regard it to deal with objective or with subjective 'costs' and 'utilities,' and to indicate the nature of the connection which exists between the objective and the subjective dividend or surplus."

"This book is not written primarily for advanced students in political science, but for the average intelligent beginner. It consists chiefly of lectures delivered to the senior class of Union College during the spring term of 1893, and is published with the hope that it may stimulate the reader to an increased interest in the problems discussed, and help him, in some degree, to their right solution. The endeavor has been made to set forth in a clear and concise manner the ethical principles involved, and to show how, under present conditions and limitations, they are to be applied."—Preface.

The question of individual rescue-work among fallen women is the motive of the novel. Miss Traill inherits a fortune in middle life, and is led to use it for the benefit of the unfortunates of her own sex. Her adoption of a young girl, who has been rescued from a life of shame, and the girl's subsequent career are full of practical lessons. The scenes and characters are English.

Readers and critics are asked in a prefatory note to take this work for what it purports to be: not a book on the history of the French Revolution, but merely some lectures on it, composed principally with a view to illustrating and criticising some of its main features by the opinions and career of the foremost political genius of its first phase. V. 1 contains: The heritage of Louis XIV. and Louis XV.; Paris and Versailles; Mending the old garments with new cloth; The Revolution before the Revolution; A typical family tragedy of portentous historical import; The states-general; A rudderless craft in a storm-tossed sea. V. 2 contains: The party of one man? The 5th and 6th of October, 1789, and the memoir of the 15th; The decisive defeat of the 7th of November; Other defeats and mischievous victories; Mirabeau and the court; The end of a unique tragedy.

Prepared on the same principles as the first volume published in 1889, but independent of that volume, and can be used by classes beginning the study of Homer as well as by more advanced classes

Hon. Stanbury (The) and others, by two. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 190 p. nar. D. (The incognito lib., no. 2.) cl., 50 c.

The Honorable Stanbury Marks was a younger son of independent means; he was a commonplace fellow, with no great virtues or vices, leading a selfish life, when in his fortieth year he accidentally met a passée dancer of the London Folly dying with consumption; he loves and marries her, and society gives him the cold shoulder; but she proves to be the one ennobling feature in his life. The other stories are "Poor Miss Skeet" and "An indigent gentlewoman."

Hope, Anthony, [pseud. for Anthony Hope Hawkins.] A change of air. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1894. c. 10+248 p. por. S. cl., 75 c.

Dale Bannister, a Victorian poet, both famous and rich, rents a house in a small English town, with the design of studying country life and country people. He carries with him from London a congenial circle of men and women friends, whose wild doings greatly scandalize the good people of Market Denborough. The poet's earlier anarchistic writings are recalled as evidence of his total depravity, and for a time he and his friends are ostracized by society. The tide, however, turns, but not until a sad tragedy is enacted and a fresh love-story almost spoiled. Prefaced by an interesting biographical sketch of the author, who is the writer of "The prisoner of Zenda."

Hope, Anthony, [pseud. for Anthony Hope Hawkins.] The Dolly dialogues. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1894. 2+195 p. il. nar. S. cl., 75 c.

A slim story of London society people is told through a series of witty, amusing dialogues.

Hope, Anthony, [pseud. for Anthony Hope Hawkins.] The god in the car: a novel. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 3+240 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 154.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Introduces a set of London men and women who eat, drink, breathe, and wear Omofago an African purchase of which they are trying to boom the stock and to intersect it with railroads. The leading spirit is "the god in the car," a man who makes use of all his friends and the highest and holiest things to attain his selfish ends. A woman's heart-history and the attempts of a money king to save her from herself are worked into the plot by the deft hand that drew "The prisoner of Zenda." The machinations of speculators have been carefully studied.

Hope, Anthony, [pseud. for Anthony Hope Hawkins.] The indiscretion of the duchess: being a story concerning two ladies, a nobleman, and a necklace. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1894. c. 5+222 p. 1 il. S. cl., 75 c.

Two young men, one of French birth, the other of English, with more time than discretion and in search of amusement travel from London to Normandy to visit "the duchess" in the absence of her jealous husband. This is the beginning of a series of misadventures and mishaps, which are often amusing and at times tragical. The duke returns unexpectedly, bringing with him an English singer and her mother; he presents his wife's diamonds to the singer, and the duchess leaves his roof. The diamonds are stolen and found again—and affairs generally come to a satisfactory conclusion.

Hope, Anthony, [pseud. for Anthony Hope Hawkins.] The prisoner of Zenda: being the history of three months in the life of an English gentleman. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1894. c. 4+225 p. il. nar. S. cl., 75 c.

A bar-sinister in the lineage of Rudolf Rassendylls, a young Englishman of to-day, accounts for his having the long nose and red hair of the German house of Elphberg, the reigning family of Ruritania. Wishing to make the acquaintance of his unknown cousins, he sets out for Ruritania to witness the coronation of Rudolf the Fifth, at Strelsau. By accident he meets the king at Zenda the night before the coronation, and has a drinking bout with him. In the morning the king cannot be aroused for the coronation, and the English Rudolf is persuaded to personate him, in order to save his throne and intended bride from the wicked designs of his brother, Black Michael. The incidents from here are rapid and romantic and delightfully improbable; they include love intrigues, political plots, and counterplots; the imprisonment of the real king at Zenda, and many attempts at rescue; midnight rides, sudden attacks, and numerous murders. By the author of "Half a hero."

Hopkins, Isabella T. Endeavor Chris. Bost., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., [1894.] c. 3–401 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

Endeavor Chris was a waif. His mother died on a journey, after giving him birth, and he was taken by friendly hands and left in the care of good Deacon Weatherby. The deacon's wife objects to the intruder, but all the rest of the household fall in love with him, and he is given a good home. How the boy grew up to a sweet and beautiful child, whose motto was "I'll endeavor," and how his mother's relatives, after long wondering and sorrow, find him and claim him as their own, the story tells in a most interesting way.

Hopkins, Rufus C. Roses and thistles. San Francisco, Cal., W: Doxey, 1893 [1894.] c. 3–480 p. por. O. cl., $2.

A collection of poems covering almost every event and thought in the long life of the Californian author. Their general tone is cheerful.

A story of the Pacific coast, dealing with the disappearance of a beautiful girl, who is traced to Portland, Oregon, where she is embarked on a steamer bound for China; there is an exciting pursuit and search, in which many extraordinary things happen and many strange people are introduced.

Hopkins, Seward W. Two gentlemen of Hawaii: a novel; il. by M. Colin. [Also] The stolen veil. N. Y., Rob. Bonner's Sons, [1894.] c. 4–244; 63 p. D. (Ledger lib., no. 114.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The story deals with the recent revolution in Hawaii, the deposition of Queen Liliuokalani, the founding of the provisional government under President Dole, and the offer of the Hawaiian Islands to the United States. The principal characters are Americans, strongly in favor of annexation. There are graphic descriptions of native life.

The first series was entered in "Weekly Record," P. W., Dec. 17, '85, [726.] The authors are Unitarians, full of the highest poetical conception of the fatherhood of God. There are fifty-seven short poems on every variety of subjects, thirty-two by F. L. Hosmer, and twenty-five by William C. Gannett.

Hosmer, Ja. K. How Thankful was bewitched. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 3+299 p. D. (The Hudson lib., no. 3.) pap., 50 c.

The novel is founded on an event in the history of Meadowboro, supposed to have occurred in the days of Cotton Mather. An old record, dating from the time the town was a Puritan outpost, and purporting to be written by Thankful Pumry, is authority for a singular story, which presents the remarkable incidents in the life of Thankful before and after she was taken into captivity by the French and Indians; in brief, effort is made to show that a bell formerly cast for the Jesuits is endowed with supernatural power, and that the said bell is the cause of the strange experience chronicled.

Howard, Oliver Otis. Isabella of Castile; il. with photogravures and text il. by F. A. Carter. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls Co., 1894. c. 340 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Queen Isabella lived through four wars, and, in the main, the history of those wars is the history of her actual life. The author, himself a soldier, took a brief leave of absence and visited Spain, making there a full and sympathetic study of the period covered, and also careful military researches; he also visited Isabella's place of birth, baptism, childhood, education, betrothal, marriage, and burial. The result is a sympathetic and impartial biography, based on entirely new material. Author is a Major-General U. S. A., on the retired list.

It is intended primarily for Catholic readers, and is an exposition of the ceremonial of the sacrifice of the mass, showing the reason and meaning of the ritual with which it is surrounded. Rules for communicants are appended; also brief "instructions" for baptism, churching of women, and matrimony.

Hubbard, Elbert. Forbes of Harvard. Bost., Arena Pub. Co., 1894. c. 3+327 p. D. (Arena lib. ser., no. 31.) pap., 50 c.

Arthur Ripley Forbes belonged to the class of '52. It is claimed that the accompanying volume is an orderly arrangement of letters selected from a mass of correspondence that fell into the hands of Mr. Forbes' executor after his sad death. These letters bring the reader in touch with many of Col. Forbes' contemporaries. Among the writers of the letters are Edmund Hosmer, Marie Meredith, Honor Harold, who lived in the home of Bronson Alcott, and many other noted Bostonians. Ralph Waldo Emerson is mentioned throughout a correspondence, which is in brief a reflex of the literary, religious, and social life of Boston in the early fifties.

Hubbard, Elbert. No enemy (but himself). N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 6+283 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

After an eloquent appeal by a clergyman at a meeting called to discuss the terrible condition of the idle poor, a young club-man boldly asserts that it is only individual laziness and love of roaming that leads men to become tramps, not necessity, and not the grinding of capitalists. This club-man's nature demanded that kind of life, and the book is made up of the adventures he encountered in many tramping sprees in the west.

Hunt, Violet. The maiden's progress: a novel in dialogue. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 2+252 p. D. cl., $1.

A clever novel, in which the characters literally "speak for themselves," for the story is told entirely in dialogue or soliloquy. The maiden is introduced on the eve of her "coming-out" ball, and is carried from the tremors and gushings of the débutante to the aplomb of the woman of the world. Moderna is a fin de siècle girl of the "Dodo" type. She is rich, radical, eccentric, goes to Bohemian clubs, indulges in skirt-dancing, journalism, and art, and is "quite independent—quite." She becomes at last disillusionized, tired of "independence," and her "progress" naturally ends with the conclusion of her career as a "bachelor-girl." Fashionable London society life is excellently sketched. There are many characters, and the dialogue is frequently witty and sparkling.

The guardians of Margaret Dering, one of "the children of circumstance," are two unlovely maiden aunts who belong to the faith known as Plymouth Brethren. While they are occupied in prayer and in denunciation of all that is beautiful in life—Margaret, left to her own devices, falls in love with a young married man. After several exciting episodes in her life with her aunts, Margaret leaves home and hides herself in London in the house of her old nurse, where she afterward tries to do good work in redeeming the fallen women who frequent the streets about her. The central motive is Margaret's love and the action of the wife of the man she loves.

The heroine is as rare a specimen among women as a "blue chrysanthemum or a yellow aster" is among the flowers—hence the title. She is a woman apparently without a heart, and is the result of her training and inheritance. Her father and mother are scientists, whose whole time is occupied in researches and studies for a book they are writing together. Gwen and her brother are more an annoyance to their parents than a pleasure. They are trained by tutors, and are not allowed any religious education until their intellects are sufficiently matured to judge of the truth or falsity of the doctrines of Christianity. Gwen enters society a great beauty and a brilliantly intellectual woman, but seems without the power of loving. Her awakening under the influence of marriage and motherhood is the story.

Based wholly upon the volumes of evidence published by the Royal Commission on Mining Royalties. Presents the precise issues raised and contested before the Commission. The constant recurrence of views and statement in newspapers and speeches which the Commission has clearly established to be wholly erroneous, it is thought, calls for such a book within the comprehension and purse limits of many debarred from the Blue-Books. Refers wholly to laws of the United Kingdom.

James, Ja. Alton. English institutions and the American Indian. Balt., The Johns Hopkins Press, 1894. c. 3-59 p. O. (Johns Hopkins Univ. studies, 12th ser., no. 10.) pap., 25 c.

The writer, who is professor of history at Cornell College, Iowa, has chosen Massachusetts, New York, and Virginia as types in an exposition intended to prove that "the Indian department of our government, in nearly all its varied changes, finds a more or less developed prototype in one or more of the original colonies." To do this, he traces the history of the Indian in America from 1600 to 1775, and shows the very important factor he became in the great rivalry of the English and French nations for the possession of American land.

Jamison, Mrs. C. V. Toinette's Philip. N. Y., The Century Co., 1894. c. '93, '94. 7+236 p. il. O. cl., $1.50.

The scene of this story, like the author's "Lady Jane," is laid in New Orleans. The characters are a pretty boy, "Toinette's Philip," who sells flowers, a little girl, "Dea," who carries around wax figures of Victor Hugo's characters, that her sick father models, and a colored "mammy," who keeps a lunch-stand. An artist from the north becomes interested in the children and finally adopts Philip and takes him to New York. Both the children discover rich relatives and have romantic histories.

Jerome, Jerome K. John Ingerfield, and other stories. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1894. 4+424 p. por. il. S. cl., 75 c.

John Ingerfield is a serious tale of old London, a story of indifference turned into love from devotion to a common cause of mercy. "The woman of Sater" is a gruesome study of the growth of madness exhibited in letters from the madman. "Variety Patter" relates to a well-known lady of the music-hall; and "The Lease of the Cross Keys" is a humorous tale of mistaken identity, in which a bishop of the English Church and a dissipated journalist are the leading characters.

According to an ancient tradition of the Von Brinkman family, a piece of territory called the Haunted Valley was awarded to Sir Maurice Von Brinkman by his sovereign. Determining to conquer the supernatural monsters said to inhabit this land, Sir Maurice invades the precincts of Querquex, whom he finally makes his prisoner, demanding as a price of the latter's freedom the possession of a red jar, which will convey to its owner the full rights over the dread valley. The story opens about a hundred years after this incident, telling how a young descendant of this knight was impressed by a first sight of the talismanic jar, how he is induced to barter it for a magic bow, and introducing some of the strange consequences of a boy's rash act.

New edition, reprinted in full from the excessively rare original issue of 1862, including the portrait and plate of that edition. The history of Richard, his intrigues to reach the throne of England, and the romantic story of the princes in the tower, interests every student of history. Mr. Jesse ably and critically discusses Richard's personal appearance, his acts and the motives that prompted them, and with the biographies of his chief contemporaries has produced a work that gives an accurate picture of those stirring times.

"When I was invited to prepare this biography for the Great Commanders Series the duty was accepted with unaffected diffidence. There are about five hundred biographies of George Washington, originals and translations, published in almost every language of modern times, as well as Greek and Latin versions of them. It was therefore reasonably clear that no new facts could be educed to throw light on his career or his character. This biography is believed to be the first attempt to consider the military character of Washington, and to write his life as a soldier."—Preface.

The fifteen published works of Mr. Hardy are carefully considered. The author makes no claim to pass sentence upon them, he does not determine their absolute value, or assign them a rank and place. He considers Mr. Hardy a great artist, but is fully alive to his spirit of revolt, which has marred a few of his late works especially. Mr. Johnson's criticisms give a fair, exhaustive essay on the fiction of the century. The bibliography covers about forty pages, but much of them are left blank for additions. The paper and print are rich. The dissertation on "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" is specially fine from literary and psychological standpoints.

Johnson, P. Demarest. Claudius, the cowboy of Ramapo Valley: a story of Revolutionary times in southern New York. Middletown, N. Y., Slauson & Boyd, prs., 1894. c. 2–206 p. D. cl., $1.
The story opens in the autumn of 1774, in that part of New York which is now known as Rockland County. Claudius Smith, the Tory leader of a reckless band of mountaineers, is a real person, who is still spoken of in that part of the country as "the scourge of the Highlands." His bloody deeds were finally expiated on the gallows. The story has a central romance, and gives an excellent account of the historical Revolutionary events which occurred in this locality.

Johnstone, D: Lawson. In the land of the golden plume: a tale of adventure; il. by W. S. Stacey. N. Y., T: Whittaker, [1894.] 4–312 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.
Although the scene opens in Hamilton Gap, North Queensland, some of the most adventurous episodes occur in New Guinea; one of the principal characters, named Dennison, goes there in fulfilment of a trust, and his sons join him later. A search for Great Nugget, an idol, an encounter with the Head hunters, and the festival of Koa-Punu, are the most exciting incidents of a story which has also romantic issues, and which describes many of the rites of the savage tribes of New Guinea.

Johnstone, Edith. A sunless heart. [Anon.] N. Y., Ward, Lock & Bowden, Ltd., 1894. 11+220+220 p. D. cl., $1.25.
The story opens with the life of Gaspar and Gasparine, twin brother and sister and the children of Sir Gaspar O'Neill, an impoverished Irish baronet, with a weakness for whiskey; their dreadful life of misery and want and final separation from their father are painfully portrayed. They go to Sterling to teach, and here Gaspar dies. In the moment of Gasparine's greatest despair a beautiful figure appears, a woman who is a lecturer in the woman's college, who becomes her guardian angel and her dearest friend. By degrees the story of this character—Lotus Grace—is told. It is that of a woman who has been cruelly wronged in her youth, and is full of fearful pictures. From beginning to end the book is hopelessly pessimistic and painfully sad.

Joinville, François Ferdinand Philippe L: Marie D'Orleans (Prince de.) Memoirs (Vieux souvenirs) of the Prince de Joinville; from the French by Lady Mary Loyd; il. from drawings by the author. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1895 [1894.] c. 4+371 p. O. cl., $2.25.

The Prince de Joinville was the third son of Louis Philippe and was born in 1818. He was for many years in the French navy, becoming a rear-admiral in 1844. On the breaking out of our late war in 1861, he came to this country with his young son, and his nephews, the Comte de Paris and the Duc de Chartres, the two latter becoming members of McClellan's staff. The present volume ends with the year 1848, the year of the revolution which deprived his father of his throne The volume is rich in anecdote and personal reminiscences.

Jókai, Maurice. Eyes like the sea: a novel; from the Hungarian, by R. Nisbet Bain. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. 12+396 p. D. cl., $1.

This novel of modern Hungarian life was crowned by the Hungarian Academy as the best Magyar novel of the year 1890. While to a large extent autobiographical, telling a great deal about Jókai himself, his home, and his early struggles, both as an author and a patriot, the work is essentially a novel, he being one of the chief characters in his romance. The interest centres in his relations with a certain "Bessy," who in vain tempts him, though rich in charms. "Bessy's" adventures and the history of her five husbands is full of humor. The Hungarian Revolution of 1848 is an episode.

Jókai, Maurice. In love with the czarina, and other stories; from the original Hungarian with the author's special permission, by L: Felbermann. N. Y., F. Warne & Co., [1894.] 5–156 p. por. D. (Library of continental authors, no. 10.) pap., 50 c.

The initial story is founded on an episode of Russian history; the scene opens before the death of Peter III. Catherine II. is the heroine, and Ufa Pugaseeff, the adventurer, is the hero. The time is the eighteenth century. The titles of the four other stories are: Tamerlan the Tartar; Valdivia; Bizeban; and The moonlight somnambulist. The short stories belong to Jókai's earliest writings. The translator gives an introductory sketch of Jókai and his writings.

Contents: The work and the day; The three versions of the poem; The author's name, life, and character; The world; The church; The art and aim of Langland; Place of Langland in mystic literature. Appendix contains extracts from the writings of Langland. The author aims to restore to popular knowledge the personality of "Piers the Plowman," otherwise William Langland.

Justice, Maibelle. Love affairs of a worldly man. Chic., F. Tennyson Neely, 1894. 2+311 p. D. (Neely's lib. of choice literature, no. 30.) pap., 50 c.

The rather tragic love-story of a "worldly man," married, but separated from his actress-wife, and a young Anglo-Indian girl. The heroine will not consent to her lover's obtaining a divorce, and though the actress finally dies, it is then too late to avert the final tragedy. Most of the characters are American, and the scene is chiefly in New York.

Karazin, N. N. The two-legged wolf: a romance; il. by the author; from the Russian by Boris Lanin. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1894. c. 3–332 p. il. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The time is about 1870, a few years after the northern part of Bokhara had been conquered by the Russians; the roving tribes of central Asia are greatly excited over the coming of another Russian expedition against the Turkomans. Atam Kul of the powerful nomadic tribe of Kirghiz is the "two-legged wolf"; he is a renegade and a thief, false to his own people, and a deserter from the Russian army; made prisoner by the latter, he escapes and successfully plans the kidnapping of a sister of charity serving in the Russian army. He endeavors to force her to become a member of his harem, but is brought to justice by the Kirghiz at last. Military life as seen in the Russian army is well described.

Keith, Alyn Yates. A hilltop summer. Bost., Lee & Shepard, [1894.] c. 5+110 p. il. sq. D. cl., $1.25.

A bright story of a summer sojourn in a country town, showing the same clear insight into the New England character as the author's previous work, "A spinster's leaflets." The modes of thought and the life of the Hilltop people are described somewhat in the style of "Cranford."

Keith, Leslie, [pseud. for Miss Grace Keith Johnston.] 'Lisbeth. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1894.] c. '93. 2+361 p. D. cl., $1.

The beautiful, self-sacrificing, loving character of 'Lisbeth Neil is evolved through a series of unsensational incidents, having for their background the shabby London lodging-house, which is the girl's home, and the last bit of property left the family, through the father's bad habits and shiftless ways. The chief characters are a family of sisters (one being 'Lisbeth's mother) and their husbands and children; they were originally from the Scotch peasant class, and have attained various degrees of comfort or the reverse through their husbands. Mrs. Mackie, whose husband has made a large fortune as a baker, is strongly portrayed in all her vulgarity and ignorance.

Keller, Gottfried. Dietegen: a novel; literally tr. from the German. New Haven, Ct., E: P. Judd, 1894. c. 48 p. O. pap., 75 c.

Dietegen at the age of eleven traded a vinegar-pail for a bow and arrow. For this crime he was hung in the 15th century. Cut down before he was dead he was nursed back to life by a forester's daughter, who afterwards owned him and made him feel her yoke. A story of superstitions, love-philters, tortures, and the loose morals of the period it pictured.

Kelley, Ja. P. The law of service: a study in Christian altruism. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 4+142 p. D. cl., $1.

The object of this study—"the product of a busy man's leisure"—is in a simple and straightforward way "to get at the central teaching of Christ concerning conduct; to make, in the light of that teaching, some brief examination and criticism of things as they are; to show by the same light something of how they ought to be; and to consider various important applications and illustrations of the laws which gives the colume its title."

Kellogg, Amos M. Elementary psychology. N. Y. and Chic., E. L. Kellogg & Co., [1894.] c. 50 p. S. pap., 25 c.

"An attempt is made in this little volume to exhibit the processes by which we know, by employing familiar examples and illustrations. It proposes psychology by self-observation and experiment; it aims to centre the attention of the student upon the process itself, and get him to observe that; over against this is the commoner method of setting him to learn definitions." —Preface.

Kellogg, J. H., M.D. Second book in physiology and hygiene. N. Y., American Book Co., 1894. c. 291 p. il. D. cl., 80 c.

Such facts as are of practical value are alone presented, and they are arranged in a natural and logical order. Those portions of the work devoted to anatomy have been made as untechnical as possible. Especial attention has been given to that branch of hygiene which relates to the abuse of alcohol, tobacco, and other narcotics and stimulants. The attention of teachers is especially called to the numerous experiments described in the body of the work and in a separate section.

Kelly, W: J. Presswork: a practical handbook for the use of pressmen and their apprentices. Chic., The Inland Printer Co., 1894. c. 6+85 p. por. D. cl, $1.50.

The writer is superintendent of the Web Color Printing Department of the New York World. The papers comprising the treatise have appeared in The Inland Printer, Chicago. With his own experience of thirty years, the writer has incorporated the latest accepted methods of the leading pressmen of the country as applicable to various printing machines now in use. He claims that the journeymen and apprentice can reap substantial benefit from these papers which have been carefully revised for their present purpose.

Kenealy, Arabella. Dr. Janet of Harley Street: a novel. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. 4+340 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 147.) cl., 75 c.; pap., 50 c.

Phyllis Eve, at seventeen, is married to a French roué, who the day before has kissed her and disgusted her. She will not live with him, and runs away to London to seek work in a hospital. An eminent woman physician, Dr. Janet Doyle, takes interest in her, encourages her to become a physician, takes her to her heart and home, and endeavors to teach her the true position and true mission of womanly women. The plot is made the means of conveying in many telling sentences that woman should be ashamed to aim at being "undevelopt man," or feminine or neuter instead of becoming womanly in the highest sense.

The story of Christ's life arranged in chronological order. It is divided into chapters indicating the years of his work. The unique feature is the arrangement of the harmony and the references to the corresponding Scripture passage by columns in the margins. Includes an appendix containing a brief dictionary of places, people, and institutions of Palestine mentioned in the Gospels, a general index and a Scripture index.

Kephart, Rev. C. J. The life of Jesus, for children: a series of questions and answers designed especially for use in instructing children in the home, pastor's classes, junior young people's societies, etc. Dayton, O., W. J. Shuey, 1894. 5-74 p. T. pap., 15 c.

Leading facts in the life of Christ are simply stated, with accompanying answers and scriptural references. The incidents are chronologically arranged.

Kerr, Norman, M.D. Inebriety, or, narcomania: its etiology, pathology, treatment, and jurisprudence. 3d ed. N. Y., J. Selwin Tait & Sons, [1894.] 35+605 p. O. cl., $3 50.

The first edition appeared in England in 1888, the second in 1889, the third, with 317 additional pages, in 1894. This edition is now reprinted verbatim, authorized by the author. The author contends that inebriety in all its forms, whether alcoholomania, morphinomania, cannabinomania, chloroformomania, etheromania, opiumism, the coca, eau-de-cologne, sal volatile or hashish habits, is a disease and is amenable to treatment. Dr. Kerr is considered the highest English authority on his subject. He cites many cases and their treatment chosen from his thirty years' experience. Of special use to lawyers, clergymen, insurance managers, and others dealing with the consequences of inebriety.

Ketcham, W: E., D.D., comp. and ed Thanksgiving sermons and outline addresses: an aid for pastors. N. Y., Wilbur B. Ketcham, [1894.] c 329 p. D. cl., $1 50.

Kettle, Rosa Mackenzie, [pseud. for Miss Mary Rosa Stuart Kettle.] Rose, shamrock, and thistle: a story of two border towers, [N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons,] 1893 [1894.] 286 p. D. cl., $2.

An English rose and her lover, a soldierly Scotch thistle, have been parted for years, owing to prejudices among the parents on both sides, the old inhabitants of the Border Towers. A gay young cousin, the Irish shamrock, drifts into the English home and proves a charm that rights old wrongs, makes sad lives bright, brings order into the chaos of the motherless household, and sets in their true perspective the special virtues of English, Scotch, and Irish character.

King, C: Cadet days: a story of West Point. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 4+293 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

King, C:, ed. An initial experience, and other stories. Phil., The J. B. Lippincott Co., 1894. c. 2+254 p. D. cl., $1.

Besides the story that gives title to the book are three by R. Mouckton-Dene called "In the Never Never Country," "The siren of Three-Mile Bend," and "Private Jones of the Eighth;" "Jack Hilton's love-affair," by T. H. Farnham; three stories by Alvin Sydenham, called "The Lost Pine Mine," "Wanna, the witch-maiden," and "Conyngham Foxe and the charity ball;" "The Soldiers' Aid Society," by C. F. Little; "A pitiful surrender," by J. P. Wis-er; "The story of a recruit," by D. Robinson; and "Chrouicles of Carter Barracks," by H. W. Clossou.

King, C: Rancho del Muerto, and other stories of adventure. N. Y., Outing Pub. Co., [1894.] c. 190 p. S. (Outing lib., v. 1, no. 3.) pap, 25 c.

Contents: Raucho del Muerto, by C: King; A mighty hunter before the Lord, by Virginius Dabney; A Cobutta Valley shooting match, by Will N. Harben: Moeran's moose, by Ed. W. Sandys; The mystery of a Christmas hunt, by Talbot Torrance; Herne the hunter, by W: Perry Brown; Uncle Duke's "b'ar" story, by Lillian Gilfillan; A cigarette from Carcinto, by E: French.

King, C: Under fire; il. by C. B. Cox. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1895 [1894.] c. 511 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Army life during the fierce Indian campaigns that succeeded the Custer massacre furnishes the background. "Parson" Davies, the hero, is introduced on his graduation from West Point, and is quickly launched into the vicissitudes of hard service on the plains. He is "under fire" in more ways than one, for not only is he involved in some of the fiercest Indian affrays, but his ill-advised marriage is an unhappy one, and his reputation as a soldier is long under a cloud. How affairs are at last righted, and how the "Parson" bears himself under his troubles, is told in a story that abounds in spirited and tragic episodes of Indian warfare and in scenes of fort and garrison life.

The time is in the "sixties" just after the war; the place, the barracks of regular U. S. troops in a southern city; the officers and their wives, and the usual "hangers on" of a camp, the characters. The incidents illustrate the lights and shadows of military life, and are evidently drawn from actual knowledge and experience. Lieut. Waring, the hero, and his colored servant Ananias, are deliciously humorous; Ananias fully deserving his name. An escapade of Waring's, which leads to an accusation of murder, is well worked up.

King, Willis P., M.D. Stories of a country doctor; il. by T. A. Fitzgerald. N. Y., Bailey & Fairchild, 24 Park place, 1894. c. '89. 3–397 p. sq. D. pap., 50 c.

Stories of life in the far West when travel was difficult and all education and culture still in the future.

*Kingsley, C: Hereward the Wake, last of the English. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893 [1894.] 256 p. 16°, (Macmillan's school library.) cl., net, 50 c.

Kingsley, C: Hypatia; or, new foes with an old face; il. from drawings by W: Martin Johnson. N. Y., Harper, 1895 [1894.] c. 2 v., 19+289; 4+390–772 p. D. silk, $7.

The designs of this new sumptuous edition are by the illustrator of "Ben Hur" and in the same manner. They are partly imaginative of the personages and action of the story, and partly emblematic and archæological. They cover whole pages, appear as head or tail pieces, and are set in the text and overrun the margin. It is not necessary to speak of Kingsley's creation—that sympathetic figure of a gentle philosopher and faultless woman whose name gives to the romance its title. Her mental struggles, her physical disaster, the sad barbaric ending of it all—these things are familiar to very many cultivated readers.

Kipling, Rudyard. The jungle book. N. Y., Century Co., 1894. c. '93, '94. 11+303 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Seven short stories, relating, with one exception, to animal life in India. The creatures of the jungle—tigers, wolves, elephants, monkeys—are their own spokesmen, and one of the central figures of the tales is Mowgli, the "wolf-child," whose kin are the jungle-folk, and who knows the lore of the forest. Three of the stories tell of Mowgli and his kinsfolk, and one, "The white seal," is a story of the Pribylov Islands. Most of them have appeared in St. Nicholas. The titles are: Mowgli's brothers; Kaa's hunting; "Tiger! Tiger!" The white seal; "Rikki-tikki-tavi;" Toomai of the elephants; Her majesty's servants.

*Kipp, Rev. P. E. Is Moses scientific? First chapter of Genesis tested by latest discoveries of science. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell Co., 1894. 239 p. 12°, cl., $1.25.

*Kirk, Eleanor, [Mrs. E. K. Ames.] The influence of the zodiac upon human life. Brooklyn, N. Y., for sale by the author, Eleanor Kirk, 698 Greene Ave., 1894. 12°, cl., $1.50.

Kirk, Mrs. Ellen Warner Olney, ["Henry Hayes," pseud.] The story of Lawrence Garthe. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 2–435 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Ought a girl to marry a divorced man whose wife is still living? is the question Mrs. Kirk sets before her heroine. Lawrence Garthe has been divorced for five years when he meets and loves Constance Garner, who knows him only as a widower, with a little son. Then, when their happiness seems assured, Garthe's wife appears—the rich and fascinating widow of a fourth husband—tempts him to return to her, and, failing, makes the whole story known to Constance in revenge. The fifth marriage of the divorced wife determines Constance's action and Garthe's future. As usual, Mrs. Kirk has chosen New York for her scene, and "society" people for her actors; there is a second love-story in lighter vein, and the book abounds in the bright conversations characteristic of the author of "Queen Money" and "Ciphers."

Kirkpatrick, Mrs. T. J., comp. The peerless cook-book; embracing more than one thousand recipes and practical suggestions to housekeepers. Springfield, O., Mast, Crowell & Kirkpatrick, [1894.] c. 320 p. D. (Farm and fireside lib., no. 109.) pap., 25 c.

The scene is laid in Canada, in 1849. The hero, who is a Roman Catholic, is disappointed in love and determines to be a priest; after his ordination he learns that the girl still loves him who had once refused him; this throws him into a brain fever, and on his recovery, feeling that he is unfit for the priesthood as he finds his love unchanged, he goes to California, and after an absence of two years returns and marries his early love. The story is only a means of discussing various religious questions.

Kitchen boiler connections: a selection of practical letters and articles relating to water-backs and range-boilers; comp. from The Metal Worker. N. Y., D: Williams, 1894. c. 6+129 p. il. O. cl., $1.

The book is divided into two parts, the first on water-backs and boilers and their connections, and the second on heating rooms from range-boilers. The main divisions of the volume are as follows: Water-backs and their construction; Boiler construction, operation and connections; Circulating pipes; Multiple connections; Double boilers; Difficulties met in every-day practice; Relief pipe and vacuum valve; Horizontal boilers; Miscellaneous; Heating room from kitchen boiler; Radiators heated from coils in stoves

Knight, Francis A. By moorland and sea; il. by the author. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1894. 3+215 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A companion volume to the author's "By leafy ways" and "Idylls of the field." The four opening papers are descriptive of the Western Highlands of Scotland, and are called "Round the Mull," "Loch Duich," "Uig, Isle of Skye," and "Dunvegan." The other sketches "by moorland and sea" are: A ride on a railway engine; In the Quantocks; Sounds of the night; The schoolmaster abroad; The midsummer fields; A northern moorland; Camping out; Sedgemoor; An old manor-house; The birds'-nester; An idyll of winter.

Knight, H. The mystery of Stephen Claverton & Co.: a novel. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, 1894. 3-320 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Stephen Claverton & Co. are leather merchants of Leeds, Eng., and the story is told by a young fellow employed by them, first as clerk and later raised into prospective partnership. It turns on the old theme of crime committed to hide forgery. The "mystery"—a cruel murder and its subsequent concealment—is ghastly enough, and its solution, though not unexpected, is well worked out.

Knight, Jos., comp. Pipe and pouch: the smoker's own book of poetry; an anthology of poems having tobacco, its users and pleasurers for their theme. Bost., Jos. Knight Co., 1894. c. 16+182 p. S. cl., $1; leather, $2.50; same, large-paper ed., $3.

In line with the previous books of the series in arrangement, and having the same characters. Full of information and pictures and personal adventures. The title covers the route travelled.

Knox, T: W. The lost army. N. Y., The Merriam Co., [1894.] c. 206 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

A story of the adventures of two boys during the Civil War, who, being too young to enlist, join an Iowa regiment as camp helpers and remain in the army until the close of General Curtis' campaign. In their experiences Col. Knox gives a picture of the war from a northern point of view, describing the march of the Union troops through Missouri and Arkansas, the skirmish of Booneville, the battle of Wilson's Creek, the battle of Pea Ridge, and many of the battles and events of the war in the Department of the Southwest. The title of "The lost army" was applied to Gen. Curtis' division on account of the difficulty of keeping up communication with headquarters during the long Arkansas campaign.

Lacy, W: F. The better way: a tale. N. Y., T: Nelson & Sons, 1894. 6-312 p. il. D. cl., $1.

A series of sad incidents in the life of Archie Winterleigh, who lives when the story opens in the slums of Saxon Town, Hudsborough, are contrasted with some brighter scenes of the boy's after life in Brinthorpe, for the evident purpose of showing that total abstinence is "The better way."

Ladd, G: Trumbull. Primers of psychology. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. 15+224 p. D. cl., $1.

Simply aims to narrate some of the more obvious facts and principles known to modern scientific psychology in plain and familiar English and in an orderly but wholly untechnical way; the book is not to be regarded as an abridgment of any other existing work, whether by its author or by other writers on psychology.

Ladd, G: Trumbull. Psychology, descriptive and explanatory: a treatise of the phenomena, laws, and development of human mental life. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 11+676 p. O. cl., $4.50.

Prof. Ladd, professor of philosophy in Yale University, says in his preface: "Briefly characterized, this book designs to give a clear, accurate, and comprehensive picture of the mental life of the individual man; and also to explain this life as it appears in the light of all the resources of modern psychological science, and with the idea of 'development,' as essentially characteristic of this, as it is of all life, constantly kept in mind."

La Fontaine, Miss Rachel A., comp. Angelus Domini; with legendary lays and poems in honor of the blessed Virgin Mary; with introductory selections in prose; comp. and ed. by A daughter of the church. [Anon.] N. Y., The Baker & Taylor Co., 1893 [1894.] c. '93. 3+183 p. il. D. cl., $1.50; silk, $1.75; mor., $2.50; cf., $3.

Contains selections from over sixty authors, among whom are the following: Dante, Petrarch, Chaucer, Wordsworth, Longfellow, Harte, Rossetti, Byron, John Hay, Faber, St. Amedas, Nicephorus Callistus, Goethe, Milton, Poe, Scott, Adelaide, Anne Procter, Harriett McEwen Kimball; with many full-page illustrations of the Madonnas; and original designs by the compiler.

Lagrange, C: The great pyramid, by modern science: an independent witness to the literal chronology of the Hebrew Bible and British Israel identity, in accordance with Brück's law of the life of nations: with a new interpretation of the time-prophecies of Daniel and St. John, from the French; recently rev., with five new appendices by the author, and a short note by C. Piazzi Smyth. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., 1894. 11+278 p. D. cl., $3.

The data concerning the pyramids are established by three documents: "Humanity, its development and its duration," by R. Brueck, in which he sets forth the chronological law of the life of nations (generally five centuries); "The Bible" and its chronological and spiritual laws, it numbers, weights, and measures; and a collection of exact measurements of the Great Pyramid of Gizeh. Most ingenious tables and calculations are offered as proof that the pyramid when scientifically interpreted contains the history of the earth from the beginning, and that this coincides with the revelations of Hebrew and Christian Scriptures.

Laine, Gideon, D.D., [pseud. for G. C. Clemens.] The dead line: a Kansas story of society, religion, and politics. Topeka, Kan., The Advocate Pub. Co., 1894. c. 2+142 p. por. O. (The Advocate quarterly, v. 1, no. 1.) pap., 25 c.

Lang, Ossian H. Great teachers of four centuries: an outline history of the great movements and masters of the past four hundred years that have shaped the theory and practice of the education of the present. N. Y., E. L. Kellogg & Co., 1893 [1894.] c. '93. 59 p. pors. D. leatherette, 25 c.

Brief biographical sketches in chronological order of Luther, Melanchthon, Trotzendorf, Sturm, Ascham, Mulcaster, Rabelais, Comenius, Rossean, Pestalozzi, Froebel, Herbart, and others. Under "Colonial times" and "Pestalozzian era" are chapters on "First American book on pedagogics," "A teacher of the last century," "French influence and Jefferson," etc. An account is given in this way of the historical development of educational thought.

Lang, Ossian H. Horace Mann: his life and educational work. N. Y., E. L. Kellogg & Co., 1893 [1894.] c. '93. 41 p. S. (Teacher's manuals, no. 22.) pap., 15 c.

Lang, Ossian H. Outlines of Herbart's pedagogics; with a biographical introd. N. Y. and Chic., E. L. Kellogg & Co., 1894. c. 72 p. D. pap., 25 c.

In preparing this volume the aim has been to set forth, as briefly and clearly as possible, the fundamental ideas of Herbart's educational theory, omitting everything that is not absolutely necessary to explain them. The biographical introduction indicates the influences that led Herbart into the service of education, and aided in the building of his system. It also explains a few important points concerning his relation to Pestalozzi.

Lang, Ossian H. Rousseau and his "Emile." N. Y., E. L. Kellogg & Co., 1893 [1894.] c. 36 p. S. (Teacher's manuals, no. 21.) pap., 15 c.

This monograph presents the fundamental educational ideas of Rosseau in a clear and simple manner, points out their pedagogic value, shows their effect on modern education, and gives a reasonable amount of information regarding his life and such of his works as are necessary to be known to understand his pedagogic theory.

"An account of evidence of the complex nature of the 'wind,' of its internal movements, of the resulting potentiality of this internal work, and of attempts which the writer has made to determine quantitatively its amount by the use of special apparatus, recording the changes which go on (so to speak) within the wind at very brief intervals. These results may, it is hoped, be of interest to meteorologists, but they are given with special reference to their important bearing on the future of what the writer has ventured to call the science of aërodromics."

This book appeared in France in 1891. Eugenie is pictured as a cruel fatality that laid low powerful empires. The author traces to her frivolity, intrigue, jealousy, covetousness, and many other faults of omission and commission, the fall of the French empire, the death of her ill-treated son, who was driven from home by his mother's refined cruelty. She was inordinately vain and covetous of power, and she struck down openly or clandestinely all that stood in her path.

La Rame, Louise de, ["Ouida," pseud.] A Provence rose. Bost., Joseph Knight Co., 1894. c. '93. 3+75 p. D. (Cosy corner ser.) cl., 50 c.

A beautiful Provence rose is plucked by the gardener's hand and sent to the flower-stalls of the Madeline, Paris. It comes into the keeping of a poor girl in the Quartier Latin, who plants it, and while it grows within her humble dwelling, it watches her and tells her simple love-story.

La Rame, Louise de, ["Ouida," pseud.] Two offenders. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1894. c. '93. 2–265 p. D. cl., $1.

Two stories—"An ingrate" and "An assassin." The hero of the first is an old Frenchman, who had once been a famous artist, who preferred liberty and starvation to the restraints of an "institution," where his wants were generously attended to but his independence taken from him. The second story has its scene among the peasants of Italy, and is a tale of sin and sorrow, ending with the killing of the hero, who richly deserves his fate.

The arrangement of matter in the work is primarily alphabetical and secondarily chronological. The whole is thoroughly indexed and the index incorporated with the body of the text in same alphabetical order. The editor is the librarian of the Buffalo (N. Y.) Library, and it is to questions coming to him as a librarian that this stupendous compilation from thousands of volumes owes its origin. It is primarily a work for librarians. The book is a marvel of editorial labor.

The Order of the Visitation of the Blessed Virgin Mary was instituted by St. Francis de Sales. It was introduced into this country by Archbishop Leonard Neale, who founded the convent and academy at Georgetown, D. C., nearly a hundred years ago. The history of the order and of this institution, its principles, its work, and its achievements—is the subject of this volume.

Latimer, Mrs. Mary Eliz. Wormeley. England in the nineteenth century. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1894. c. 3–451 p. pors. O. cl., $2.50.

A popularly and attractively written résumé of English history from the reign of George the Third to Queen Victoria's Jubilee year. Mrs. Latimer has made use of many family and personal reminiscences, thus giving many new and unpublished details and anecdotes—the work being therefore less of a compilation than some of her previous books in the same line—though "France in the nineteenth century" also contained personal reminiscences. Her father, though American born, became an admiral in the English navy—hence her opportunities for learning the inside history of the English court. Queen Victoria's reign, her domestic life to the present, with her marriage, the death of the Prince Consort, and the marriages of her children and grandchildren, are told in a pleasant, gossipy way.

William Law was born in 1686, and died in 1761. He lost his fellowship at Cambridge because he would not take the oath of allegiance to George I. He led a life of contemplation and prayer, and his writings show his ideal of what a life wholly given to God should be. These extracts deal with "The spirit of God," "The spirit of prayer," and "A serious call."

Lawless, Hon. Emily. Maelcho: a sixteenth century narrative. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 7+418 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A story of Irish patriotism and devotion to the Catholic faith while under persecution by Queen Elizabeth, and under the iron rule of Spanish invaders and papal legates, is admirably told. Maelcho is a weird character, and the author of "Hurrish" again makes the flesh creep with her descriptions of cruelties and gloomy superstitions.

Paul Errington drifts into the Roman Catholic Church and drifts out in Protestantism again, influenced in both cases by the writings of the "Scarlet Prince," who is Cardinal Gibbons, from whose writings the author quotes freely. The period of the Civil War, and Pio Nono's declaration of Papal Infallibility are also used in a story for a purpose.

Leavitt, S: Our money wars: the example and warning of American finance. Bost., Arena Pub. Co., 1894. c. 11+319 p. D. (Arena lib. ser., no. 35.) pap., 50 c.

In sixteen chapters gives the story of American finance, covering the years from 1600 to 1893. The author quotes the opinions of experts in finanee on the various conditions that from time to time, first at longer and recently at shorter intervals, have brought about panics and uncertain markets. Under paragraph headings the vast array of facts are grouped in most condensed manner, making a valuable work of reference—classified chronologically.

Lee, Mrs. Frank. Garret grain; or, the house blessed. Bost., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., [1894.] c. 336 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

A story which tells of the wonderfully fortunate household which lived in the House Blessed. There were eight children there—five members of the family, the other three relatives, who were made to feel like members of the family. The head of the house, Charles Wyatt, though only a plain farmer, was a rarely beautiful character. His love and Christian charity towards all whom he could help and ennoble had their influence upon the household, and the boys and girls grew up to be noble men and women

The hero of this story is not an imaginary one; he was a real flesh-and-blood man who reigned as King of Norway just nine centuries ago. The main facts of his adventurous career—his boyhood of slavery in Esthonia, his life at the court of King Valdemar of Russia, his wanderings as a Viking, and his raids upon the coasts of Scotland and England, the many battles he fought, his conversion to Christianity in England, and his ultimate return to his native land—are set forth in the various Icelandic sagas, and freely made use of in this story, which is a good deal like a biography.

The National School Library of Song will present, in a number of small volumes, musical material adapted to varied wants in upper grades of musical instruction in schools. The first thirty-five pages of this first number of the series are devoted to songs of patriotism and devotion, and songs for special occasions. The topical index shows what variety has been attained in the selections. The arrangement and harmonization of the few familiar melodies of this first part will be found to differ in important respects from those of the various existing versions—a fact which may give interest to renewed study of the songs. The collection of folk-songs contains representatives from fully thirty nations. A brief consideration of the folk-song in general, together with some facts concerning the songs in this collection is given.

The selections are almost exclusively secular in character. The extreme limits of all voices are carefully avoided, and by a special system of notation it is indicated where certain voices may supplement and strengthen others. The tenor parts have been so treated that they may generally be sung by low altos. The songs are not graded in difficulty in the order of printing, but there is an index indicating the place of each song in a progressive course of study.

Lillie, Mrs. Lucy Cecil (White). A family dilemma: a story for girls. Phil., Porter & Coates, [1894.] c. 3+214 p. il. D. (Honest endeavor scr.) cl., $1.25.
The handsome but rather vulgar young girl Sarah, who first appears upon the scene as a waiting-maid in the Hill House of the great Dyker family, seems through almost uncontrovertible evidence the heiress of the estate. This is the "family dilemma." An odd will, a Dyker mésalliance, the early death of Sarah's parents, and the possession by Sarah's aunt of various letters and papers seem to prove the fact. Two other young members of the family, pretty and refined, are deprived of their inheritance by these disclosures. Sarah's behavior in a trying crisis shows her as a fine example of what a heroine should be for The honest endeavor series.

Lincoln, Abraham. Complete works: comprising his speeches, letters, state papers, and miscellaneous writings; ed. by J: G. Nicolay and J: Hay. N. Y., The Century Co., 1894. c. 2 v., 5+695; 5+770 p. por.

O. subs., cl., per v., $5; shp., $6; hf. mor. or hf. levant, $7.50.

These interesting and valuable volumes are indispensable supplements to Nicolay and Hay's biography of Lincoln. They are in size and binding uniform with the biography, but the page is in a smaller type. The editors have added neither notes nor an introduction nor a table of contents. There is, however, an exhaustive index covering ninety pages, and the headlines to each page epitomize its material. Everything almost that Lincoln has written may be found here—the Gettysburg address, the Emancipation Proclamation, his debate with Douglas, his early love-letters, with all the many and wonderful speeches and state papers called forth by the exceptional conditions through which he lived.

Lincoln, J: Larkin. In memoriam John Larkin Lincoln, 1817–1891. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 5+64 p. pors. O. cl., $3.

John Larkin Lincoln was for forty-five years professor of the Latin language and literature in Brown University; he was born in Boston in 1817, and died in 1891. This volume is designed as a memorial rather than a memoir, and is edited by his son. It contains diaries written by Prof. Lincoln while a student at Columbia College, at Newton Theological Institution, and in Germany, with a number of letters from Europe. Also selected from his numerous writings are twenty-one papers of a literary character, dealing chiefly with Roman life and literature.

Linton, Mrs. Eliza Lynn. The one too many. Chic., F. Tennyson Neely, 1894. c. 4+358 p. por. D. (Neely's international lib.) cl., $1.25.

The "one too many," the delicate, pretty daughter of an ambitious widow, is given in marriage to an unmitigated prig, who spends his life educating and cramming his wife with facts in which she takes no interest. As a foil to the young wife's submissive suffering, four "advanced" girls are introduced, who hold a B.A. degree and are full of plans for the regeneration of mankind. The story is chiefly laid in rural England.

Linton, W: Ja. Threescore and ten years: 1820 to 1890; recollections. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 7+236 p. por. O. cl., $2.

Mr. Linton's recollections cover an unusually long period of an unusually varied life. They begin with the death of George III., and include reminiscences of Horne, Heywood, O'Connor, the Howitts, George Sand, Tennyson, Mazzini, Carlyle, Sir Gavan Duffy, as well as of the incidents and events with which their names are associated. There are many other persons in all departments of life of this country and Europe, of whom he has most interesting details to relate. Mr. Linton is the well-known English illustrator and engraver who has made his home in this country since 1867.

Chiefly a history of the Standard Oil Combination taken from court records and testimony presented to State legislative and Congressional committees. Recites how freight rebates granted the combination, laid the foundations of its wealth and powers, while crushing out its competitors. In the closing chapters on "The old self-interest and the new" the author argues for public control as the sole refuge from the oppressions of monopoly. An appendix gives a partial list of trade combinations, or trusts, achieved or attempted, and of the commodities covered by them. A startling book for the economist, the politician, and the citizen.

Clytie Davenant, descended from generations of country-town gentlefolks, high-church Tories, and a sprinkling of Puritans, absolutely refuses to live within the rules laid down for Davenants from generation to generation. She studies painting, and devotes herself specially to realistic pictures of street urchins and degraded human beings. She leaves her family and lives a bachelor life in London. When she is twenty-five her life is finally determined for her by her heart history. The book is a study of the element of passion in art; how far it can be pictured by an artist who has studied only theoretically; how much an artist must feel to make his work tell without marring it.

Abigail Raynor has lost her mother's life. She is left to the care of her lovely grandmother, the idolized wife of a Massachusetts country physician. Later her young father marries, and a new home claims Abigail. Her grandmother's teachings and example have made her an ambassador of hope and peace to all who come in her way. The story plays in the first half of the century when Lafayette's visit and Napoleon III. and the coup d'état were fresh in the minds of two generations.

The concluding volumes of Lord Augustus Loftus' autobiographical memoirs. In 1862 he was recalled from Berlin, and sent as English embassador to Munich; in 1865 he returned again to the court of Prussia, where he remained representing England until the close of the Franco-Prussian War and the formation of the German Empire. Shortly afterward he was sent to Russia, where he completed his diplomatic career with the experiences of the war between Russia and Turkey in 1877 and 1878, and the subsequent negotiations for peace. The volume finishes with an account of his return to England in 1879. The light thrown upon the many political events of which he was a witness through the secret history his position made known to him, and the interesting details of the personalities of the famous men of the period, make the volumes of unusual value to historical students.

Lomax, Alfred E. Sir Henry Layard: his adventures and discoveries. N. Y., T: Whittaker, [1894.] 5-144 p. por. il D. (Splendid lives ser.) cl., 50 c.

The story of Austen Henry Layard, the famous traveller and explorer, who died in London, full of years and honors, on the 8th of July, 1894. He was the discoverer and explorer of the ruins of Nineveh; the many treasures which he there unearthed being now in the British Museum. They throw much light on past history, and on the manners and customs of the people who had once lived in the country.

Long, Frank Carleton. The Duke of Arcanum: a novel. Chic., Laird & Lee, [1894.] c. 3–452 p. il. D. (Library of choice fiction, no. 74.) pap., 50 c.

Stanley Edgcumb, full of noble purposes and philanthropic philosophy, comes into contact with those oppressed with the bitter afflictions of a dire and relentless poverty. The scene is laid in Chicago in 1870. In describing the temptations of poverty and the sins which the author claims should be judged with charity, the details are hardly fitting for fiction. The great Chicago fire of 1871 plays an important part in the story.

The book consists of two parts, the first dealing with simple experimeuts in chemical physiology, the second taking up the subject of urine analysis. Intended for students, but full of practical hints for practitioners.

Long, Lily A. Apprentices to destiny. N. Y., Merrill & Baker, 74 Fifth Ave., [1894.] 348 p. D. cl., $1.

The scene of the novel opens in Chicago and afterwards shifts to a pretty little town about a hundred miles away. Joyce Mabie, the heroine, is brought under the influence of a socialistic idealist, and thinks she sees in his work for humanity the object which she requires to fill her own life. She writes an article on "The necessity of organized labor against capital," which has the effect of causing the "hands" of her lover's factory, who are out on a strike, to promptly fire the works and burn them to the ground. Her story after this is entirely connected with that of Paul Rodman, her lover.

Sets forth briefly the chief facts in the history of the printed English Bible, as far as they are known at present, and also describes the principal editions. A brief bibliography (1 page) of the most reliable books on the subject is given.

Low, Frances H. Queen Victoria's dolls; il. by Alan Wright. N. Y., Marcus Ward, 1894. 86 p. il. 4°, cl., $5.

Lowell, Ja. Russell. Poems. Vignette ed., with 100 new il., by Edmund M. Ashe. N. Y., F: A. Stokes Co., [1894.] c. 5+337 p. D. cl., $1.50; hf. cl., $1.25.

Contains "The vision of Sir Launfal," and all Lowell's early poems. Illustrated with new half-tone engravings after original designs. In various fancy bindings—the "daisy," "orchid," etc.—which are rich combinations of paper and cloth, beautifully ornamented.

Lowell, Ja. Russell. The vision of Sir Launfal and other poems; with biography, critical opinions, and explanatory notes. N. Y., Maynard, Merrill & Co., [1894.] c. 53 p. por. S. (Maynard's English classic ser., no. 129.) pap., 12 c.

Lowell, Percival. Occult Japan; or, the way of the gods: an esoteric study of Japanese personality and possession. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1895 [1894.] c. 4+379 p. il. D. cl., $1.75.

A careful study of the Shinto faith of Japan in its more unfamiliar forms and mysterious usages. It adds not a little to a philosophical explanation of hypnotism, and, indeed, of human consciousness. It is based upon the author's personal observation and participation in more or less of the mystic rites described. Mr. Lowell has written two other works on Japan, namely, "Noto, an unexplored corner of Japan," and "The soul of the far east."

Lubbock, Sir J: The use of life. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. c. 6+316 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Papers on: The great question, which is "how to live"; Tact; On money matters; Recreation; Health; National education; Self-education; On libraries; On reading; Patriotism; Citizenship; Social life; Industry; Faith; Hope; Charity; Character; On peace and happiness; Religion. A companion volume to "The pleasures of life."

Lubin, D: Number 2 of "A novel proposition," showing how the rate of wages in manufacturing centres and the demand for skilled labor is influenced by the cost of transportation on farm products, advocating a plan for the more equitable distribution of wealth. Sacramento, Cal., D: Johnston & Co., pr., [David Lubin,] 1894. 64 p. O. pap., gratis.

Lucas, F: A. Notes on the anatomy and affinities of the Cœrebidæ and other American birds. Wash., D. C., Government Printing Office, 1894. 299–312 p. O. (Smithsonian Institution, United States National Museum.) pap., n. p.

Luckock, Herbert Mortimer (Dean). The history of marriage, Jewish and Christian, in relation to divorce and certain forbidden degrees. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1894. 15+327 p. D. cl., $1.75.

Ludlow, Edmund. Memoirs of Edmund Ludlow, Lieutenant-general of the horse in the Army of the Commonwealth of England, 1625–1672; ed., with appendices of letters and illustrative documents, by C. H. Firth. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 2 v., por. 8°, cl., net, $9.

Lumby, Jos. Rawson, D.D. The Epistles of St. Peter. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1893 [1894.] 24+374 p. O. (Expositor's Bible, new [6th] ser.) cl., $1.50.

Lummis, C: F. The man who married the moon, and other Pueblo Indian folk-stories. N. Y., The Century Co., 1894. c. '91–'94. 8+239 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

The author lived for five years among the Pueblo Indians of New Mexico, learning their language and customs, and in the long winter evenings listening to the tales the old men tell to the boys gathered about them—wonderful stories of "The antelope boy," "The ants that pushed on the sky," "The man who wouldn't keep Sunday," "The town of the snake girls," etc. These stories Mr. Lummis has written out for the boys and girls.

Lummis, C: F. The Spanish pioneers. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1894. c. '93. 5–292 p. por. il. D. cl., $1.50.

For young readers; written to inspire them with the same enthusiasm for the Spanish pioneers as the author possesses. Believing justice had never been rendered these heroes, he, through much labor and research, obtained the true stories of their adventures, discoveries, etc., their first attempts to educate the Indians, and other deeds of heroism and kindness, which he relates after first giving the story of Columbus.

Lupton, Arnold. Mining: an elementary treatise on the getting of minerals; with 596 figures and il. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1894. 24+519 p. 12°, cl., net, $3.

Lutz, A. Fowler. Legends and stories of the holy child Jesus; from many lands. N. Y., Benziger Bros., 1894. 16°, cl., $1.

Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1894. c. '93. 2+496 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

The story of a little Irish girl, who when only twelve years old displayed great dramatic ability, and sung Irish ballads in a sweet, thrilling little voice. Her mother was an Englishwoman, and her father a literary man and a Fenian. When the story opens he is serving a five years' term in Portland Prison for a political offence. After his release the family emigrate to America where Doreen studies singing as a profession. The death of her father and mother leaves her at eighteen with a young family to care for. A crime she with others had witnessed in her youth shadows her whole life. The story breathes a deep love of Ireland.

Lyly, J: Endymion, the man in the moon: played before the Queen's majesty at Greenwich on Candlemas day, at night by children of Paul's; ed with notes, bibliography, and a biographical introd., by G: P. Baker. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1894. c. 196+109 p. S. (English readings.) bds., 85 c.

Prepared, because the editor, who is instructor in English at Harvard University, felt the need of an inexpensive edition of some representative play of Queen Elizabeth's court dramatist to be used by classes in Elizabethan drama. Nearly a year was consumed in collecting material for the introductory biography. The editor favors the idea advanced by Halpin, that "Endymion" is an allegory treating an episode in the relations of Leicester and Elizabeth, and hopes his introduction will lead to a better understanding of the history of the Children's Companies between 1580 and 1600.

Lyman, H: Munson, M.D., Fenger, Christian, M.D., Belfield, W. T., M.D., and Jones, H. Webster, M.D. The practical home physician; adapted especially for every-day household use. Chic., Favorite Manufacturing Co., 1894. 1157 p. il. Q. silk, subs., $6.50.

Lynch, E. M. A parish providence: a country tale; with introd. by Sir C: Gavan Duffy. N. Y., P. J. Kenedy, 1894. 46+154 p. S. (New Irish lib., no. 4.) pap., 50 c.

Somerville, a man thoroughly imbued with social reform theories, pities the wretchedness of the peasantry in a district near La Grande Chartreuse. Settling in their midst, he establishes various manufacturing and agricultural industries for aiding them. The author's motive is to incite the people of Ireland to like effort and thus better the social condition of the people.

Lynch, Lawrence L., [pseud. for E. Murdoch Van Deventer.] Against odds: a romance of the Midway Plaisance. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1894. 4-272 p. D. (Globe lib., v. 1, no. 183.) pap., 50 c.

Lynch, Lawrence L., [pseud. for E. Murdoch Van Deventer.] A dead man's step. Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1893 [1894.] c. 3-583 p. D. (Rialto ser., no. 6.) pap., 50 c.

Opens with the robbery of a bank and a murder; suspicion falls upon an innocent man who, for a time, finds it almost impossible to clear himself. A great deal of clever detective business, the stories of the many actors connected with the tragedy, some love episodes, a strange will, etc., are the leading themes in the novel.

M., A. S. The Red Rose of Savannah: a novel. N. Y., G: W. Dillingham, [1894.] c. 4-276 p. D. pap., 50 c.

Left an orphan at the age of seventeen, Elsie Vane (the Red Rose of Savannah) finds employment in some government office at Washington. She is under the special control of a man named Foster, who singles her out, showers favors upon her, makes her think she is married, and deserts her. In Chicago she learns the great wickedness of the man she has trusted. Foster does not seem to have one redeeming feature, and the way his sins are told makes the book almost unsuitable for circulation.

M., L. H. Biscuits and dried beef: a panacea. Milwaukee, Wis., The Young Churchman Co., 1894. c. 2-76 p. D. cl., net, 40 c.

The experience of a poor clergyman, who decided to live within his income and follow the advice of his bishop—"never to incur indebtedness." Through the neglect and indifference of his congregation in paying his salary, he is often left without a penny to buy food. With the design of "pointing a moral" he invites a number of them to tea, sharing with them the contents of his larder—hot buiscuits without butter, dried beef, apple sauce without sugar, and cold water. His plan works very well, and he has nothing to complain of in the future.

M—, Mr., (pseud.) The Shen's pigtail, and other cues of Anglo-China life. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 4+246 p. nar. D. (The incognito lib., no. 1.) cl., 50 c.

The scene of the first story is a house-boat on the Yangtze River; it belongs to a rich Chinaman, who has aboard a party of friends among whom are two Englishmen; at night they are attacked by supposed pirates and robbed of everything valuable; the climax to the story with its explanations is quite ingenious. The other stories—all relating to Anglo-China life—are "A little Chinese party," "The general," "A shooting trip to the Grand Canal," and "J's last horror." Under "Office men" are described five types of Anglo-China officials.

Maartens, Maarten, [pseud. for J. Van der Poorsen Schwartz.] The greater glory: a story of high life. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 104+72 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Most of the story has "The Hague" as the stage for its characters. High life means both the upper social circles of the world with their ambitions, false aspirations, tarnished idols, etc., and the upward reachings of true souls for the greatest good they can accomplish. There is strong writing against priests and their methods. The author says: "From the religions of our inheriting, our imbibing, our creating—from all religions but of thine implanting—deliver us, Oh Lord." Worldliness and selfishness, true love of one's neighbor, and self-sacrifice are all represented by strong characters.

Mabie, Hamilton Wright. My study fire. 2d ser. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1895 [1894.] c. 6+181 p. por. il. D. cl., $1.50.

McCarthy, Justin. Red diamonds: a novel. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. '93, '94. 2–409 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 144.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

A strange story of crime and its detection, with the scene in London. It opens at the Voyagers' Club. Gerald Aspen, a young journalist, is just beginning his dinner when a strangely dressed man wearing an enormous diamond takes the vacant chair at his table. The men enter into conversation, and the stranger tells he has just come from South Africa, and shows Gerald several small bags of cut diamonds. On parting he gives his pocket-book to the journalist for safe keeping, promising to meet him at the club the next day. That night the stranger is murdered in the streets of London. The pocket-book makes startling revelations of fortunes waiting only to be claimed and of evil deeds to be revenged. Gerald Aspen is the hero of many remarkable episodes.

McCauley, W. F. Why! reasons for the Christian Endeavor movement. Cin., O., The Standard Pub. Co., [1894.] c. 5+134 p. T. el., 50 c.

The Christian Endeavor society combines the advantages of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. It is international, unsectarian, and accepts both men and women. The reasons for its organization are here given and its needs specified: Enthusiasm, faithfulness, promptness, and system are absolutely essential to its success.

McClelland, Margaret Greenway. The old post-road. N. Y., The Merriam Co., [1894.] c. 163 p. 1 il. S. cl., 75 c.

A romantic story of Maryland in the early days of the century. The mail coach is held up by "jayhawks" on the old post-road between Baltimore and Havre-de-Grace, and a young man of good family is suspected of being one of the robbers. The sequel is his trial and a romantic act of self-sacrifice on the part of the girl who loves him.

McClelland, Margaret Greenway. St. John's wooing: a story. N. Y., Harper, 1895 [1894.] c. 3+175 p. il. S. (Harper's little novels.) cl., $1.

St. John is an Englishman who, when stranded in Arizona after many unprofitable business enterprises, receives a letter from an uncle telling him he has settled in Texas and asking him to come. At a neighboring ranch St. John meets Judy, the bright daughter of a United States soldier, who proves of great use in helping St. John save his cousin from a wild, irresponsible life. The families of St. John and of Judy are graphically described.

McCleneghan, Alex. Six years in heaven: a true story of human credulity and unexampled devotion, embracing a complete exposé of the abominable practice and monstrous professions of George Jacob Schweinfurth, the false Christ, whose main heaven is near Rockford, Ill.; with a biographical sketch of this most remarkable religious pretender of the century; introd. by Frank C. Lander. Chic., Laird & Lee, [1894.] c. 4+320 p. il. D. (Library of choice fiction, no. 71.) pap., 50 c.

The scene is Boom City. Richard Rogers, a staunch Christian, being brought to a realization of the moral depravity of the place, through his life there and an experience with a young tramp, holds a series of gospel meetings in his lumber-yard. The history of these meetings is told in a story, which shows many of the evil effects of intemperance as well as what can be accomplished by a steadfast Christian worker.

Macfarlane, C. W. Rent and profit. Phil., American Acad. of Political and Social Science, [1894.] 90–103 p. O. (Publications of the society, no. 126.) pap., 15 c.

The writer claims there has been not a little confusion in recent economic literature arising from the indefiniteness of the terms "rent" and "profit." He advises writers to adopt the following definitions regarding the use of these technical terms in economics: When we write "rent" we should think "price-determined surplus;" when we write "profit" we should think "price-determining surplus," thus pointing out the real economic difference between the two forms of surplus.

McGlasson, Eva Wilder. Ministers of grace: a novelette. N. Y., Harper, 1894. 3+141 p. il. S. (Harper's little novels.) cl., $1.

An old clergyman who has been asked to resign by his congregation is prostrated by the shock, and comes to an eastern seaside resort with his daughter to recruit his shattered nerves. The hotel is full of worldly guests, and the old man suffers from their hilarity and ungodly pursuits. A successful young actress, on vacation, betrays to the old preacher how his daughter has earned the money needed to supply his many invalid needs. The old man's prejudices lead him to harshness, but in the end all is well.

Machar, Miss Agnes Maule. Down the river to the sea. N. Y., Home Book Co., [1894.] c. 279 p. S. pap., 50 c.

A quiet chronicle of a trip down the St. Lawrence River past Niagara, to Kingston, Quebec, and through the Canadian channel of the Thousand Islands. Nearly all the members of the little party are Canadians, and the writer's point of view is thoroughly Canadian. Many striking episodes of Canadian history and legend are touched upon, and, of course, there are twin threads of romance to brighten this pleasant narrative of a summer jaunt.

Machen, Arthur. The great god Pan and The inmost light. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1894. c. 3–234 p. S. cl., $1.

Two weird, morbid stories, each having a central horror, which is rather hinted at than described. The heroines are women who have lost all moral consciousness, through experimental surgical operations on their brains, made in the service of science; their horrible careers are full of sensation. The stories have their scene chiefly in London The author has also written "The chronicle of Clemendy."

A new series of works specially designed for Sunday-schools and Bible classes, consisting of expositions of the International Sunday-School Lessons. They are grouped and arranged under the books of scripture to which they relate, and form a very fairly complete commentary on the particular portion of scripture. Dr. Maclaren is not only a thorough Biblical scholar, but he is an expositor who presses living truth home to heart and conscience. It is believed that the books will be found most useful to teachers and superintendents who are obliged to deliver addresses to children, for pupils in Bible classes, and for private reading.

The author is a popular Liverpool Presbyterian pastor, born in Scotland, and a theologian of some repute. His sketches are somewhat in the line of Mr Barrie's, being realistic pictures of the Scotch character, and are both pathetic and humorous. They are called "Domsie," "A Highland mystic," "His mother's sermon," "The transformation of Lachlan Campbell," "The cunning speech of Drumlochty," "A wise woman," and "A doctor of the old school."

McLaughlin, E: Tompkins. Studies in mediæval life and literature. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 10+188 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Contents: Introduction, giving a sketch of the writer, by T. R. Lounsbury. Following are six studies, called: The mediæval feeling for nature: Ulrich von Liechtenstein, the memoir of an old German gallant; Neidhart von Reuenthal and his Bavarian peasants; Meier Helmbrecht, a German farmer of the thirteenth century; Childhood in mediæval literature; A mediæval woman.

Maclay, Edgar Stanton. A history of the United States navy from 1775 to 1893; with technical revision by Roy C. Smith. In 2 v. V. 1. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. '93. 32+575 p. il. maps, diagrams, O. cl., $3.50.

For nine years the author has devoted himself to the task of supplying the want of a complete history of our navy. His researches in France, with the assistance of Admiral Aube, Minister of the Colonies and the Marine, and in England with the aid of the late Sir Provo Wallis and others, together with the use of private papers and unpublished documents in this country, the aid of descendants of naval heroes and the suggestions of naval officers who have taken part in some of the events described, render the results of his diligent labor complete and authoritative. In addition to the spirited illustrations of Mr. J. O. Davidson, there are many carefully prepared diagrams of important battles, showing the respective positions of the ships throughout the contest, and there are many small maps of the scenes of naval operations.

Maclay, Edgar Stanton. A history of the United States navy from 1775 to 1894; with technical revision by Roy C. Smith. In 2 v. V. 2. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 14+640 p. il. maps, diagrams, O. cl., $3.50.

In this volume Mr. Maclay depicts the closing scenes of the War of 1812, and recounts the events of consequence in the history of the navy down to the Civil War. The larger part of the volume is naturally devoted to the war, and in view of the author's exhaustive researches and the collaboration of many officers who were actors in this great drama, the publishers feel justified in emphasizing the importance of the succinct but comprehensive naval history of the Civil War presented in this volume. The concluding chapters relate to the naval happenings of importance since the war down to the launching of the Columbia, and the building up of the new navy is fully described.

McMurrich, J. Playfair: a text-book of invertebrate morphology. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1894. c. 7+661 p. O. cl., $4.

"The morphology of invertebrate animals may be treated either from the standpoint of comparative anatomy or from the zoölogical side, and either method of treatment has much to recommend it. In my experience, however, the zoölogical method has proved most satisfactory for the presentation of the subject to students, inasmuch as it is necessarily the method employed in the laboratory, and accordingly in the present work that plan of presenting the facts of morphology has been followed."—Preface. Each chapter is followed by brief bibliographies of the subject. The author is professor in the University of Michigan.

McVickar, H: Goelet. The purple light of love. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 2+176 p. D. cl., 75 c.

The purple light of love comes into the life of John Edgar when he has reached fame and fortune as a successful railroad lawyer. The woman is a calculating widow and the man dies of a broken heart. Fashionable New York and Newport circles, clubs, and decks of yachts are made the background of an earnest, honest man's life-tragedy.

Macy, Jesse. First lessons in civil government. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1894. c. 13+229 p. il. D. cl., 70 c.

By the author of "Our government." Suggests that a child in drawing the map of its townsbip, or county, be instructed as to the public control of that area. Beginning thus with the government of the public school in which a child finds itself, its outlook is gradually extended until the government of the United States is briefly and simply explained. Four typical state governments are compared, with provision for the study of any other. Concludes with a strong plea for the fulfilment of civic duty—the habit to be formed early in life. Cites the case of W: M. Tweed as showing the consequences when citizens neglect their duty, and contrasts this with the readiness of the same men to die, if need be, for their country.

Maeterlinck, sometimes called "the Flemish Shakespeare," represents one of the leaders in the new style of "symbolical" writing, which is attracting so much attention at the present time. Arthur Symonds has called this school a body of "Decadents," but it is in reality a revival. Maurice Maeterlinck was born in 1864. His earlier work was a volume Serres Chandes; after, he wrote La Princesse Maleine, which appeared in 1890, followed by L'Intruse, Les Aveugles, and Les Sept Princesses. The present work is his latest. It is a drama for the reader and not for the stage, and has a clean and definite plot in which different people will see different meanings. It is the old story or a variation of the old story of Francesca da Rimini and her lover. Mr. Winslow furnishes a brief biographical and explanatory introduction.

Magruder, Miss Julia. The child Amy; il. by Hèlen Maitland Armstrong. Bost., Lothrop Pub. Co., [1894.] c. 4+302 p. il. O. cl., $1.50.

A tiny waif, picked up at sea, finds entrance into a stern and divided home, and becomes the central spirit of that home, purifying and uniting it. Through a natural and consistant story is illustrated the redeeming influence of childhood as presented by the child "Amy." Fully illustrated.

The first novel in the new Traveller's library tells a sensational story of poisons, snakes, and vipers used for special purposes by a mysterious Dr. Mulgrove. The key to the story is found in still more sensational tales of life in Ecuador, dating back a quarter of a century. The Queen of Ecuador is a young physician doing duty as trained nurse to get at Dr. Mulgrove's secrets. A murder trial brings about unsuspected evidence.

Falls in the same general class with Smiles' "Self-Help" and Dr. Mathews' "Getting on in the world." Such chapter heads as "The man and the opportunity," "Boys and girls with no chance," "An iron will," "Possibilities in spare moments." "Round boys in square holes," "Concentrated energy," "Manners," "Enthusiasm," "The victory in defeat," etc., give a hint of the practical and helpful nature of the book. Apt and telling anecdotes, which illustrate or enforce the author's statements, are given with marvellous profusion, and serve at once to emphasize the excellent points of the book and to make it wonderfully readable. Illustrated with twenty-four portraits of eminent persons.

A hasty secret marriage, subsequently concealed, is the cause of the unhappiness which is the plentiful portion of the heroine. Believing herself a widow she marries again, only to find that her first husband is living and that she is involved in a course of deceit which is successfully maintained until a second widowhood brings freedom. The scene is chiefly St. Augustine.

Penelope, the grand-daughter of Dean Sidney, is the heroine. The story tells of her quiet life in the quaint old deanery, of the advent of the Allingtons in St. Christopher's Close, of the sad episode in Penelope's life, which necessitated her making her home at Overcombe, and finally gives the interesting details of an old-fashioned love-affair.

Marshall, Mrs. Emma Martin. Kensington Palace in the days of Queen Mary II.: a story. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 4+336 p. por. il. D. cl., $1.50.

The story opens in 1690, about the time of the battle of the Boyne. Queen Mary II., while awaiting the return of William III. from Ireland, is prevailed upon to accord an audience to Sir Redvers Brooke, who induces her majesty to look upon his daughter Margrey as a prospective lady-in-waiting. Besides the interesting incidents of Margery's career at Court, and in Kensington Palace, many events of historic interest are given, notably those in which the queen is the central figure. It is claimed that attempt is made to represent this queen in a different light from that in which she is generally seen. The d'Angleterre memories is one of the sources of historic information on which the tale is founded.

Marshall, Mrs. Emma Martin. Lizette and her mission; or, over the moor; il. by W. Lance. N. Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., [1894.] 6+332 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A story picturing life in a Yorkshire farm-house about forty years ago, and telling how Lizette Ravensworth attempted to play the part of mediator between her uncle and a refractory stepson; and giving some of the incidents that followed this effort, notably an unconventional betrothal.

The first volume of a new series, to include works on anthropology and the various subordinate sciences comprised under this name. While the works are intended to be of general interest, they will in every case be written by authorities, and scientific accuracy will never be sacrificed to popularity. Prof. Mason, who begins the series, is curator of the Department of Ethnology in the United States National Museum. He sets forth woman's share in the culture of the world by her works, in chapters having for their subjects woman as the food-bringer, the weaver, the skin-dresser, the potter, the artist, the linguist, the founder of society, and the patron of religion.

Masson, F: Napoleon, lover and husband; from the French by J. M. Howell. N. Y., The Merriam Co., [1894.] c. 2–322 p. pors. O. cl., $2.

Frederic Masson has hitherto been known as a devotee of Bonapartism, but he has here made "revelations" in telling the story of Napoleon's two marriages and his various amours, that would scarcely be believed—as the emperor has generally been looked upon as impervious to feminine blandishments and influences—if they were not supported by evideuce that seems unimpeachable. Many of the names and episodes embraced in the book have beeu vaguely touched upon before, but only now for the first time have we a separate story devoted wholly to the lover's side of Napoleon's character from the time of his precocious youth to the day that he died at St. Helena. His relations with Josephine and her true character are portrayed, while his divorce aud the story of his marriage to Marie Louise possess many novel details. His intrigues with Madame Fourès, Madame Walewska, and other women of lower social position are told without reserve.

Masterman, J. A devoted couple: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1894. 2+358 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new ser., no. 745.) pap., 60 c.

A story of English home-life in a large family. The "devoted couple" are the parents of six sons. The story opens with Mr. and Mrs. Vernon's return, with their two youngest children, from long residence in India, to settle in England and renew home-life with the four boys whom they had left in the mother country twelve years before. The quiet fortunes of the Vernons are followed through successive years of happiness, separation, and reunion. Of course most of the young people have their little romance, and several daughters-in-law are inducted into the home. The mutual devotion of husband and wife, and the affection and confidence between parents and children are pleasantly pictured.

The hero is a Russiau, born and educated in England; in spite of his English training he remains a Russian to the core—a fatalist aud a pessimist, and strong for good or evil. He and a French governess, who has committed a crime, work all the mischief. The story is a domestic one, dealing with the family of Tom Denison, a rich English manufacturer. It is his daughter, Easter, whose life is spoiled by the "man of to-day" after she has married one entirely worthy of her.

The little Scotch fishing town of Kirkcaldy is the home of the Oliphants, the family whose sombre history is recorded. The hereditary curse of their house is that the sons shall be libertines, bringing sorrow and early death to their womenkind; it has been unbroken for generations, is fulfilled in the life of Douglas Oliphant, the eldest son, and ceases only with the end of the family line. Margrédel is the illegitimate daughter of Douglas Oliphant, whose existence is unknown to her father and who is brought up in Kirkcaldy by her French uncle in ignorance of her birth. Her affection for pretty Jean Oliphant, subsequent intimacy with the family, and the discovery of her relationship, are steps to the final tragedy of the Oliphants. The description of Scotch village life in the early days of the century is graphic, and the Kirkcaldy folk are pictured with humor and realism.

Baron de Méneval was Napoleon's confidential secretary and intimate friend; he knew Napoleon as few knew him. Of his work the London Athenæum says: "It contains details concerning Napoleon's childhood and early life, his private life during Méneval's time of service, his opinions on men and matters, and numerous letters from him on many subjects. Méneval also describes some of the campaigns in which he accompanied the emperor. He gives many anecdotes concerning well-known personages, as well in the literary, artistic, and scientific world as in military and political circles. Some statements which the author makes with reference to Bourrienne's 'Memoirs' and 'the manuscript which came from St. Helena in a manner unknown' are likely to be interesting." Autograph letters, portraits, and hitherto unpublished documents are included in the work.

Meredith, G: Lord Ormont and his Aminta. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 5+442 p. D. cl., $1.50.

On a thread of romance Meredith has strung epigrams and arraignments worded by a prophet and a seer, putting clearly to thoughtful men and women the all-powerful element of sex in human aspirations and undertakings; the outgrowu need of great armies and navies; the far greater value of educatiou and personal influence than of force aud self-assertion, etc. Lord Ormont, a dissatisfied, retired Indian officer, writing a book about unfair treatment at the hands of government, his sister, Lady Eglett, a worldly wise, highly eccentric thinker, Matthew Weyburn, Lord Ormont's secretary and a school-master, and Aminta, a beautiful school-girl, who is the wife of middle-aged, careless Lord Ormont, are the characters. The problems are debated ou English soil.

Merriam, Florence A. My summer in a Mormon village. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 3+171 p. S. cl., $1.

The author of "Birds through an opera-glass" has described her observations while travelling with Mrs. Olive Thorne Miller to study birds in the Salt Lake Basin during 1893. Miss Merriam gives a delightful description of Mormon life aud the marvellous scenery. A very clear idea is given of Mormon doctrines, although the book is chiefly devoted to the natural beauties of Mormon lands.

Merrill, Rev. G: E. The parchments of the faith. Phil., American Baptist Pub. Soc., 1894. c. 3–288 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

In a singularly luminous and direct style Mr. Merrill tells us of the manuscripts of the Old and New Testaments from which our present perfect copies of the Scriptures are made. We read in his pages of the industrious work of the Massoretes, those indefatigable copyists and editors of the Old Testament mss., of the formation of the Septuagint, of the origin of the Samaritan Pentateuch, and of the different versions of the Old Testament. He also gives a very interesting account of the finding of the great Sinaitic Codex by Tischendorf at the monastery of St. Catherine.

Merriman, Mrs. Effie W. Mollie Miller. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1895 [1894.] c. 285 p. il. S. cl., $1.25.

Continues the story of the Miller family begun in "The little Millers"; the young reader is asked to follow the fortunes of Mollie, Ned, and Max, and their "'dopted child" Johnnie, through their many changes.

Merriman, H: Seton, [pseud. for H. S. Scott.] With edged tools: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 4+340 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The scene changes back and forth, from London to the heart of Africa. Two young men of good families, both impelled by love for the same woman, who is flirting with one, though engaged to the other, and who has deceived both, engages in a scheme with a third man, expecting to make great fortunes that will enable them to marry. The scheme is to take an expedition to the heart of Africa and secure a quantity of a valuable plant called "simiacine," which has rare medicinal properties. Opportunity is thus given for many fresh scenes from African life in the jungle, with its dark side of vice and misery, and its risks and adventures. Two elderly titled friends in the London "swim" are sketched with a Thackeray-like cynicism.

Merton, Holmes W. Life and healing: a segment of spiritonomy. Bost., [Holmes W. Merton], 212 Columbus Ave., [1894.] c. '93, '94. 3–49 p. por. nar. D. cl., 50 c.; flex. cl., 75 c.; pap., 25 c.

Spiritonomy treats of spiritones, living spirit bodies to which human material bodies should be servants. The author holds that all mental or physical ailments can be cured when thoroughly treated by life-giving forces within and around us. He argues that disease is but the loss of spiritual self-rulership, and that a consistent study of the needs of the soul will make the needs of the body assume secondary importance.

Metcalf, Rob. C. and T: English grammar for common schools. N. Y., American Book Co., [1894.] c. 288 p. D. cl., 60 c.

"This book is prepared on a plan somewhat different from that followed in most grammars for schools. Thus in pt. 1 we have endeavored to lead the pupil by easy steps: (1), to understand the usual constructions of sentences. (2), to study the uses of words and to classify them as parts of speech. In pt. 2 we call the pupil's attention to inflection, its extent and use, and also to the substitutes for inflections. In pt. 3 the preceding work is carefully reviewed, and some of the more important difficulties are considered."—Preface.

A close similarity has been traced between the life of Jesus Christ and that of the prophet who preceded him by a little upwards of 600 years. The author endeavors to tell the story of the brilliant prophet chronologically. He finds a special message in the ministry of Jeremiah for those compelled to stand alone and to be misunderstood in serving their fellow-men whom they passionately love.

Division 1 treats of the "Elements of decoration," or motives of which it is formed. Geometrical motives formed by the rhythmical arrangement of dots and lines, by the regular section of angles, by the formation and division of closed figures, are followed by the forms of nature which are offered for ornamental imitation by the vegetable and animal kingdoms, and by the human frame. These, in turn, are followed by artificial objects, or forms borrowed from art, technology, and science. Division 2, "Ornament applied to features," arranges them according to their functions, and the reciprocal relation between the construction of the object and the application of the ornament. Division 3 shows the application of decoration to vase-form, metal objects, furniture frames, jewelry, heraldry, and writing, printing, etc.

Miller, Mrs. Harriet Mann, ["Olive Thorne Miller," pseud.] A bird-lover in the west. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. e. 4+278 p. D. el., $1.25.

These studies were all made, as the title indicates, in the west; part of them in Colorado (1891), in Utah (1893), and the remainder (1892) in what the writer calls "the middle country," being southern Ohio and west only relatively to New England and New York. They give most interesting sketches with many details of the birds of these regions, their habits, appearance, etc.

Miller, Mrs. Harriet Mann, ["Olive Thorne Miller," pseud.] Our home pets, how to keep them well and happy. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 5+273 p. il. S. el., $1.25.

In her usual happy and instructive style the author discourses of birds, dogs, cats, monkeys, and other pets, and of their proper care, treatment, and training. She asks and answers the following questions: Is it cruel to keep birds? Which shall we choose? How shall it be got home and tamed? What shall he eat? There are also chapters on the various kinds of pet dogs, etc.

The author gives due importance to the factors of health, heredity, and environment. He then advises to study inclinations and talents, to be honest, upright, and self-controlled, to abstain from all liquors; to be cautious in speech, to avoid worry, shun evil companions; "to marry a true woman, be a good husband, and have a home of your own." Quotes aptly from a wide range of authors.

Mitchell, Laisdell. Tony: the story of a waif. Phil., American Baptist Pub. Soc., 1894. c. 58 p. il. D. cl., 75 c.

Tony is a little newsboy, who is rescued from being trampled to death by the hoofs of a passing team, by a young doctor who is a staff member of a boys' hospital, where he has Tony carried. The boy's gentleness and bravery so endear him to the doctor that he adopts him.

Mitchell, Langdon Elwyn, ["J: Philip Varley," pseud.] Poems. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 6+118 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The poems show a fine variety of quality—dramatic power, a sense of nature, imagination, and fancy. The author is the son of Dr. S. Weir Mitchell.

Mitchell, R: M. The safe side; a theistic refutation of the divinity of Christ. Chic., R: M. Mitchell, 6141 Stewart Ave., [1894.] c. '93. 475 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The author aims to show that Christ was not the son of God, and that the Bible is not the word of God; he believes that the entire Christian system may be swept away, and yet a pure religion and profound veneration for God remain. The New Testament is subjected to a rigorous criticism in the light of contemporary and modern writers. He believes that a false standard of right and wrong has been deducted from the Bible. "We shall best," he says, "win a heaven in the life to come, by making a heaven of the life we are in. The enigmas of this life are all that is given us to solve here."

Mitchell, S. Weir, M.D. When all the woods are green: a novel. N. Y., The Century Co., 1894. c. 5+419 p. por. D. cl., $1.50.

The story of a camping-out summer spent by a party of well-to-do and cultured people deep in the primeval Canadian forests. Like Dr. Mitchell's previous romance, "Characteristics," the book abounds in brilliant and epigrammatic conversations, and the development of the plot occurs almost wholly by means of dialogue. Of course there is a thread of love-story; there is also an element of tragedy in the sordid, squalid home of woodsman Joe; and there are some capital descriptions of salmon-fishing, bear-hunting, and other sport with rod and gun.

Mitchell, Rev. Walter. Two strings to his bow. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. 2+278 p. D. cl., $1.25.

An elaboration of a clever story that appeared in the Atlantic under the same title a few months ago. The hero is a clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church, whose peculiarity is a tendency to answer letters in handwriting similar to that of the sender. This is used against him, and leads to many skilfully managed complications and many interesting discussions on questions of right and wrong, opinions, motives, etc.

Moffett, S. E. Suggestions on government. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1894. c. 2–200 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The writer points out that our executive administration—local, state, and national—is inefficient. "It is in the hands of political professionals, who are necessarily administrative amateurs. Devoting their chief attention to the science of politics, they are naturally unable to go deeply into the science of government." The first requisite of reform he holds to be the close contact between the individual citizen and the agents his vote has summoned to conduct public affairs. The "boss" system must be abolished.

Molesworth, Mrs. Mary Louisa, ["Ennis Graham," pseud.] Blanche: a story for girls; [also] One Sunday morning; il. by R. Barnes. N. Y., T: Whittaker, [1894.] 4–372 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

Blanche Derwent was born in the south of France, of English parentage. On account of her parents having lived in France for many years, the entire family had unconsciously assumed French ways. After the death of Mr. Derwent his widow decided to return to her native land. Blanche is a striking contrast to the average English girl, and the story gives her impressions of England, with her English experiences, including a romantic love-affair, in which she is the heroine.

Molesworth, Mrs. Mary Louisa, ["Ennis Graham," pseud.] My new home; il. by L. Leslie Brooke. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. c. 6+214 p. D. cl., $1.

The scene opens in the Middlemoor Hills; Helena Wingfield, an orphan, tells in a quaint and irresistible way the story of her life at Windy Gap Cottage, introducing in her narration the incidents that led her grandmother to leave Windy Gap for a finer London residence, and also tells why she ran away from her new home.

Molesworth, Mrs. Mary Louisa, ["Ennis Graham," pseud.] Olivia: a story for girls; il. by R. Barnes. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1895 [1894.] 311 p. D. cl., $1.25.

An English story of a young girl and her little sister "Pussy," the only children of the vicar of a country church. Olivia's besetting sin is an over-weening self-esteem, which betrays her into some sad mistakes.

The lessons are treated in a more comprehensive way than is possible in any Sunday-school help. The writers of the present volume are the Revs. Nehemiah Boynton, William R. Campbell, Charles M. Southgate, John E. Tuttle, D.D., Justin E. Twitchell, D.D., Addison P. Foster, D.D., Wm. Elliot Griffis, D.D., DeWitt S. Clark, Edward S. Tead, and others.

Monk, Thymol. An altar of earth. N. Y G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 2+233 p. 1 il. S. cl., $1.

A sad, morbid story about two young English women who are socialists; both reject the love of two honorable men, that they may work for humanity. The one is a designer in a London dressmaking establishment, the other had been a medical student until the knowledge came to her that she possessed a fatal disease which would kill her in two years: she then goes with her friend to rest in the country, and makes the final sacrifice of her life.

Moore, Frank Frankfort. A gray eye or so. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. 6+362 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 131.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

A story of love and politics, of which the scene is laid in Ireland. Anecdotes of Irish life, habits, customs, and traditions are woven in throughout the story, chiefly introduced by an original boatman, who plays a conspicuous part in shaping the fortunes of a gray-eyed woman. By the author of "I forbid the banns."

Moore, G: Esther Waters: a novel. Chic., E. A. Weeks & Co., [1894.] 350 p. D. (The Melbourne ser., no. 23.) pap., 25 c.

Esther Waters is a servant-girl who, while kitchen-maid in the family of a philanthropic woman, is seduced by one of the grooms having care of betting and race-horses. Her subsequent life, her devotion to her child, and suffering on his account, and her final reunion with the man who had betrayed her, make the story. Life among turfmen and their servants, and the different phases of life below stairs, of charitable institutions, and all the various positions into which an unlettered servaut-girl can drift, are described with almost too much frankness for general reading.

The author studied, went abroad, then became a teacher at Columbia College, N. Y. His health broke down, and he then retired to Staten Island and spent his days in introspection and speculation on various faiths, to all of which he opposed a "great refusal." The volume is made up of letters supposed to have been written to a woman, interspersed with poems. They are full of literary and artistic criticisms and æsthetic thoughts on life and human aspirations.

Morgan, C. Lloyd. An introduction to comparative psychology. N. Y., imported by C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. 12+382 p. D. (Contemporary science ser.) cl., $1.25.

The writer is principal of University College, Bristol, England. The first object is to discuss the relation of the psychology of man to that of the higher animals; the second to consider the place of consciousness in nature, the relation of psychical evolution to physical and biological evolution, and the light which comparative psychology throws on certain philosophical problems. The author does not concede higher psychical faculty to animals.

Morgan, Mrs. Edmund Nash. Though the gods and the years relent; or, the romance of two women. N. Y., Home-Book Co., 45 Vesey St., 1894. c. 3–216 p. D. (Modern novelists' ser., no. 8.) pap., 50 c.

The scene changes from Italy to England and back again. The hero of the romance is a successful English artist, whose fickleness wrecks the lives of two women.

Morgan, Emily Malbone. The flight of the swallow. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1894.] c. 6–108 p. il. D. cl., 75 c.

"Swallow, old Swallow," was the sobriquet given by the boys of Selborne to a French refugee, who earned his living by giving the children of that New England village dancing lessons. The mystery of his life is suddenly revealed to Lucilla Kent, after a letter from France summons Monsieur De Bion to his beloved Fontainebleau. There is a quaint romance interwoven with the story.

Morris, Harrison S. Madonna, and other poems. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1894. c. 3–229 p. il. D. cl., $2.

The poems, songs, and sonnets that Mr. Morris has been contributing for some years to leading periodicals are brought together for the first time in this beautiful volume. They make a most interesting and delightful collection, genuinely poetic, richly imaginative, cultured in form and sentiment. If we except "The lonely bird," and a tender dirge "To a comrade," they are entirely impersonal, and are charmingly free from the disagreeable pessimism and artifical passion of the hour. They have a pure woodland flavor that takes one back to the Elizabethan poets, and often strike a happy, joyous note so entirely in harmony with nature that it seems the poet's best mood. "A garden quest," however, is quite dramatic, and the theme is finely handled. The "Madonna" was first printed in The Century, with the picture by F. V. Du Mond which forms the frontispiece. The divisions of the book—after the longer pieces, which come first—are "Landscape," "Song," "Story," "Sonnets," and "Trivia." A very bookish volume and also a very pretty one, with dainty head-pieces, cover-design, and title-page, by E. S. Holloway.

Mortimer, Alfred G., D.D. Stories from Genesis: sermons for children. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., 1894. c. 10+225 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The author is the rector of St. Mark's, Phila. In these sermons on the Book of Genesis, he has not so much aimed at telling the familiar stories of that most interesting book, as at drawing from each one some important lesson and so linking with it in the minds of the children certain definite teachings as to doctrine and morals.

"It is scarcely necessary to say that on questions of literary criticism, which in no respect, or at most remotely, concern exposition, this commentary says little or nothing," the writer states in his preface, and further in speaking of the aim of the epistle, "It seems plain that when the epistle is studied from within its deepest spiritual element, it shows us the apostle fully minded of the largest aspects of the life and work of the church, and also, and yet more, occupied with the problem of the relation of the believing sinner to God. The question of personal salvation was never, by St. Paul, forgotten in that of Christian policy."

Muir, J: The mountains of California. N. Y., The Century Co., 1894. c. 7+381 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

John Muir is one of the best known of California naturalists, and he describes the wonders and beauties of the Sierra Nevada range with scientific accuracy and with warm appreciation of natural loveliness. He tells, from intimate personal knowledge, of the glaciers, glacial lakes and meadows, the forests, mountain-passes, floods and thunderstorms, and the foot-hills and bee forests of that wonderful and little-known region. Numerous illustrations supplement the text.

Muir, Matthew M. Pattison. The alchemical essence and the chemical element: an episode in the quest of the unchanging. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1894. 3+94 p. O. cl., $1.50.

The object of this essay is to set forth the essential differences, while tracing the relations, between the alchemical and the chemical conception of the elements. The development of the modern notion of the elements, as definite kinds of matter incapable of mutual transformation, is traced, and the questions suggested by this conception are noticed. Incidentally it is shown how dangerous to progress any attempt must be to return to the loose alchemical ways of thinking about natural occurrences.

D. pap., 50 c.

The first edition was exhausted in six months, and has received high praise from well-known American teachers. The author judges the best method to study harmony, next to practice of chord-connection, is to harmonize melodies by finding both the bass and middle voices. He has harmonized many melodies in full so the student may learn in how many ways the same subject may be introduced. His object is to teach harmony, not the writing of tunes.

Addresses delivered before the Sixth Annual Interdenominational Seaside Bible Conference, held at Asbury Park, N. J., Aug. 11-21, 1893. The editor decided to publish them, as they are from some of the most famous divines of the day, "because of the audacious and persistent assaults made upon the integrity of the Bible by many pastors, editors, theological professors, and other educators belonging to orthodox churches, and because of the impudent assumption of these gentlemen that scholarship is almost wholly with them in their methods, work, and conclusions."

Munroe, Kirk. Big Cypress: the story of an Everglade homestead; il. by H. Burgess. Bost., W. A. Wilde & Co., [1894.] c. 164 p. il. D. cl., $1.

A story replete with practical information concerning pioneer life in a little known but intensely interesting portion of the United States. It outlines the processes of "claiming," "filing," "holding down," and "proving up" a homestead; deals with the Seminoles of South Florida; describes those rare animals, the manatee and the crocodile; tells of "wracking," or beach-combing; of the raising of pineapples and cocoanuts, and deals with a score of other subjects as unique as they are interesting.

Munroe, Kirk. The fur seal's tooth: a story of Alaskan adventure. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 8+267 p. il. map, D. cl., $1.25.

The hero is a well-educated New England lad, who starts from New London, Ct., to join his father in Alaska; his adventures serve to illustrate his faults and shortcomings, most of his troubles coming from some carelessness of his own. He is robbed of his money on his journey across the continent, is falsely arrested, loses his steamer at Vancouver, tries to work his passage on a supposed fishing vessel, and finds he has embarked upon a pelagic sealer; the hunting for seals near the Pribyloff Islands and the descent upon the hunters of a U. S. Revenue cutter furnish many exciting scenes. The book gives a capital idea of seal-hunting and our difficulties with other nations on the subject.

Traces the story of Japan from its beginnings to the establishment of constitutional government. "It would be impossible," the author says, "to state in detail the sources from which I have derived the material for this work. I place first and as most important a residence of several years in Japan, during which I became familiar with the character of the Japanese people and with the traditions and events of their history." The numerous works treating of Japan, he had occasion to consult, are mentioned in the narrative.

Murray, D: Christie. In direst peril: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. '93. 3+303 p. D. cl., $1.25.

After thirty-eight years of happy wedded life the husband writes the story of how he won his wife in the stormy days of 1847, when Garibaldi and Cavour were fighting the last war for Italian independence. The wife had never seen her father who, since her birth, had been a political prisoner for twenty years The hero rescued the father and to frustrate a treacherous plot was obliged to steal £40,000 of his wife's money, which had fallen into the wrong hands. An exciting tale, in strict accordance with history.

Murray-Aaron, Dr. Eugene. The butterfly-hunters in the Caribbees. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 10+269 p. il. O. cl., $2.

Scientific accuracy has been the main guiding principle in the production of this work, although written to entertain young people. The heroes are two brothers, Edward and Harry Dawson, fourteen and sixteen years of age, who spend their ten weeks' vacation in a tour with a Dr. Bartlett, who is seeking specimens for a German museum. Their time is spent in the West Indies collecting butterflies, and they visit the Bahamas, Hayti, and Jamaica, ground with which the author is thoroughly familiar, the scenes and incidents described having occurred in his own experience as an exploring naturalist.

Musick, J: R. Humbled pride: a story of the Mexican war; il. by F. A. Carter. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls Co., 1893 [1894.] c. '93. 11+462 p. il. D. (Columbian historical novels, no. 11.) cl., $1.50.

This volume supplies a readable and interesting account of historical events pertaining to the administration of Presidents John Quincy Adams, Andrew Jackson, Martin Van Buren, William H. Harrison, John Tyler, Jas. K. Polk, Zachary Taylor, Millard Fillmore, and Franklin Pierce. The slavery question forms a large part of the narrative; the rise of Mormonism, the building of the Erie canal, and the acquisition by the United States of nearly one-fourth of its present territory are also subjects dealt with. The romance between the Stevens and the Estevan family continues, connecting the volume with the former ones of the series.

Musick, J: R. Union: a story of the great rebellion; il. by F. A. Carter. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls Co., 1894. c. 18+505 p. il. D. (Columbian historical novels, no. 12.) cl., $1.50.

This volume completes the series of "Columbian historical novels." It begins with the events leading up to the Rebellion, reviews Buchanan's administration, and shows the weakness of his character. Lincoln then takes his place and steers the helm of the ship of state successfully through the storm of four years' civil war. A deep mystery and an intricate plot in the narrative, and in which the central figure is Elsie Cole, is finally worked out at the close of the story, which ends with John Wilkes Booth making love to Maggie Mitchell, his proposal and his rejection; the assassination of President Lincoln, and the death of Booth. The romance of the narrative ends with the year 1865. Following is a full and complete statement of leading events in our country's history down to 1894.

Muss-Arnolt, W. A concise dictionary of the Assyrian language, (Assyrian—English—German.) Pt. 1. N. Y., B. Westermann & Co., 1894. 8+64 p. O. pap., $1.25.

My two wives, by one of their husbands; in two parts: Part 1, My first wife, by her second husband. Part 2, My second wife, by her first husband; with an editorial preface by Eldon Phewfces, esq., etc., etc., and an authorial introduction by Mr. Timothy Moleskin. N. Y., The Cassell Pub. Co., [1894.] c. 26+170 p. nar. D. (The unknown lib., no. 30.) cl., 50 c.

The husband who tells the humorous and often pathetic story of his matrimonial ventures is a retired grocer who confesses to "a grocer's heart and mind." The first Mrs. Moleskin was a widow of great self-esteem, energy, and strong evangelical tendencies; the second is a gentle, loving woman, in whom her much-married husband finds all he had dreamed of home love and happiness. The grocer's comments on the habits and religion of his neighbors are full of worldly wisdom and common sense.

The story of an unhappy marriage. Douglas Colborne, a young Englishman of some means and of good social position, meets the Countess Radna in Paris, and loses his heart to her. The countess is an Austrian, of almost royal rank; is young, beautiful, enormously wealthy, and quite independent; she is spoilt and capricious, and after agreeing to marry Douglas finds the quiet English home life he asks her to lead for part of the year monotonous and unbearable. In a short time they are separated; the countess returning to Paris, Douglas remaining at his home. Douglas' life is the principal theme, although the countess' strange household and odd friends are carefully described.

The despotic lady is a religious reformer, the mother of a young girl with whom an incipient poet has fallen madly in love. This friend, a confirmed bachelor, heir to the old Hexham title, undertakes to tame the preaching dragon, but is almost captured himself in his friendly devotion. A secret in the past of the righteous exhorter, held by the poet's father, is worked to bring about happiness for all.

Norris, W: E: Matthew Austin. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1894. c. '93, '94. 2+389 p.

Matthew Austin is a young English doctor of fair fortune and of good birth, and with a growing practice, who is quite happily settled throughout the story in a pretty bachelor home, in a little English town noted for its healing waters. He is kind and good-tempered, generous and sensible—the latter almost to a fault—as his good sense often displayed creates doubts with his friends of the depth and warmth of his heart. For a time his happiness seems complete with his flowers, and books, and etchings, and friends. But, when the inevitable woman comes upon the scene, he becomes a most interesting character study, and the desire to know what he will do under many perplexing circumstances never flags. A clean, cheerful story of domestic life, with little of the sensational.

A story of a young girl who is left a large landed estate and fortune by a disagreeable uncle who had never in life noticed her existence. His will had been drawn to punish a young man, whom he had led to believe would be his heir. When Veronica Trevor is notified of her great good luck, her one thought is to transfer the estate and a part of the money to Horace Trevor, the disappointed heir, whom she believes has been most unjustly treated. The result is a sometimes serious and sometimes amusing series of [illegible] in which a young [illegible] plays an entertaining part. A quiet, unsensational story.

The Buddhistic chroniele here translated fills the gap left by the Gospels in their narration of the life of Christ, from the time he left Judea at the age of twelve until his return at the age of thirty. It tells of his study of the Vedas with the Brahmins, his eloquent denunciation of idol worship which caused him to leave the Buddhists, his missionary preaching among the Zoroastrians, and of his final return to Judea. The original manuscript is in Lhasse, and there are various copies in Buddhist monasteries.

No attempt has been made at a formal, systematic presentation of bacteriology. The subject-matter has been arranged entirely with reference to progressive work in the laboratory, and more especially corresponds with the work as carried on in the hygienic laboratory of the University of Michigan. The course covers a period of twelve weeks of daily afternoon work. Illustrations of the various bacteria and of their cultural characteristics have been expressly omitted, as the student is expected to sketch from observation the form of each organism and its peculiarities of growth in the colony, and in tube culture. Blank pages are provided for this purpose, and for additioual notes.

Oliphant, Mrs. Marg. O. W. Sir Robert's fortune: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 456 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Scotland sixty years ago is the scene. Sir Robert Ramsay, a rich old peer, has but one heir, his niece Lily, a gentle, honest-minded girl, who loves Ronald Lumsden, a clever, calculating young lawyer. To break off the affair Lily is sent "up north" to her uncle's shooting lodge. Lumsden follows her and persuades her to a marriage, which he keeps secret, by unscrupulous means, in the hope of obtaining Sir Robert's fortune through his wife. The dénouement, after the fortune is finally won, is unexpected and dramatic. There is a painful interest in the development of the young lawyer's scheming, selfish nature, and in poor Lily's gradual disillusionment.

Oliphant, Mrs. Marg. O. W. Who was lost and is found: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1895 [1894.] c. 2+249 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The return of the "prodigal son" as pictured in this story seems scarcely to have been a cause for permanent rejoicing. For fifteen years Mrs. Ogilvy, one of the most respected inhabitants of the parish of Eskholm, in Midlothian, Scotland, had yearned for the coming home of her truant son "Robbie," who had gone to America, where it was reported he was living a shameless life, having connected himself with a band of robbers in the western country. Just as Mrs. Ogilvy has heard that her son is being pursued by the officers of the law, "Robbie" appears in the peaceful home, and is in a short time joined by an old companion in crime. The mother is obliged to hide the men from her neighbors, and is in constant fear both from them and for them. The story is painfully realistic for a time--but ends happily.

The heroine is a not very young woman, devoted to art, who believes in theosophy and hates housekeeping; the hero is her brother-in-law, a widower with one child, who is the pastor of a fashionable orthodox church. They love each other, but the woman refuses to marry, on the plea that she will lose her independence, and that she is unsuited to be a minister's wife. The various chapters give their many conversations on the subject, her final consent and how it is obtained, the history of their marriage and its results.

The Rev. David Devine had given a series of eloquent sermons upon the iniquity of the Devil, when he is surprised one evening by a visit, in his study, of a dignified stranger who, after a little preliminary talk, announces himself as the Devil come to defend his own character. A number of conversations follow, from evening to evening, in which many Biblical narratives are taken up—the Devil's chief defence in all of them in which it is said he had a part being that he was simply God's instrument, that he only existed to obey his commands.

Ormond, Alex. T. Basal concepts in philosophy: an inquiry into being, non-being, and becoming. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 8+308 p. D. cl., $1.50.

"The motive of this volume is a desire to restore the primacy of certain conceptions which are in danger of disappearing from our modern thinking, and to reform others which, as I think, have been wrongly or inadequately conceived. Reflection has led me to dissent from monistic pantheism on the one hand, and from agnosticism on the other—two of the leading tendencies in the thoughts of our century—and to seek a metaphysical basis for philosophy that may adequately ground a rational theory of knowledge and being."—Author's Preface.

Tells how the boot-blacks of New York went one day on a "strike," formed a "union," into which no "Eyetalians" were admitted, nor any boy who gave a "shine" for less than ten cents. They elect a "Boss shiner," who lives sumptuously on the funds of the "union," and promotes discord for his own benefit. The story ends with the ending of the "strike" which has a pointed lesson and a pathetic side as well as an amusing one.

Two boys had engaged to run a steam-yacht for the double purpose of pleasure and profit; after carefully fitting her up they launch her, only to find the next morning that she is gone—stolen—as they later discover, by two other boys who had been refused a half-interest in her. The pursuit of the thieves and the adventures of the rightful owners are spirited and entertaining.

Otis, Ja., [pseud. for Ja. Otis Kaler.] Jinny and his partners. Bost., A. I. Bradley & Co., 1894. c. 2–250 p. il. D. cl., $1.

Scotty Jarvis and Jinny Harmon, two boys who were partners in a licensed vender's trade and a push-cart, conclude to move their living quarters to a small house or shanty near Chambers St. Ferry; this venture necessitating them to take in two new partners, they treat with Ollie Barber and Ben White. After moving into their new home, Jinny finds a lost child; this incident causes confusion in the house, and results in the advent of Tillie Towser, who helps in the discovery of the child's identity, and is the heroine in a story of some New York street arabs.

The author is from Mississippi. His tone seems to be fair and dispassionate. He traces the slow progress of the South since the end of the Civil War in 1865 to the sudden freedom of the slave, which to him meant license only; the credit system; the lien law; over-production of cotton; arrearage in food-crop; crookedness in business methods, etc. Three chapters are devoted to the negroes, and the wrong and right methods of making them factors in progress instead of a detriment to the ten Southern States.

Lancelot Andrewes, Bishop of Winchester, was born in 1555 and died in 1626; he was one of the most illustrious of the prelates of England; was noted for his eloquence as a preacher, his learning and piety and blameless life, and was one of the translators of the authorized version of the Bible. In the picture of his time and of the important part which he played in the discussions between the high-church and Puritan parties, the book has a decided interest aside from that which the bishop's personality enlists.

Ottolengui, Rodrigues. A modern wizard. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 4+434 p. S. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

A young woman, supposed to have been unmarried, and believed to have died from diphtheria, is proved to have been poisoned by morphine. She is shown to have been the wife of Dr. Emanuel Medjora, who had attended her in her last moments, and he is arrested on suspicion. A trial for murder follows; the evidence, which is sensational and dramatic being given at length. Medjora is the "modern wizard," and though not proven guilty of the crime at the time, is soon implicated in others. His powers come from his knowledge of hypnotism and science; he inoculates his victims with the germs of disease, or forces them to obey his will, even to their own destruction. The scene is laid in New York City.

During his labors as joint author of "The English church in the 18th century," the canon of Lincoln and the rector of Epworth was carried forward into the 19th century. For twenty years he has been collecting his material for this volume, and has passed five years in preparing his facts for publication. The headings of the ten chapters give the scope of this important work: The general state of the church; the orthodox; the "evangelicals;" the "liberals;" church services and church fabries; church literature; the church and education; church societies; church and state; intercourse with sister churches. Brings the history of the English church down to the "Oxford movement."

"No apology is needed for an edition of Thomas Paine's writings, but rather for the tardiness of its appearance. For although there have been laborious and useful collections of his most famous works, none of them can be fairly described as adequate. . . . While Paine's American writings are historical documents, their value as such is not limited to the mere record or interpretation of events. They possess very great value for the students of political institutions and constitutional development."—Editor's Introduction.

The author is professor of modern languages and literature in Roanoke College. He calls his work "an attempt to solve the problem of teaching English literature." It is divided into seven periods, and only the representative authors of each period are given full treatment, biographically and critically, and selections included from their works. A list of less prominent authors is prefixed to each period to encourage independent investigation.

The hero and heroine in a "Question of honor" have the same parts in the story which opens with their return to Penfield Centre, ten years after their mining experience in the west. In the present novel, as was the case in the preceding one, honor is the vexed question, and it leads Schuyler Prage into some strange situations, notably a trial for murder. On his action in this crisis the interest depends.

Pancoast, H: S. An introduction to English literature. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1894. 11+473 p. S. cl., $1.25.

Based upon the author's "Representative English literature." He has taken the historical and critical parts of that book, omitting all the selections and notes and has added some two hundred pages of entirely new matter. The text has thus been nearly doubled in length, and the book, as a whole, brought within slightly smaller limits. Teachers who do not wish to be restricted to prescribed selections will probably prefer this to the first-named book in teaching English literature.

This books purports to have been written by a female detective, who, at the instigation of the lawyers of the defendant in the Pollard-Breckinridge case, recently tried in Washington, gained access to the Home in which Miss Pollard resided during the trial, won her affection and confidence, and by a constant scrutiny of her words and actions tried to determine the exact sort of woman she really was.

Parker, Francis W. Talks in pedagogics: an outline of the theory of concentration. N. Y. and Chic., E. L. Kellogg & Co., [1894.] c. 16+491 p. por. D. cl., $1.50.

These talks by the principal of the Cook County Normal School, Chicago, were given at the Teachers' Retreat, Chautauqua Assembly, New York, in July, 1891. Their popular form has now been changed to text for close study. Among the convictions here formulated is that natural sciences and history should be put into the primary school, and reading and language lessons taught while gathering information on sciences, morals, literature, ethics, etc., so that the whole school system concentrate itself around sound development of mind, body, and soul, to produce harmonious, healthy, happy, useful men and women.

Parker, Gay. La Belle Creole. Chic., E. A. Weeks & Co., [1894.] 6-339 p. D. (Melbourne ser., no. 14.) pap., 25 c.

Episodes in the past lives of John Ross and Louis de Jarnette, exile them from home; meeting in the Barbadoes, they are astounded by their wonderful personal resemblance to each other, and finally ou the strength of an apparent coincidence form a friendship which ends with the death of de Jarnette, when circumstances tempt Ross to personate his dead friend. The consequences of this act are both startling and sensational, especially the scene which he enacts in New Orleans with Lucille de Guarcia (La Belle Creole).

Parker, Gilbert. The trail of the sword. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 8+277 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 152.) cl., $1; pap, 50 c.

The actors in this romantic story played their parts, on the stage of a new continent, two hundred years ago. The French and English colonies were quarrelling with each other, and at the same time aiming to make friends with the Iroquois Indians. The scene changes from New York to Canada and thence to Hudson's Bay, and many thrilling historical episodes are embraced in the narrative. The heroine is full of charm, and is loved by two men, a French Canadian and a Puritan of Massachusetts, whose hatred for each other leads to many bloody encounters.

When Gaston Belward is twenty-seven years old he travels from Canada to England to claim his heritage. His father, the younger son of a noble house, had fled from home before Gaston's birth, on account of trouble with his father, and had spent the remainder of his days in the wilds of North America, leading a half-savage life with his wife, a half-breed of mixed Indian and French blood. Gaston, the issue of this marriage, is wholly unconventional, but dashing and attractive. He creates a sensation at Ridley Court after his identity is made clear to his grandfather. His career is full of striking contrasts illustrating his mixed inheritance.

An important contribution to the literature of Biblical criticism by the author of "The people's Bible." It presents fair and brief statements of the various contentions of higher criticism, and answers them seriatim with the beliefs of the older school of Biblical learning. For comparison and emphasis, the opposing views are printed largely in parallel columns. The headings of the chapters are: The word of God; The permanent quantity; The origins; The living word; The word taught; Fundamentals; Notes and comments.

"The first volume of the 'Memoirs' [see notice, 'Weekly Record,' P. W., Dec. 9, '93] told briefly the story of the Revolution, and, at greater length, that of the Directory, the Consulate, and the Empire up to the Russian campaign. The second volume might be entitled 'The empire's fall.' Beginning with that most fatal victory on the banks of the Moskowa, Pasquier follows the emperor step by step along the lamentable pathway that led him out of the lurid glare of Muscovy's flaming capital to dark night and Fontainebleau and abdication. Then the return of the

Paston, G: A bread-and-butter miss: a sketch in outline. N. Y., Harper, 1895 [1894.] 2+202 p. D. cl., $1.

Theodora, the oldest of a family of eight children living in greatly reduced circumstances with their widowed mother, is invited to spend two or three weeks of the shooting season with a very worldly cousin. Her dinner parties, riding adventures, dances and flirtations make the story. At the end the "catch" of the season is captured by this "bread-and-butter miss." Author of "A modern Amazon."

Peard, Frances Mary. An interloper: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 3+315 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A story of French provincial life; the "interloper" is a charming young girl who marries into an old family far above her in social rank: although she brings her husband a large dowry which pays off all his debts, she loves him, and is loved in return; when he is accused of a crime of which he is innocent, it is her intelligence which helps clear him, and her love and courage which sustain him, when his mother and sisters believe him guilty.

Peard, Frances Mary. The swing of the pendulum: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1894. 2+307 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new ser., no. 742.) pap., 50 c.

The story describes what a few months did in the lives of certain men and women. Much of this time was spent in Norway by these people of social position and refined artistic tastes. The swing of the pendulum is the fluctuation of opinion and feeling in a young author's heart and mind as to the true character of a girl who has jilted his dearest friend. The narrative ends with "a note of interrogation instead of a full stop."

Peloubet, F. N., D.D., and Ma. A. Select notes: a commentary on the International lessons for 1895; il. from drawings by J: Huybers and Sears Gallagher. 21st annual volume. Bost., W. A. Wilde & Co., [1894.] c. 346 p. O. cl., $1.25; interleaved, $2.

This year, the first six months of this volume, completes the study of the life of Christ, and the notes supply an abundance of the most helpful and interesting material. In July the International lessons go back to the Old Testament, and with great skill the editor has garnered such facts, illustrations, and explanations as will so illumine the text as to make it intelligible and profitable to every teacher and scholar. The second part goes from Exodus to 1 Samuel. Contains also many colored maps, chronology of the Old Testament, chronology and harmony of the life of Christ, suggestions to teachers, library references, etc.

Pemberton, Max. The iron pirate: a plain tale of strange happenings on the sea. N. Y., The Cassell Pub. Co., [1894.] 4+298 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

The story deals with the attempt by a young Englishman to gain the secret of the iron pirate's hiding-place, so that the nameless vessel, which has been robbing and sinking Atlantic liners, may be captured by the governments of the world. The narrative is full of action and sensational events, and also rich in horrors and brutalities. The story takes place upon the sea, sometimes on a yacht, and sometimes on the iron pirate, again in Greenland, and in New York and Paris.

Pemberton, Max. The sea-wolves; a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1894. 2+230 p. D. (Harper's Franklin Sq. lib., new ser., no. 751.) pap., 50 c.

The "sea-wolves" have their headquarters on the Spanish coast and are employed by a mysterious woman, who is a professional "wreeker." Her men lure ships, plunder them, kill the sailors, and deliver her the money, which she then gambles at Monaco, etc. Three educated desperadoes rob the bank at Monaco and start off with the booty, and are wreeked and fall into the hands of this woman. More adventures could not be crowded into the given space, and the murder, fighting, fires, robberies, brutal floggings, etc., are all supposed to have happened since the launching of the Teutonic and the Campania.

Perkin, W. H., and Kipping, F. Stanley. Organic chemistry. Pt. 1. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1894. 2–302 p. D. cl., $1.

Deals with the fatty compounds, and contains, in the first place, a general account of the methods most frequently employed in the separation, purification, and analysis of organic compounds, and in the determination of molecular weight. The preparation and properties of typical compounds are then described, attention being directed to those changes which come under the heading of general reactions rather than to isolated facts regarding particular substances. Questions of constitution are also discussed at some length, and in the case of most of the typical compounds, the facts on which the given constitutional formula is based are specifically mentioned.

Perry, Nora. Hope Benham: a story for girls; il. by Frank T. Merrill. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1894. c. 3+322 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Hope Benham is the only child of a clever, inventive engineer on one of the Boston railways. She has musical genius, and to earn money to buy a much-coveted violin she sells flowers at the railway station. Here she is impertinently questioned and patronized by a supercilious little "aristocrat" of her own age, and is deeply hurt by this revelation of "class distinctions." Later her father makes a fortune by his inventions, and Hope, after a year's foreign study, is introduced as a senior pupil in a fashionable New York boarding-school, where she finds herself a classmate with Dolly Dering, the little "aristocrat" of the flower-selling episode. The even tenor of school life, Hope's conquest of her bitter feelings, and the influence of her noble nature on silly, headstrong Dolly, make a pleasant and graceful story of school-girl life.

Pestalozzi, J: H: How Gertrude teaches her children: an attempt to help mothers to teach their own children, and an account of the method: a report to the Society of the Friends of Education [at] Burgdorf; tr. by Lucy E. Holland and Frances C. Turner; ed., with introd. and notes, by Ebenezer Cooke. Syracuse, N. Y., C. W. Bardeen, 1894. 51+256 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Pestalozzi went as teacher to Burgdorf, in the canton of Berne, Switzerland, in 1799. This extract from his writings is a modification of his novel, "Leonard and Gertrude," first published in 1781. "How Gertrude teaches her children" was published in 1801 to explain his theories of instruction to the authorities at Burgdorf. The art of teaching in Pestalozzi's system consists in analyzing the knowledge the children should acquire about their surroundings, arranging it in a regular sequence, and bringing it to the child's consciousness gradually by the inductive method of question and answer based on observation.

In the Middle Ages many European countries enacted laws restricting Jews in the choice of their dwelling-places; they were generally confined to the worst portion of the city and subjected to cruel and tyrannical restrictions. The remains of many of these old "Jewries," or Ghettos, as they were generally called, still exist, and it is of these the author offers studies, the material for which he gathered by a personal visit. The contents of the volume is as follows: Early settlements of Jews in Europe; The institution of the Ghetto; The Ghetto in church legislation; The Judengasse in Frankfort-on-the-Main; The Judenstadt of Prague; The Ghetto of Rome; The Russian Ghetto; Effects and results; The Ghetto in literature.

The results of original experiments and investigations carried on in German hospitals are published in the medical papers of Vienna, Berlin, Leipsic, Munich, etc., and it is almost a necessity that a medical student desiring to keep abreast of his profession should be able to read such reports. This system of learning German is compiled for the special purpose of familiarizing English-speaking medical men in the most rapid manner with the technical phraseology. A system of phonetic spelling makes clear the pronunciation.

Pickard, S: T. Life and letters of John Greenleaf Whittier. Bost., Houghton Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 2 v., 8+402; 4+403-802 p. pors. il. D. cl., $4.

"The thought that at some time the story of his life would be called for was not a pleasant one to Mr Whittier," so says Mr. Pickard in his preface; "but fearing that, in the absence of correct data, a biography full of inaccuracies might be given to the public, about ten years before his death he authorized the collection of material for such a work, and assisted the friend to whom it was confided by suggestions of a general character. He had never kept a journal, nor charged his memory with dates, but he remembered his correspondents, and gave information which resulted in a large collection of letters, illustrating nearly every year of his life. The editor has regarded the use of this material as a sacred trust, and in accordance with Mr. Whittier's wish has allowed him, as far as practicable, to speak for himself." The letters tell of the first thirty years of his life, of which little is known, and give his opinions on every subject which interested him. The second volume contains a bibliography (4 p.) of his works, and of biographies of him, compilations, etc.

Pickford, Mrs. A. M. Paths and by-paths. N. Y., American Tract Soc., [1894.] c. 352 p. il. D. cl., $1 25.

The scene is Linden, a little country village. Dr. Livermore, having early embraced what he believes to be the teachings and precepts of a Christian's life, endeavors to instil the same in his daughter's heart. The results of his labors are seen in Ruth's way of combatting some rather dangerous theories of a former playmate, and in her way of dealing with the vexed questions discussed in the story.

Pinchot, Gifford. Biltmore Forest; the property of Mr. George W. Vanderbilt: an account of its treatment, and the results of the first year's work. [N. Y., Gifford Pinchot, United Charities Building, 4th Ave. and 22d St., 1894.] 3-49 p. map, il. obl. T. pap., gratis.

The Biltmore estate is in North Carolina. The attempt to treat Biltmore Forest systematically derives a certain interest from the fact that it is the first practical application of forest management in the United States. This little book, by the consulting forester, contains a description of the forest, when work upon it was begun, and of the operations carried out during the first year of management. The result of this first year's work is stated, both as regards the forest itself and the returns and expenses in money. The outline of the working plan is added, and a word is said as to the experiments in forest-planting and arbor-culture which have been begun. Finally, the possible value of the work is briefly noted. Furnished gratis on application to Mr. Pinchot.

Miss Plummer is librarian of the Pratt Institute Free Library. This little manual is primarily intended for small libraries and beginners in library work, but its hints and suggestions are so practical and definite that it cannot fail to prove generally useful as a library handbook. The eleven chapters cover the chief divisions of library work: Receiving and entering books; Book-numbers and cataloging; Shelf-list and inventory; Mechanical preparation of book-bindings; Relations with the public—registration; Charging system; Reading-room and reference-room work; Selecting and ordering books; Rooms and fixtures; Library tools. There are numerous fac-similes of library cards, blanks, forms, etc.

Plunkett, Mrs. H. M. Josiah Gilbert Holland. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 8+208 p. por. il. D. cl., $1.50.

Mrs. Plunkett was a life-long and intimate friend of Dr. Holland's, and had exceptional opportunities for studying his personality and character. She has drawn largely upon Dr. Holland's record of his own aspirations and achievements, thus giving her work an agreeable autobiographic flavor, and presenting an attractive portrait of one of the most popular of American writers. Estimates of others concerning him and his works are also given. Dr. Holland, of course, will be recognized as the author of "Bitter-sweet," "Katrina," and the "Timothy Titcomb letters."

Plympton, A. G. Penelope Prig, and other stories; il. by the author. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1894. c. 7–194 p. sq. D. cl., $1.

Penelope Prig was a pretty and somewhat selfish little girl, who had been carefully kept from contact with the "lower classes" by her mother and aunts. How her conscience is awakened and her heart touched is told by the story, which has a second little heroine, with a wretched father who drinks. The other stories also about girls are: "A brave coward," "The girl without a conscience," and "Little Olive, the heiress."

A sequel to "The two Salomes." The strangely fascinating heroine is again introduced among her New England surroundings, again struggling to live a conscientious life. Her dual nature again leads her to erratic actions, and the consequences are far-reaching. The author gives us another glimpse of Mrs. Keats Bradford, who has become a celebrated portrait painter, and begs permission to paint the beautiful Salome. Her picture startles Salome's husband, showing him his wife's perverted nature as he has never before realized it.

A Bible text and a selection of prose or poetry for every day in the year.

Portland (pseud.) ed. The whist table: a treasury of notes on the royal game, by "Cavendish," C. Mossop, A. C. Ewald, and C: Hervey: to which is added Solo whist and its rules, by Abraham S. Wilks. N. Y., imported by C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. 472 p. pors. D. cl., $3.

Draws together information, at once curious and interesting, on the history of whist and the rise and progress of its modern developments. Besides whist stories, anecdotes and curiosities, hints to young players, "points," whist fallacies, and a great deal of other fugitive and unclaimed literature, there are signed articles by "Cavendish," entitled "Historical notes on our national card game," "Chit-chat about whist," and "The morality of card-playing;" an article by A. C. Ewald called "On whist as a business," and "Sarah Battle on whist," by C: Lamb; "To a lady caught peeping," by H. J. C. Andrews; "In praise of whist," by V. E. Collins; "A list of signals and their condemnation" and "A protest against signals," both by "Mogul," etc.

Posse, Nils, (Baron.) The special kinesiology of educational gymnastics; with il. and an analytic chart. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1894. c. '90, '94. 6+380 p. sq. O. cl., $3.

This is a third edition, rewritten and elaborated, of "The Swedish system of educational gymnastics." While the author deemed it desirable to change the title into "Special kinesiology"—it being a treatise on the mechanics, effects, and classification of special exercises—the subject-matter still describes the Swedish system of educational gymnastics.

Post, C. W. I am well: the modern practice of natural suggestion as distinct from hypnotic or unnatural influence Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1895 [1894.] c. 147 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A treatise both upon the theory and practice of the system of cure by "natural suggestion." It explains the principles of mental healing as founded upon the fundamental premise that man, by the development of his intelligence, secures a "marvellous control over material by the power of his mentality, and proves it by curing his physical ailments and preserving bodily health solely by the skilful exercise of mind."

Post, Edwin. Latin at sight; with an introd., suggestions for sight-reading and selections for practice. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1894. c. 10+210 p. D. cl., 90 c.

An outgrowth of a teacher's attempt to teach Latin. The introduction is intended for teachers rather than for pupils. The grammar references are to the books of Allen and Greenough, Gilderslecve and Harkness. The second part on "How to read" is followed by about one hundred and eighty selections for practice, which are in a measure graded.

Mr. Potter is secretary of the New York State Roads Improvement Association. He begins with this little book a series of cheap, handy paper volumes, which are designed for road and street makers, and are complete guides to practical work at a very small price. The present book has chapters on country roads, road drainage, improving the surface, cross drains and culverts, and bridges. The subjects of the numbers of the library to follow will be: "Macadam roads," "Pavements," "Drainage," "Highway bridges," "Road laws," etc., etc.

Christina Chard, a curious, contradictory character, comes into possession of a great sum of money. Her portrait is painted by the artist of the hour in London, which brings her into contact with the crowd of fashionable, gifted people who haunt studios. The story also introduces many schemes in which capitalists employ money. The idea of the story is credited to the artist George H. Boughton, to whom the book is dedicated.

An old-fashioned story of love, adventure and disguised gentlemen outlaws. The scenes are laid in the English government circles of Australia. The heroine, a poor and very beautiful girl, after playing fast and loose with the hearts of many good men, is finally conquered by the outlaw whose romantic exploits have fed her imagination for years.

Preece, Louise. A system of physical culture; prepared expressly for public school work; analyzed and arr. by Louise Gilman Kiehle; il. by Louise Preece. Syracuse, N. Y., C. W. Bardeen, 1894. c. 9–193 p. il. 93 pl. O. cl., $2.

The demand of teachers and others for an analysis of Miss Preece's "Physical culture for public schools" has led to this work. Every exercise can be taken by the pupils when standing in the aisles beside their seats. The writer has aimed to make the explanations clear, but at the same time as brief as possible, that the directions may be easily followed without wading through much abstract matter.

Prévost, Marcel. Les demi-vierges. N. Y., Meyer Bros. & Co., 1894. 12+360 p. D. pap., $1.

A startling arraignment of the lives led by idle society girls throughout the world according to the author, although he traces the contamination of his countrywomen to English influence and example. In the fierce struggle for position in society for rich marriages and political power, he thinks the womanhood of mothers and daughters suffers unavoidably. Girls become calculating, and learn to trifle with temptation and vice while selfishly sacrificing lovers and friends to their low ambitions.

Price, Eleanor C. In the lion's mouth: the story of two English children in France, 1789–1793. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 5+354 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The two children who are thrown in the "lion's mouth" of the French Revolution are English orphans, a brother and sister, sent to France in 1789 by a wicked uncle anxious to steal their inheritance. The little village in Anjou, where they are lodged in the major's household, is soon wild with revolutionary tumult. The brother and sister cast in their lots with the "aristocrats" of the château, and pass bravely through imprisonment, suffering and danger, to rescue at the hands of the loyal Vendéans, and ultimate safety in their English home.

Price, W. E., comp. Paper-covered books: a catalogue; done by the editor and publisher of The Book and News Dealer. San Francisco, W. E. Price, 1894. c. 4+205 p. O. cl., $3.50; interleaved, $5.

An up-to-date catalogue of "all the paper-covered books in print and obtainable at wholesale in America." The catalogue is arranged alphabetically by author and title. The name of the publisher, the library or series to which the book belongs, with price, are given. Dealers and others will find it a most useful compilation, as it tells at a glance whether a book—in fiction or in general literature—may be had in paper—a piece of information all buyers are apt to ask for. It is printed on tough, brownish paper, that will stand constant handling, and has an index cut in the edges; the first word—author or otherwise—is printed in heavy faced type, and the page is in double columns, well spaced; altogether a convenient and easy book for reference. Lists of libraries and series and publishers represented are given; also of abbreviations used. To be followed by annual volumes.

Protestant Episcopal Church. The book of common prayer and administrations and other rites and ceremonies of the church according to the use of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America; together with the psalter or psalms of David. N. Y., printed at the De Vinne Press, 1893 [1894.] 566 p. F. vellum, $20.

The work of four General Conventions upon the revision of the Prayer-Book receives its completion in this sumptuous volume. It is exquisitely and symbolically decorated in black and white in accordance with the typographical requirements of the volume. The artist, Mr. Daniel Updike, has specially dwelt upon the verse from the Benedicite: "All ye green things upon the earth, bless ye the Lord," and has surrounded the pages with almost every leaf and flower used in church decoration.

and enl. in accordance with the action of the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America in the year 1892; ed. by Rev. C: L. Hutchins. Bost., The Parish Choir, [D. B. Updike.] 1894. c. '79-93. 48+804 p. 4°, flex. leath., $5.

For years the musical edition of the Hymnal, edited by Rev. Charles L. Hutchins, of Concord, Mass., secretary of the House of Deputies of the General Convention, has been adopted by the P. E. Church. This hymnal has now been revised, all the new hymns added, and organ music provided for all. The use of copyright music has been allowed by all who furnished it for the hymnal. Mr. Hutchins' indexes are specially valuable. There is an alphabetical index of first lines, giving authors of hymns, source and date of writing, and the name by which the tune is known: an alphabetical index of tunes with their metres, composers, sources, and hymns which are sung to them; an alphabetical metrical index; an index of subjects; and an index of hymns arranged by church seasons. The accurate marking of expression and difficulties in the musical text may almost take the place of a choirmaster, and the book is specially fitted for organists obliged themselves to train choirs. The book is beautifully printed and handsomely bound, and the price is fabulously cheap for value offered.

Protestant Episcopal Church. The prayer-book catechism: being the church catechism, with other things which a Christian ought to know and believe to his soul's health, explained and attested by the "Holy Scriptures," "The Book of Common Prayer," and the articles of religion of the Protestant Episcopal Church; ed. by S: S. Prothero, G: Walter, ed. Select statutes and other constitutional documents illustrative of the reigns of Elizabeth and James I. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 464 p. 8°, cl., net, $2.60.

Prothero, Rowland Edmund, and Bradley, G: Granville (Dean.) Life and correspondence of Arthur Penrhyn Stanley, late dean of Westminster, by Rowland E. Prothero; with the co-operation and sanction of G. G. Bradley, D.D. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. '93. 2 v., 26+536; 6+600 p. pors. O. cl., $8.

Since Dean Stanley's death in 1881, over twelve years ago, it has been a matter of surprise that no adequate biography had appeared of one who had held so prominent a part in the ecclesiastical literary and social history of more than a generation. The present work explains the delay; out of three literary executors appointed by Mr. Stanley, two died after having done a great deal of work on his papers; the third was too busy to take the matter then in hand. The Dean of Westminster, Stanley's old friend, then offered to sift the material, and begun the work. After some years spent on it, his health broke down, and it became necessary to find another biographer, and Mr. Prothero was chosen, and all the unfinished work of the previous writers was placed in his possession. The material that forms the basis of this work, comes mostly from Stanley himself. He was the most indefatigable of letter-writers, from his early days at Rugby, Oxford, and Cambridge until the end of his life. Next in importance were the letters addressed to him, and communications from his friends, recalling traits and anecdotes, written after his death. The work contains a list of Stanley's publications, covering eight pages, which does not claim to be an exhaustive or a scientific bibliography.

Pt. 1, "Analysis of urine," consists of general considerations, theories of secretion and excretion of urine, composition of normal and abnormal urine, proteids, carbohydrates, urinary, chemical, and anatomical sediments, and gravel and calculus. Pt. 2, "Urinary diagnosis," aims at a concise description of the special features of the urine that indicate the presence of special pathological processes in progress in the economy, whether they be local or general, medical or surgical, together with a brief enumeration of the leading clinical symptoms of each disease, and in most cases an epitome of their nature and theology. There is an appendix upon the subject of urinary examinations for life insurance.

Pyle, Howard. Twilight land. N. Y., Harper, 1895 [1894.] c. 5+438 p. il. O. hf. leath., $2.50.

Aladdin and Ali Baba, Fortunatis and Jack-the-Giant-Killer, Doctor Faustus and Cinderella, St George and the Soldier who cheated the Devil are all gathered together at the Mother Goose Inn in Twilight Land, when the volume opens. In turn each tells a story as marvellous as any or all that have been told of them. There are seventeen stories, each introduced with a little prelude, and they are all fairy-tales. Mr. Pyle has illustrated as well as written the book.

Quondam, (pseud.) The Egyptian harp girl: a mystery of the peristyle. Chic., Laird & Lee, 1894. c. 6–272 p. il. D. (Pastime ser.) pap., 25 c.

Lisle, a minister of the Christian faith and a learned archæologist, is commissioned by a western college and representatives of the World's Columbian Exposition to go to Egypt in their interest; while musing near the Temple of Luxor he has an adventure, which leads him with his wife and daughter to explore the Oserian Temple: their startling discoveries and remarkable experiences lead Lisle to attempt a reproduction of the Pagan Temple in Chicago. The story closes in that city, with a scene which is evidently an attempt to prove the triumph of Christianity over Paganism.

Radcliff, Miss A. G. Schools and masters of sculpture. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 16+393 p. il. O. cl., $3.

A popular history, free from technicalities, of plastic art, uniform with Miss Radcliffe's "Schools and masters of painting." The aim is not only to give information, but to arouse an interest in the subject which will tempt the reader to further research. Contents: Egyptian sculptors and sculpture; Assyrian sculpture; Asiatic sculpture; Nature and subjects of Greek sculpture; Greek sculpture, Roman sculpture; Early Christian sculpture; Mediæval cathedral sculpture; Italian sculpture; Sculptors and sculpture of France, Germany, England, and of the nineteenth century; Study of sculpture in the museums of Europe, and in American museums. Richly illustrated with full-page pictures of the best examples of classic and modern sculpture.

Radford, G. H. Shylock and others: eight studies. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1894. 6–197 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Rae, J: Eight hours for work. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 11+340 p. D. cl., $1.25.

By the author of "Contemporary socialism." Mr. Rae's inquiry is based upon English statistics; the result of his investigation as to the probable consequences of a general adoption of an eight-hour working day throughout England is that "no real advantage is gained by long hours, and if we are once persuaded that as much work can be done in a working day of eight hours as in a working day of any longer limit, we can shorten our own day without caring in the least what other nations do."

Rafter, G: W., and Baker, M. N. Sewage disposal in the United States. N. Y., D. Van Nostrand Co., 1894. c. '93. 27+598 p. il. 7 pl. 4°, cl., net, $6.

Raimond, C. E., (pseud.) George Mandeville's husband. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 2+219 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 148.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

A satirical picture is here offered of the "superior" woman, who while devoting her life and writings to the dissemination of her advanced views, neglects her family both in their physical and spiritual wants. Her pseudonym of "George Mandeville" gives the key to the title. Her husband—a man with many good qualities, and some talents which might have flourished and borne fruit in a more appreciative atmosphere—becomes a spiritless nonentity. Her little daughter, who has no reason for loving her, fortunately dies young. Clever sketches are given of other advanced women and their various "fads" for improving mankind.

"This is a little book on a great subject. Its aim is critical and historical; to furnish studies of the work of the chief English novelists before Scott, connected by certain general lines of reasoning and speculation on the nature and development of the novel. . . . I much regret that my limited opportunities of access to a good library foroid my attempting a bibliography of the English novel. Such a work would be the best companion to the present history."—Preface.

Ram, Mrs. Abel. The Little Sisters of the Poor. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1894. 5+318 p. D. cl., $2.

The life of Jeanne Jugan, a holy peasant woman, generally thought to have been the foundress of the "Little Sisters of the Poor," an account of which order serves as a frame to Jeanne's pathetic story. She was the first quêteuse, or collector of alms, and her name is forever connected with the order, as it was her small beginnings which laid its foundations, though she was not its real foundress. She was born in France in 1793. A history of the various houses of the order in many countries is given.

Rand, Rev. E: A: A salt-water hero. N. Y., T: Whittaker, [1894.] 3+330 p. il. D. (Fighting-the-sea ser., no. 4.) cl., $1.25.

The story of a New England boy, who goes to sea on a whaler; he encounters icebergs, has a thrilling experience catching whales, and gets near enough to land to take part in a bear-hunt. The whaler puts into port at St. John's, Newfoundland, on its return trip, and here the hero has a series of interesting adventures, in which a bright young girl and her brother take part.

Rand, Katharine E. The childhood of an affinity. Bost., Arena Pub. Co., 1893 [1894.] c. '93. 5+304 p. D. (Arena library ser., no. 21.) pap., 50 c.

Traces in story form an affection between a boy and girl, with its various changes—and their final marriage, after their school days. The author says: "My intention is to present as clearly as possible a picture of inner child-life as I know it to exist, and particularly to dwell upon the relations between boys and girls."

Gathered by Dr. Rand during the forty years he spent as a missionary among the Micmae Indians of Nova Scotia; the stories were related to him in Miemae, by the native Indians, and then translated and written down by him in English. The collection is valuable to the philologist, the authropologist, and the ethnologist. It is believed the legends show traces of the Northmen, as a closer study of the language of the Miemacs may reveal the impress of the early north invaders. Introductory are a sketch of the life of the Rev. Dr. Raud, a list of his works covering eight pages, showing his great industry as a linguist while among the Indians, and a paper on "The manners, customs, language, and literature of the Miemae Indians in Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island."

The author is president of the Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn. Treats of Christ and the Christian life, the revised version, the prophets, the supernatural, the resurrection, the apostle Paul, history, immortality, etc., etc.

Raymond, Evelyn. The little lady of the horse. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1894. c. '94. 2+276 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.
A little girl of ten summers is represented as having an almost uncanny power over refractory horses, and of being a most wonderful horsewoman. She had lived her short life when the story opens on a ranch at Santa Felisa, California, where her father, a New England man, was manager. The father is threatened with blindness and they come east to his mother's house; here little Steenie, "the little lady of the horse," makes herself beloved by every one, stops a runaway horse upon which is a much frightened little girl, tames a young horse that would let no one go near it, and finally saves the family fortune by running a race and winning it, and by giving lessons in riding.

Raymond, Rev. G: Lansing. Art in theory: an introduction to the study of comparative æsthetics. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 18+266 p. D. cl., $1.75.
The author of "Poetry as a representative art" and "The genesis of art form" is professor of æsthetics in the College of New Jersey at Princeton. He holds that in art, religion, philosophy, and science the greatest exponents have resisted the influences of traditionalism sufficiently to be moved as much from within as from without, as much by their own feeling and thinking as by those of others who have preceded them and whose works surround them, by the psychologic fully as much as by the historic method. When production is at its best it is original instead of imitative.

Raymond, Rev. G: Lansing. and Wheeler, G: P. The writer: being one of a series of handbooks upon practical expression: a correlation of the principles of elocution and rhetoric applied to every detail of English composition. Bost., Silver, Burdett & Co., 1893 [1894.] c. '93. 10+203 p. D. cl., 90 c.
Both writers are professors at the College of New Jersey at Princeton. Elocution and rhetoric, they claim, differ only in the mediums used for the expression of thought. Both make use of words which in the former art are considered as tones, in the latter as symbols. Much reading of good authors is the best preparation for both arts. The orator feels how the relative position of words helps or hinders elocution, and the writer learns by practice to become conscious of the best form of expression, which is here in this volume reduced to definite rules with many illustrative examples.

Raymond, Jos. H., M.D. A manual of human physiology, prepared with special reference to students of medicine. Phil., W. B. Saunders, 1894. c. 4–382 p. il. col. pl. D. (Saunders' new aids ser.) cl., net, $1.25.
"The author's experience of twenty years as a teacher of physiology to medical students has brought him to the conclusion that, in the short time allotted to the study of physiology in medical schools, students can assimilate only the main facts and principles of this branch of medicine . . . in this manual he has endeavored to put into a concrete and available form the results of his experience."—Preface. The first issue of a new series to include entirely new works by well-known authors and practitioners, most of them being teachers in representative American colleges.

Read, Opie P., ["Arkansaw traveller," pseud.] The wives of the prophet: a novel. Chic., Laird & Lee, [1894.] c. 4–287 p. il. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The principal figure of this novel is a young lawyer, who passes himself off as the prophet expected by a little religious sect in a remote valley of Tennessee. The people do not themselves practice polygamy, but the privilege of polygamy is reserved for the coming prophet. The hero, Howard Bryce, therefore becomes the husband of five wives, and is fully punished for his deception.

history, organization, and work: an account of what laymen are doing and can do for the extension of the kingdom of God. N. Y., T: Whittaker, [1894.] c. 7+269 p. D. cl., $1.

The author is the rector of St. Paul's Church (Protestant Episcopal), San Diego, California. The book is dedicated to the members of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, who are pledged to do the aggressive definite missionary work the church cannot even hope to touch without the aid of concerated, systematic lay effort. It clearly defines what lay readers may do and what they may not do, and good advice is given by which they become a great help in every parish.

Reunited: a story of the civil war: a novel by a southern author. N. Y., Rob. Bonner's Sons, [1894.] c. '90, '94. 5–350 p. D. (Popular ser., no. 43.) pap., 25 c.

The story opens in Kentucky at the "Rosser Place," in the year 1861, with a discussion between Paul and Harry Rosser on the slavery question; the brothers' opposite views lead the one afterward to join the Confederate forces, the other to enter the Union army. Their war experiences and their love-stories are the leading themes.

Rhymers' Club. The second book of the Rhymers' Club. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1894. 16+136 p. sq. S. cl., $1.50.

The members of this London club are Ernest Dowson, Edwin J. Ellis, G. M. Greene, Arthur Cecil Hillier, Lionel Johnson, Richard Le Gallienne, Victor Plarr, Ernest Radford, Ernest Rhys, T. W. Rolleston, Arthur Symons, John Todhunter, and W. B. Yeats. They represent the younger school of English poets; their effusions are far above average merit, polished in form, and of varied sentiment. Some of them have appeared in The Academy, The Spectator, The Bookman, and other English literary papers. Wide margins and uncut leaves characterize the little volume.

Rhys, Ernest. A London rose, and other rhymes. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1894. 6+100 p. nar. D. cl., net, $1.50.

"A London rose, and other rhymes," "Welsh rhymes and ballads," "A rhyme of Diana," "The romance of Julius Roy," and "Occasional verse," are the title groupings of these poems. They show a rare sympathy with the many pathetic and picturesque phases of London life, and are also simply poetic and romantic. A well-made book, on large paper, with uncut edges. Has a title-page designed by Selwyn Image. Bound in a greenish canvas with title in red.

Richards, Mrs. Laura E. Marie. Bost., Estes & Lauriat, [1894.] c. 96 p. O. hf. cl., 50 c.

Marie was a pretty French girl who played the violin in a travelling show, where she was so badly treated that she ran away; after walking all day she comes to a New England village where she finds kind friends, and is afterward the heroine in a touching and romantic love-story.

Richards, Mrs. Laura E. Narcissa; or, the road to Rome. [Also] In Verona. Bost., Estes & Lauriat, 1894. c. '92, '94. 2+80 p. O. buckram, 50 c.

The clever author of "Captain Jannary" has written two bright little romances about the New England towns of Rome and Verona. In the former Narcissa sits feeding turkeys when Romulus Patten passes by, and asks her the road to Rome. Narcissa is sure that within a day's journey from her rocky Maine farm lies the ancient city of Rome, which she has learned to love from an old print. "Verona" is full of the breath of the country and the bright days and heart aches of good, healthy New England girls, old and young.

The Caliban of the story is a Zulu, exhibited in London as a man-ape or "the missing link." He enlists the sympathy both of a young girl, the daughter of an African missionary, whose mother was a half-caste, and a learned Cambridge professor. Whether "the quickening of Caliban" comes from love or knowledge is left to the reader to decide.

Das Spielmannskind, which appeared in Riehl's Neues Novellenbuch (1867), illustrates the author's theory of the historical tale, where the background is historical the characters fictitious; the second story is taken from Geschichten aus alter zeit (1863–5), and deals with one phase of the development of the free imperial town of mediæval times.

Acadie, in the troublous times preceding the expulsion of the colonists, described in "Evangeline," is the scene of the first story, which deals especially with the raid made from the French fort of Beauséjour upon the little English settlement in the Kennetcook, led by the fierce Abbe Le Loutre. Interest centres in the fortunes of a family of Acadians and in a little child rescued by one of them from the Kennetcook massacre. The second story tells how two boys lifted a mortgage from their home by diking in a marsh and thus creating valuable land.

Robertson, Rev. Alex. Fra Paolo Sarpi, the greatest of the Venetians. N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1894. 22+196 p. por. D. cl., $1.50.

The distinguishing characteristics of Fra Paolo Sarpi were freedom of thought and love of country; he was one of the great patriots and religious reformers of his time, and earned the enmity of Pope Paul v. through his writings and his spoken criticisms directed against his acts and policy. He was born at Venice in 1552, and died in 1623; he entered the monastic life when about thirteen, in which he remained until his death, in spite of his efforts to have the Protestant religion openly tolerated in Venice. He wrote on many subjects — history, religion, and science — and made many discoveries in astronomy and anatomy. He was a statesman and a student of constitutional government. His chief published works are: "History of the Venetian Inquisition," "History of the Council of Trent," and "History of the interdict." This biography, a labor of love with the writer, gives all these facts and others.

Robertson, Rev. Ja. Logie. A history of English literature: for secondary schools. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 5+394 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The author is the First English Master in the Edinburgh Ladies' College. His book covers his subject from 449 to 1894. He divides literature into six great periods, which he treats separately, first politically and then from the literary aspect. A classification of authors is then made, followed by biographical and critical sketches, and closed with full chronological lists of the authors belonging to the period and a list of their important works. American writers of repute are mentioned briefly in their proper place. A special arrangement of type makes special uses of the book practical.

"There are a very great number of persons who are no longer content to take their religious creeds upon authority, but who are demanding a reason for what they have been taught, and who want a faith which shall harmonize with what in other ways they are beginning to learn about the universe." In this spirit the author deals with the sources of the gospels and their credibility, and reviews the life and teachings of Jesus. The appendix furnishes an attempt to reconstruct the common source used by the writers of the gospels. There is also a full index to passages quoted from the gospels.

Rogers, Rob. Cameron. The wind in the clearing, and other poems. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 5+97 p. O. cl., $1.25.

Rohe, G: H., M.D. Text-book of hygiene : a comprehensive treatise on the principles and practice of preventive medicine from an American standpoint. 3d ed., rev. and rewritten. Phil., F: A. Davis Co., 1894. c. 7+553 p. il. O. cl., net, $3.

In this edition every chapter has been subjected to a careful revision, and the advances in sanitary science and practice have been incorporated. Surgeon-General Walter Wyman, and Dr H. D. Geddings, of the United States Marine Hospital Service, have, at the request of the author, entirely rewritten the chapter upon Quarantine, and it will be found to represent fully the modern principles and practice of maritime sanitation. Medical Director Albert L. Gihon, United States Navy, has again thoroughly revised the chapter on marine hygiene. In view of making the book still more useful to teachers, students, and sanitary officers than heretofore, an analytical set of questions has been appended to each chapter, and a separate section added on methods of examination of air, water, and food, by Prof. Seneca Egbert, of Phila.

Rollins, Frank West. Break o' day tales. Bost., Joseph Knight Co., 1894. c. 4+204 p. T. cl., 75 c.

Notable among five short stories is the last story, entitled "The magic flask." It is supposed to be laid in the time of the Rebellion. Rival lovers of a girl named Isabel enlist in the 13th New Hampshire, and one of them is supposed to die in the battle of Antietam. After his burial his former comrade has a strange experience, which is graphically described. Miss Stillings; The steam interlude; Joining the 5th cavalry, and The bishop's faith, are the titles of the other stories.

Roosevelt, Theodore. The winning of the west. V. 3, The founding of the trans-Alleghany commonwealths, 1784–1790. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 6+339 p. O. map, cl., $2.50.

"The period covered in this volume includes the seven years immediately succeeding the close of the Revolutionary War. It was during these seven years that the Constitution was adopted, and actually went into effect; an event if possible even more momentous for the west than the east. The time was one of vital importance to the whole nation; alike to the people of the inland frontier and to those of the seaboard. The course of events during these years determined whether we should become a mighty nation, or a mere snarl of weak and quarrelsome little commonwealths, with a history as bloody and meaningless as that of the Spanish-American states."—Preface. Volumes 1 and 2 were published in 1889, and are noticed in the "Weekly Record," P. W., June 29, [909.]

Ropes, J: Codman. The story of the civil war: a concise account of the war in the United States of America, between 1861–1865; with maps and plans. Pt. 1, To the opening of the campaigns of 1862. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 13+274 p. O. cl., $1.50.

The author is qualified to present fairly the subjects treated from the standpoint of each of the contending parties. He claims the north and the south did not differ and quarrel about the same things. "The state held a totally different place in the political thought of the south from what it occupied in that of the north." He does not go deeply into the institution of slavery, that not being within his scope of narrative. He will dwell particularly on the objects of the different campaigns and their relations to each other. Gives comprehensive maps and battle plans.

[A novel of the future, the time covered being from 1896 to 1930; the scene is an ideal state called Utopia, perhaps in the heart of Africa; an ideal government is set forth by the author, and also many new views about labor, capital, currency, etc.

Ross, Albert, [pseud. for Linn Boyd Porter.] Love at seventy. N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1894. 4–311 p. D. (The Albatross novels.) pap., 50 c.

The action of the story takes place in a New York country town; the story relates to the love of a wealthy man of seventy for the young daughter of his housekeeper, who rejects his suit and elopes with a poor young fellow of her own age. There is another complicated love-affair, the finding of a long-lost daughter, and other sensational events.

Ross, Albert, [pseud. for Linn Boyd Porter.] Young Miss Giddy. N. Y., G: W. Dillingham, 1893 [1894.] c. '93. 4+343 p. D. (The Albatross novels.) pap., 50 c.

"Young Miss Giddy" gives the author an opportunity to describe a pleasant journey through Florida, New Orleans at Mardi Gras time, Texas, and Mexico. It also enables him to answer a woman writer who, in a Boston newspaper, recently expressed the belief that young girls inclined to misbehave would do so in spite of chaperonage. One of the heroines of the story is the daughter of a millionaire, the other of a carpenter. The story opens in New York City.

"The one hundred and three sonnets and eleven lyrics with which Dante Gabriel Rossetti chose to build his 'House of life' are here set forth according to their obvious design. Those used in the volume of mdcccLxx. are reproduced as they then appeared, not as they have appeared since in the volume of mdccclxxxi. The deplorable circumstance is well known which led to the too sensitive withdrawal of one of the sequence and to the revision of others: a mistaken sacrifice of beauty to a mistakenly imposed ideal. The makers of this edition revert by choice to the poet's original plan of work. As 'The house of life' stood in Rossetti's mind, so it stands, once again, in its innocence and perfection."—Preface. The volume is embellished with three ornamental borders and 114 initial letters designed by B. G. Goodhue.

Seven years ago a division took place in the school of social science founded by Le Play. The grounds of the division and the underlying causes which brought it about are concisely stated with the object of informing the American public that the work undertaken by Le Play is still continuing, although there has been some change in methods.

A cold, calculating beauty marries a rich man and throws over a devoted lover. She is cruel to her young stepdaughter, who is "My pretty Jane." The discarded lover becomes a wealthy earl, the rich husband a hopeless invalid. To the end the disappointed, envious stepmother labors to undermine the happiness of Jane. English country life is described.

Ursula Grant was born and reared in India, though her parents were English. At her father's death she comes to England to the care of an aunt. Her strange nature—a mixture of passion, heartlessness, and selfishness—and her beautiful face and figure make her a dangerous and disagreeable personage when she arrives at womanhood. Her "spell" works havoc in many hearts and wrecks the lives of several men. By the author of "My Pretty Jane."

Immediately after the death of Major Ingraham, his daughter, Laura, receives from her solicitor a sealed letter written by the major. This letter is the indirect cause of Laura's rejecting the man she loves, and of her marrying a man in whom she has but a passing interest. Before Laura has a chance to degenerate into a humdrum matron, Sir Ralph, Laura Ingraham's former lover, learns the contents of the sealed missive, and acting in accordance with his knowledge and a preconceived plot, Laura's will is finally subjugated, and she figures as the heroine of a pathetic love-story.

Charles Morgan becomes the mate of a merchant ship sailing from Bristol ostensibly for Cape Town; he discovers that it has no cargo, and that the captain and owner are a pair of scoundrels who intend to scuttle the ship for the insurance; he shows them that he knows their plans and he is quickly put ashore on a desert island. After being rescued and having many adventures, he falls in with a ship which by a series of mishaps has lost its officers and has no one to navigate it, and takes command of it. It is an emigrant ship with one hundred girls aboard bound for Australia, and the crew had decided to land on an uninhabited island and form a colony, having persuaded some of the girls to join them. Here begins again a series of wonderful adventures.

Russell, W: Clark. List, ye landsmen: a romance of incident. [New issue.] N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1894.] c. '92. 4+408 p. D. (Cassell's sunshine ser., extra no. 153.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Russell, W: Clark. The romance of a transport. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1894.] c. '93. 4+404 p. D. cl., $1.

An honorable sea captain, falsely accused of trying to scuttle his ship, to obtain the insurance money, is convicted through a base conspiracy and condemned to penal servitude. He was about to marry a spirited young woman—an orphan possessing a fair fortune—and she determines to accompany him to the antipodes. Disguised as a boy she hides in the hold of the convict ship, which carries her lover from England, only emerging from her hiding-place after the vessel has left the English Channel. She is the heroine of a most remarkable series of adventures, all of which take place on the transport or on the high seas.

Rutgers, Lispenard. On and off the saddle; characteristic sights and scenes from the great Northwest to the Antilles. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 7+201 p. il. D. cl., $1.

Twelve sketches of travel, namely: Autumn in the Yellowstone Park; Alaska and its islands; Camping in the Yosemite; A mid-winter excursion in the Rocky Mountains; Southern California and its attractions; En route to the City of Mexico; A Mexican cock-fight; The City of Mexico; Bull-fighting in Mexico; A Rocky Mountain picture; The queen of the Antilles; A western cyclone.

Rutherford, Miss Mildred. American authors: a handbook of American literature from early colonial to living writers. Atlanta, Ga., Franklin Printing and Pub. Co., [for sale by Mildred Rutherford, Athens, Ga.,] 1894. c. 750+29 p. por. O. cl., $2.

Both dead and living American authors are pretty well represented; the south especially finding many representatives. The method of the volume's arrangement is as follows: the divisions are "The earlier colonial literature," "The later colonial literature," "The literature of the revolution," "The literature of the national and constitutional era," "The literature of the republic," and "Living writers." A brief sketch is given of each writer, which is followed by a list of his works, and sometimes by an extract. Review questions in history follow each chapter. An alphabetical index of 29 pages includes, besides all authors mentioned in the body of the book, many others who were omitted for various reasons—with date of birth—and death also, when no longer living.

*Rutherford, Rev. W: G. The story of Garfield: farmer boy, soldier, and president. N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1894. 143 p. 12°, (Splendid lives ser.) cl., 50 c.

Ryan, Mrs. Marah Ellis. A flower of France: a story of old Louisiana. Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1894. c. 5–327 p. D. cl., $1.

The scene is laid in New Orleans in 1768, during the time of the Spanish occupation. Zizi, an African slave, who incurs the displeasure of her master, Gaston Le Noyens, is branded according to the custom of those days, with a fleur-de-lis; her vengeance falls on the cruel Le Noyens, and is also the indirect cause of the separation of the hero and heroine, a newly wedded pair. The interest centres in Zizi's final act, which is one of restitution, and the revelation that follows it.

*Rylance, Rev. Joseph Hine. The woman-suffrage question: an argument and an appeal; being the substance of two lectures delivered in St. Mark's Church, New York. N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1894. 40 p. 12°, pap., 10 c.

Sabatier, Paul. Life of St. Francis of Assisi; tr. by Louise Seymour Houghton. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 32+448 p. O. cl., $2.50.

A new life of St. Francis of Assisi, which has attracted unusual attention in literary and religious circles. The writer in his researches had many assistants in the libraries of Italy who have shown, he testifies, a tireless helpfulness in examining and copying documents for him. The biography aims to present St. Francis in his true character as man; in doing so, nothing of his saintly halo is lost. Chapters on his youth; stages of conversion; the church about 1209; struggles and triumphs; first year of apostolate; St. Francis and Innocent III.; Rivo-Torto; the inner man and wonder-working; the stigmata, etc.

Sabin, Stewart B., and Lowry, C: D. Elementary lessons in algebra: a text-book for grammar schools. N. Y., American Book Co., [1894.] c. 128 p. D. cl., 50 c.

Consists of a series of elementary lessons, inculcating a thorough knowledge of algebraic processes and giving facility in the use of algebraic symbols. The authors believe the time has come for the introduction of the study of algebra into grammar schools.

Sacher-Masoch, Leopold v. Jewish tales; from the French, by Harriet Lieber Cohen. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1894. c. 2+317 p. D. cl., $1.

These entertaining prose idylls have already attained great popularity in France. While they delight their readers with their humor and pathos—with their realistic pictures of human life, both in comic and serious aspects—they have a special value of their own. For the Jew of former days, with his distinctive marks of hair, beard, dress, and customs, is fast passing away under the influence of modern innovations; and these tales will be prized as faithful pictures of the Jewish people's life in the good old times.

St. Felix, Marie. Two bad brown eyes. N. Y., The Merriam Co., [1894.] c. 2–245 p. D. (Waldorf ser., no. 20.) pap., 50 c.

By the author of "A little game with destiny." The possessor of the "two bad brown eyes" is a respectable country girl, who is seduced by a clergyman; he at once repents his sin, and is full of horror at the immorality of his accomplice, whom he deserts. She drifts into a life of sin, and becomes well known in Bohemian Paris. After some fifteen years or so she returns to America and to Chicago during the Columbian Fair, where she meets the clergyman's young daughter, upon whom she visits her revenge in a horribly cruel, wicked way. The story abounds in scenes from the life of the demi-monde.

St. Nicholas. Index to St. Nicholas. V. 1–21. Cambridge, Mass., W: M. Griswold, 1894. 19 p. O. bds., $1.

This index was compiled for the use of the compiler's children, aged eight and nine. Every one using the magazine will find this index a valuable aid.

Saint-Pierre, J. H: Bernardin de. Paul and Virginia; with a biographical sketch; il. by Maurice Leloir. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 17+174 p. O. cl., $1.50.

A new illustrated edition of this classic, uniform with "The story of Colette," "An attic philosopher," and "Picciola."

Salt, Harris Shirley. Richard Jefferies: a study. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 3+128 p. por. S. cl., 90 c.

Considers, in a series of chapters, Richard Jefferies as man, as naturalist, as poet-naturalist, as thinker, and as writer. The work is the substance of articles contributed by Mr. Salt to Temple Bar, Pall Mall Gazette, etc. A bibliographical appendix of eight pages gives the work of Jefferies, criticism, biography, etc., and portraits of him.

Salt, H: S. Animals' rights considered in relation to social progress; with a bibliographical appendix. [Also] An essay on vivisection in America, by Albert Leffingwell, M.D. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. c. 11+177 p. S. cl., 75 c.

"To set the principle of animals' rights on a consistent and intelligible footing, to show that this principle underlies the various efforts of humanitarian reformers, and to make a clearance of the comfortable fallacies which the apologists of the present system have industriously accumulated" is the object of this essay. Among other points touched on are: "The slaughter of animals for food," "Sport, or, amateur butchery," and "Murderous milliners." The bibliography on the rights of animals does not contain very many titles, although it covers 28 pages—as it includes excerpts from the books and criticisms.

Saltus, Francis Saltus. The bayadere, and other sonnets. Limited ed. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 10+238 p. por. O. cl., $3.

Sanborn, Miss Katherine Abbott. Abandoning an adopted farm. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 3+185 p. S. cl., 75 c.

In "Adopting an abandoned farm," Miss Sanborn told the story of her settlement at "Breezy Meadows," Metcalf, Mass., where she felt she had found a home, and interests sufficient for the rest of her life. In the present volume she gives some of her reasons for leaving her "adopted farm" for a more secluded retreat. They include her experience with her "help," her dogs and her hens, her neighbors and her visitors, the tramps, the canvassers, etc., all related in a most humorous manner, and illustrated with many fresh and pointed anecdotes.

A record based upon the best authorities and written in an interesting narrative style for general readers and young students of British history. A series of original maps serves to show the great territorial changes that have occurred since earlier times and the gradual progress of the formation of the British empire in later days.

Sanderson, Jos., D.D., comp. and ed. The pastor's pocket manual for funerals: suitable scripture selections adapted to various occasions and germs of funeral addresses; introd. by W: M. Taylor, D.D. N. Y., Wilbur B. Ketcham, [1894.] c. 96 p. nar. S. leath., net, 60 c.

Sanderson, Jos., D.D. The story of Saint Patrick; with a sketch of Ireland's condition before and after Patrick's time. [Also] Ireland and the Irish, their Christianity, institutions, missions, mission fields, and learning from the earliest times; with an appendix, by J: Borland Finlay. N. Y., Wilbur B. Ketcham, 1895 [1894.] c. 2-264 p. O. cl., $4.

A popular life of St. Patrick, based upon facts and upon his characteristics and teachings as revealed in his genuine writings. Shows that the church established by him in Ireland was not subject to the jurisdiction of the Bishop of Rome, and that this independence continued for seven centuries after Patrick's time. The author further states that "there is no mention in Patrick's teaching of auricular confession, invocation of saints, purgatory, or any of the destructive dogmas of the Romish church."

Three naval officers become the slaves of three charming heroines—French, Mexican, and American. The great intrigues of the "bonanza days" in California are told with spirit. The designs of the opium confederates in the Yellow Sea and the fight to save a great treasure offer an exciting story.

Savage, R: H: The princess of Alaska; a tale of two countries: a novel. Chic., F. Tennyson Neely, 1894. c. 420 p. D. (Neely's lib. of choice literature, no. 33.) pap., 50 c.

The scene is Alaska. Irma, the daughter of Prince Gregory Maxutoff, Governor of Alaska, is the heroine, and when the story opens the prospective princess of Alaska. The interest centres in the action of Fedor Orloff, a Russian convict, and in that of Prince Maxutoff; also in Serge Zubow, a Tartar, who schemes at once for the fur trade of Alaska, the downfall of the governor, and revenge on Orloff, seeking to encompass his ends by criminal means.

Sawyer, B. F. David and Abigail. Bost., Arena Pub. Co., 1894. c. 3+360 p. D. (Arena lib. ser., no. 33.) pap., 50 c.

Scene is laid in the south during the exciting political campaign which ended in the election of James Buchanan to the presidency. David is the son of Judge Winston, a proud aristocrat who has fallen hopelessly in debt to Israel Hardie, a working farmer, who has become very rich. To straighten matters the latter offers his daughter Abigail to David in marriage. Upon their first meeting the ceremony takes place. The story tells the consequences.

Prof. Scheiner is assistant at the Royal Astronomical Observatory at Potsdam. This treatise on the science of astronomical spectroscopy—spectrum analysis in its astronomical applications—is intended as an advanced text-book for students and as a handbook for scientists. It presents an exhaustive survey of modern methods and results of research in this branch of science, covering the details of spectroscopic apparatus, the leading spectroscopic theories, the results of spectroscopic observations, and a representative series of spectroscopic tables. The work first appeared in 1890, and in the present edition the advances made in the study of astrophysics within the past three years have been incorporated by the translator, who is assistant professor of astronomy at Dartmouth College. A bibliography of astronomical spectroscopy is appended (44 p.), and there is a good index.

About fifteen years ago Prof. Joynes produced an edition of "Maria Stuart," with very brief notes, as one of the series of "Whitney's German texts." Now, as circumstances seemed to call for a new edition, it has been thought best to essay a fresh work, planned on new and larger lines, more suited, perhaps, to the demands of the present day in our schools and colleges. While, therefore, the present edition is the lineal descendant of the earlier one, it is in no sense the same, except, of course, in so far as the earlier materials have again been freely used. Preceded by a sketch of Schiller and a full introduction on the play.

"This edition is prepared in the belief that the work needs a more helpful and more attractive treatment than it has hitherto received. As it will be read chiefly in college classes, the purpose has been to minimize the proportion of translation and grammatical notes, and to give as much as feasible for the literary and historical appreciation of the drama."—Preface. The introduction presents the material most needful for "the orientation of the student of Wallenstein, as well as for the understanding of the place of this drama in Schiller's development, and its relation to his other works."

Schmoller, Gustav. Idea of justice in political economy. Phil., American Acad. of Political and Social Science, [1894.] 41 p. O. (Publications of the society, no. 113.) pap., 35 c.

The author explains that the idea of justice has no resting, determined existence on earth. As no penal law, no judge is absolutely just, so no established distribution of property and incomes is altogether just, but every consecutive epoch of mankind has won a higher measure of justice in this field. Great men are those who devote their services to the great moral ideas of humanity, and who on the field of economics succeed in advancing juster institutions. Justice in political economy must always remain relative, but can always be worked for by the positive individual virtues of character and high ideals.

Schultz, Mme. Jeanne. Madeleine's rescue: a story for girls and boys; il. by Tofani. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 4+176 p. O. cl., $1.

Madeleine is a little Freneh girl who early becomes an orphan; her legal guardians are two brothers and a sister of her mother, who after fifty years of close and affectionate union had quarrelled and separated, each taking up a different residence for his or herself. It is decided that Madeleine shall spend an equal time with each guardian, the little girl being made wretchedly unhappy in eonsequenee. It is while living with her aunt that she makes the aequaintance of five boys living in a neighboring house, who cleverly bring about a better condition of affairs for little Madelein:. Scudder, Horace Elisha. Childhood in literature and art; with some observations on literature for children: a study. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 2+253 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Mr. Scudder has undertaken in this study to pass in review the literatures of Greece and Rome and Judæa, the legends and art of the middle ages, and the literature and art of modern times, to discover, if possible, the meaning of the appearance and disappearance of childhood as a subject for poets, romancers, and artists. The book is thus a criticism of literature and art from a new point of view, and Mr. Scudder's name is sufficient assurance that it is done with ample knowledge and excellent skill.

The story is in the form of a diary. The heroine, a woman of rank and culture, had been married when a very young girl to a rich, scholarly, sceptical man, many years her senior. In their not unhappy life of intellectual companionship, the old orthodox faith of her youth is completely destroyed. Left a widow at thirty, still beautiful, and yearning for an earthly happiness she has never known, she is brought in contact with a man who had professed to love her before her marriage, but who, when they meet again, is engaged to another woman Lady Bellarmine and Victor Dayrolles love each other and determine to seize their happiness regardless of the claims of others. Margaret's "surrender" finally to the right and to her old belief, in which she is strongly influenced by an Anglican priest, is well told.

The purpose of this supplementary volume is to elaborate more carefully some of the difficult points in specific unity, partly by original explanations by the author, and partly by extracts from that class of theologians who have advocated it. The volume contains an amount of carefully-selected citations from works in the ancient, mediæval, and reformation periods, and also from the English and continental divines of the 16th and 17th centuries that are not easily accessible.

Sheldon, C: M. The crucifixion of Phillip Strong. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1894. c. 3–267 p. D. cl., $1.

Phillip Strong accepted a call to become the pastor of a fashionable church in a town of 80,000 inhabitants, the richest among them being mill-owners, employing 20,000 people. Fearlessly the minister preached the duties of professing church-members to their God, their fellow-men, and themselves. His earnest purpose was to show the appointed work of a modern church professing to follow the teachings of Christ. He was morally crucified.

This unique correspondence between two famous and distinguished brothers is one of the most interesting and valuable contributions to the literature of the Civil War. Beginning in 1836 with Gen. Sherman's entry at West Point and Senator Sherman's first experience as a civil engineer in Ohio, they record the incidents of both lives down to the close of the war with a fulness that never wearies. As the majority of the incidents are historical events of exceptional importance, the conservative, impartial manner in which they are stated and discussed is most helpful and enlightening. The Indian and Mexican wars are topics as well as the late war. Many portraits of both brothers are scattered through the volume. Gen. Sherman's daughter is the editor of the present series of letters. They were first given to the public through the pages of The Century.

Notwithstanding the title, David of Juniper Gulch—a sturdy young miner—plays but a small part. It is a story of the life, experiences, and heart-history of a young girl brought up in a little California mining town. Hulda Hardy's sweet and noble nature is admirably developed, and though her great sacrifice, made for the sake of a girl friend, comes near wrecking her life, the clouds clear at last, and the conclusion is eminently satisfactory. The descriptions of California life and Hulda's experiences as "school ma'am" in the mountain regions are fresh and interesting.

"Lillian Morris" is a story of America in 1849; it is told by the hero in his old age; after the discovery of gold in California, he is selected to lead a caravan of emigrants across the continent from New York to San Francisco; one of the party is "Lillian Morris," a beautiful young girl going out to Sacramento to her father. The "captain" of the caravan falls in love with her and a romance with many episodes follows. The entire scene is in the caravan in its long and tedious journey, often interrupted by Indians and alarming incidents. The second story, "Sachem," has its scene in Texas; "Yamzol" is a Polish sketch, and "The bull-fight" is a reminiscence of Spain.

The present volume has two distinct aims. It includes, first, a compilation of American poems (mostly short selections), drawn from the era beginning about the commencement of the century and reaching to the present day. As a compilation, therefore, it may be of interest to the general reader, as well as of special service to a student of literature wishing to acquaint himself readily with types of American poetry; also for making an inductive study both of the chief American poets and to a lesser extent the other poets whose extracts are included.

Simonds, W: E: An introduction to the study of English fiction. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1894. c. 5–240 p. D. cl., $1.

The English novel, as a specific form of art, arose with Richardson and Fielding between the years 1740 and 1750; but English fiction dates back to the Jutes, Angles, and Saxons, and their narrative romances in verse and prose. A general résumé is given of these old romances; those of Elizabeth's reign are grouped on a two-page schedule made by date and subject. A list of one hundred novels "which for one reason or another are worth reading" is given, including twenty continental novels. Half of the book is devoted to selections from early fiction, including Beowulf, King Horn, Arcadia, Forbonius, and Prisceria (unabridged), Moll Flanders, Tom Jones, Pamelia, Tristram Shandy, etc.

McNally & Co., 1894. c. 4+260 p. D. (Rialto ser., no. 66.) pap., 50 c.

Through a story of London life are revealed "hidden depths" of sin and misery often unseen by the superficial observer. The characters are two sisters, who had been innocent country girls, but whose lives had been ruined by two apparently respectable men; one commits suicide, and the other is rescued by a good woman from the ranks of fallen women, only to die an early death. The writer dwells upon the world's injustice in its different treatment of the man and the woman who lapses from virtue. First published in London, in 1885, under the title of "Hidden depths: a story of cruel wrong."

Smiles, S: Josiah Wedgwood, F. R. S.; his personal history. N. Y., Harper, 1895 [1894.] c. '94. 4+330 p. por. D. cl., $1.50.

The subject of this biography came from a distinguished family of English potters in Staffordshire; it was he, individually, however, that made the name of Wedgwood famous. He was born in 1730, and died 1795. In 1769 he opened new potteries at Etruria, in Staffordshire, on a large scale, and assisted by the artist Flaxman, and other artists of equal merit, turned out the celebrated Wedgwood and Bentley pottery. His chief artistic feat was the production of an accurate copy, in clay, of the celebrated glass Portland vase. This work relates all these incidents, with facts of his early life, etc., in Smiles' popular style.

Smith, Constance. A cumberer of the ground: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1894. 2+302 p. D. (Franklin sq. lib., new ser., no. 752.) pap., 60 c.

On the title-page we read: "There are some whose destiny it is to finish nothing; to leave the feast on the table, and all the edges of life ragged." To this unfortunate class belongs the hero; nothing in his life seems to find its natural consummation. Dishonesty, disaster, and deceit had blighted his youth, and sent him a penniless emigrant to Australia before taking his Oxford degree. After ten years of manual labor in Queensland an unexpected inheritance restores him to London and good society. He loves again for the second time a charming girl, who would have accepted him if he had spoken soon enough; but he hesitates, and loses her. Her life—married to a man she does not love, and his own, without aim or effort, are full of dramatic and painful incidents. The scene changes from England to Italy, and then to India.

The author is rector of the Church of St. Michael and All Angels, Baltimore, Md. He traces the history of the Protestant Episcopal Church in America back to England, then through the Norman, Saxon, and British times to the apostolic missionaries who came from the cradle and source of Christianity, and with them he journeys back to Jerusalem. He considers the Anglican Church and its American branch the church

Betty's mother has just died when the story opens, and her father, who has weak lungs, has been ordered to a warmer climate than could be found in England for his health—so Betty had to go to school to her great sorrow. Her father selects a friend of her mother's to take charge of her—a lady he knows will take the best care of her. Betty goes to her school with great reluctance—but the history of her stay there is full of interest. The incidents are such as might happen to any young girl in a boarding-school.

Although written in 1877 this book still holds its own as the most complete picture thus far given of ancient Carthage and her two greatest men—Hamilcar Barca and his son Hannibal. The author first gives a general sketch of Carthaginian influence and civilization; then points out the main differences between Carthage and Rome, followed by the account of the great Punic Wars. He has devoted most space to the first war generally treated more briefly by historical writers. At the time of writing Mr. Smith was assistant master at Harrow.

In the third and last volume of a series published under the general title of "Only a girl's heart," Gertrude Haddon is the heroine. The mystery surrounding her birth is revealed, and the incidents following her separation from her husband shortly after a very romantic marriage are given with her adventures on land and sea and a description of her return to Summit Manor.

Southworth, Mrs. E. D. E. N. The lost lady of Lone: a novel. N. Y., Rob. Bonner's Sons, 1894. c. '76, '90, '94. 561 p. il. D. (Popular ser., no. 48.) pap., 25 c.
The scene is laid in the Highlands of Scotland; the story is a domestic tragedy, said to have actually occurred in an old, distinguished Scotch family; the plot turns upon the great resemblance of half-brothers to each other, the bride of the one attributing to him the acts and crimes of the other.

Southworth, Mrs. E. D. E. N. The maiden widow: a novel. [New issue.] N. Y., G: W. Dillingham, 1893 [1894.] c. '70. 4+21–313 p. D. (Madison Sq. ser., no. 77.) pap., 25 c.

Southworth. Mrs. E. D. E. N. The rejected bride; [a sequel to] "Only a girl's heart;" il. by Hugh M. Eaton. N. Y., Rob. Bonner's Sons, [1894.] c. '74, '93. 5–445 p. D. (Ledger lib., no. 100.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The scene of this story is, like the preceding one, in the south. Geraldine Fitzgerald is momentarily expecting the arrival of her lover, whom she is about to marry, when she receives a letter from him telling her that he has hastily married another woman. The course of the apparently false lover after this rash act is traced in a story of sensational episodes.

Spalding, J: Lancaster (Bp.) Things of the mind. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1894. c. 3–235 p. D. cl., $1.

The Roman Catholic Bishop of Peoria takes the view that the educator's aim should be to create interest rather than supply abundance of facts. The teacher is too much inclined to put his own mind and will in the place of the learners. The pupil must be helped to recognize his special talents and taught to educate himself. The fatal fault of Americans he thinks is facility. We are busy with many things, and we take too little thought to make the highest use of ourselves for the real improvement of others. He has written some stirring views of professional education, theories of life and education, culture and religion, and patriotism.

Exercises prepared for classes in high schools and other institutions of similar grade; they indicate in a general way the nature of the work that, in the judgment of the writer, should be undertaken with young people who are just beginning the systematic study of common forms of plant-life. They were suggested by frequent inquiries of teachers regarding the preparation in botany now required for admission to the University of Michigan, in which the author is professor of botany.

A beautiful Italian widow takes as her third husband an elderly English gentleman of fine social position and abundant means and immediately breaks off all connections between him and his nephew, Buro Brabazon, to whom he has been as a father. An old-fashioned novel of intrigue, drugging, imprisonment and rescue by smugglers. The scene is in and around London.

Spencer, Herbert. Aphorisms from the writings of Herbert Spencer; selected and arr. by Julia Raymond Gingell. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. 9+170 p. por. D. cl., $1.

Grouped under the following headings: Education; Evolution; Science; Sociology; Politics; Justice; Liberty; Truth and honesty; Sympathy; Happiness; Self-control. They illustrate the wide range of Mr. Spencer's philosophy, and are selected from the latest edition of his works. Appended is "A list of the works of Mr. Herbert Spencer, from which the selections have been made, with the first dates of publication." (4 p.)

Spencer, W: G: A system of lucid shorthand devised by W: G: Spencer, with a prefatory note by Herbert Spencer. N. Y. Appleton, 1894. 28 p. il. D. flex. cl., 50 c.

This system, devised by Mr. Herbert Spencer's father, has been in manuscript since 1843. It is now published, as explained by the writer of the prefatory note, not because it possesses advantages over existing phonographies for reporting and kindred purposes, but "from the conviction, long since formed and still unshaken, that it ought to replace ordinary writing." It is claimed that, as it possesses the brevity of shorthands in general, and greater legibility, the use of it by men of business, journalists, authors, and people at large, would achieve a great economy of life.

The heroines are Priscilla, the Puritan maiden, Agnes Surriage, and Martha Hilton. The romances are Longfellow's "Courtship of Miles Standish," Dr. Holmes' "Agnes," and Longfellow's "Governor Wentworth's wife." Their true stories are now set forth by three New England women. Edmund H. Garrett has made many authentic and fanciful sketches of the surroundings of Portsmouth, Marblehead, and Sudbury, and furnished some delightful notes upon the Massachusetts of to-day and of a century ago.

Springsteed, Anne Frances. The expert waitress: a manual for the pantry, kitchen, and dining-room. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 5+131 p. S. cl., $1.

Contents: Breakfast; luncheon; dinner; supper; afternoon tea; picnic and travelling luncheons; in care of dining-room; care of pantry; washing dishes; care of silver, etc.; lamps; carving; care of carvers; general rules; miscellaneous instructions; useful suggestions; in the invalid's room; truthfulness in the waitress; adaptability; a servant's contract. These papers are intended rather as a working model than as a set of rules, from which there is no appeal.

Spurgeon, C: H. The art of illustration. N. Y., W. B. Ketcham, [1894.] c. 205 p. D. cl., $1.

This is the first issued of Charles H. Spurgeon's unfinished books. It is composed of five lectures originally delivered to the students of the Pastor's College, Metropolitan Tabernacle, London. The great preacher points out the use of anecdotes and illustrations to enliven sermons and impress their subjects indelibly, and then gathers together from newspapers, the street, and the sciences a goodly number of samples of illustration.

Elsa and Alfrie Donne, tiring of their play one stormy day, are impelled to examine a falling snow-flake, and while they are thus engaged the tiny snow-flake seems to assume the shape of a wee maiden, who calls herself Evelyn Mackerell-Skye, and who invites the two children to accompany her to Cloudland. The results of this aerial journey are seen in a story of wonderful fact and strange fancy.

Stables, W: Gordon, M.D. From ploughshare to pulpit: a tale of the battle of life. N. Y., Ward & Drummond, [1894.] 3+310 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

Sandie M'Crae, a Scottish farmer-boy, rescues the Rev. Mackenzie and his young daughter from an almost instantaneous death, by his presence of mind and heroism. The minister after this learns of Sandie's ambition, and aids him in the fulfilment of his hopes. The story tells how the farmer lad finally entered the university, and of a still greater transformation, and a later romance, the scene of which is at the manse.

Stables, W: Gordon, M.D. To Greenland and the pole: a story of adventure in the Arctic regions; il. by G. C. Hindley. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, [1894.] 5-350 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

The recent exploits of the brave Arctic explorer Nansen in Greenland, and the splendid daring of his present expedition, form the basis of this story—the chief hero Reynolds standing for the famous traveller. The author is himself an old Arctic voyager, and has thus made excellent use of all available material in describing a journey across Greenland and a successful voyage to the back of the North Pole. Besides this wonderful "sea-yarn" there are accounts of deer-hunting in Norway, sealing in the Arctic Seas, bear-stalking on the ice-floes, and walking on snow-shoes in the north of Scotland.

Stackpole, Everett S., D.D. The evidence of salvation; or, the direct witness of the spirit. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., [1894.] c. 5+115 p. S. cl., 50 c.

Dr. Stackpole is convinced that certainty of salvation is definitely promised by the scriptures; he states the question in a simple, earnest style, and then proceeds to demonstrate the proof of it. Dr. Stackpole was for some time a teacher in a theological school in Italy. Since then he has been extensively engaged in revival work in this country, and practical experience has clearly shown him the need of a succinct and definite manual on a matter so vital to the needs of seekers and vacillating believers.

An elaborate and practical pocket manual for beginners in the game. Stagg and Williams are both well known, the former as Yale's end-rusher in '88-'89, and one of the closest and most thorough students of the game; and Williams as the Yale half-back in '90, and a player who thought out and brought many new plays to practical success. There are chapters for beginners and spectators, on team-play, tactics, training, and on the several positions.

Stalker, Ja., D.D. The trial and death of Jesus Christ: a devotional history of our Lord's passion. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1894. c. 10+321 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Ever since the author wrote "The Life of Jesus Christ," he has had the desire to describe, on a much more extended scale, the closing passages of the Saviour's earthly history. Taking the word "passion" in the strict sense, he has commenced at the point where, by falling into the hands of his enemies, our Lord was deprived of voluntary activity; and he has finished with the burial. He has called the book a "devotional history," because "the subject is one which has to be studied with the heart as well as the head"—but he has not, on this account, written in the declamatory and interrogatory style common in devotional works.

These forty-three brief sermons to children were preached by Dr Stall, the author of the well-known "Methods of church-work," while pastor of the Second English Lutheran Church at Baltimore. With some object of every-day life presented to the eye, the author, after the manner of the parables, presents the important truths of the gospel to the comprehension of both old and young.

Stanton, Frank L. Songs of the soil. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 13+217 p. D cl., $1.50.

Mr. Stanton is a southern man and one of the writers of the Atlanta Constitution, where he has a department which he calls "Just from Georgia," which he prefaces each morning with at least one original poem—but often writing four or five poems a day. They are now offered in a volume with an interesting preface by Joel Chandler Harris, highly eulogistic of the man and his work. The poems are in dialect and redolent of the soil; happy, joyous effusions singing of a thousand phases of life and nature south.

The editor of The Review of Reviews spent four months in Chicago during the Columbian Exposition, and this book is the result. It is a detailed account of the vice and crime of Chicago, with numerous statistics. Election frauds and political corruption are also treated, and the lives of some of the millionaires and leading men of Chicago are exploited.

Stearns, Frank Preston. Life and genius of Jacopo Robusti, called Tintoretto. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 10+327 p. D. cl., $2.25.

Jacopo Robusti, commonly called "Tintoretto," was born in Venice in 1518 and died 1594. He was one of the greatest painters of the Venetian or of any school; his works, mostly frescoes, were made in Venice, many of them still remaining to view in the churches and palaces. A thorough life of Tintoretto in English has long been needed—one that should understandingly set forth his work and his genius—we have it here. A list of his paintings and where they are is given.

Steel, Mrs. Flora Annie. The potter's thumb: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 2+351 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The scene is India. The two heroes, Dan Fitzgerald and George Keene, are Englishmen employed to superintend the public works, especially the provisions against floods and water famines. An old Indian legend runs that sometimes in modelling clay the potter's thumb slips, and that at the place in his work where this happens there remains a weak spot which cannot stand the firing. So, in these men and the girls who influenced their lives there are weaknesses that unfit them for the battle of life. Indian manners and a destructive cholera epidemic are described with the author's peculiar talent.

Stevenson, Rob. L: Balfour. Will o' the mill. Bost., Joseph Knight Co., 1895 [1894.] c. 3+63 p. D. (Cosy corner ser.) cl., 50 c.
An allegorical story which pictures the life of a lonely boy who lived at an old mill, situated in a remote valley between two high mountains; this lad was fated for years to watch from a distance the passing of many travellers, and finally the mill where he lives is, on account of his adopted father's greed, transformed into an inn; then the wayfarers are brought into direct touch with him, and his opinions of life are confirmed. His views of death are realized and described in the last chapter.

Stevenson, Rob. L: Balfour, and Osbourne Lloyd. The ebb tide: a trio and quartette. Cambridge and Chic., Stone & Kimball, 1894. c. '93. 6–204 p. S. cl., $1.25.
The trio is introduced on an island in the South Seas: a sea captain who has lost his ship because he was too drunk to give proper orders in a storm; a London clerk without a redeeming quality, and an Oxford student who has knocked about the world, and always proved incompetent. When reduced to despair by sickness, want, and cold, the trio make a final effort to leave their surroundings, and in consequence become a quartette. An interesting psychological study, based upon sensational adventures.

Pomona of "Rudder Grange," married to Jonas and with a grown-up daughter, and some polish and education added to her natural shrewdness and native wit, is the author of this series of letters written from England and Scotland to her former mistress, Euphemia. They tell how she and Jonas hired a furnished cottage in Somersetshire, and entertained a "boarder," and made several days' trip on bicycles and looked up their ancestors, and generally impressed the "British" with their importance. Pomona is as amusing as of old.

Stoddard, W: Osborn. The captain's boat. N. Y., The Merriam Co., [1894.] c. 2–272 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

A little town on the shores of Long Island Sound is the home of the two lads whose experiences, as owners of the Sea Lion, make up a thoroughly nautical story. They go fishing and sailing, and figure in two dramatic "rescues," which bring them friends and work a pleasant change in their lives. The captain's boat—a life-boat manned by six artificial figures—is the chief curiosity in jolly Captain Vrooman's "museum," and its story makes an exciting "yarn."

Stoddard, W: Osborn. Chris the model-maker: a story of New York; il. by B. West Clinedinst. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 4+287 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

Chris Huyler is a lame boy, full of talent; the story of his career, with that of his friends is rich in suggestion and inspiration. The story takes place in a house in one of the old streets in the lower part of New York City. Mr. Gerichten, who owns the shop in which "Chris" works, was once an officer in a Polish regiment; his daughter is the heroine; she is passionately fond of music, and yearns for culture in various directions.

A day-book of quotations from religious and secular literature, in which a sequence of thought and an evolution of purpose is shown, which lift it out of the fragmentariness of the ordinary "text" book. It gets its title from the Latin hymn, Vexilla Regis prodeunt—"The royal banners forward go"—which opens the book, with an English translation by the Rev. J. M. Neall. Printed on linen paper with untrimmed edges and gilt top.

The author is a well-known clergyman of Philadelphia. "Once in May," he writes, "and again in August, in the year 1892, it fell to my lot to wander through the woods, valleys, and towns of Derbyshire. The pleasure I felt and the knowledge I gained on these occasions I have sought to suggest in these pages." The work is handsomely gotten up, being printed on linen paper with wide margins and uncut edges, and fully illustrated An appendix contains some of the ballads popular in Derbyshire.

"He and She; or, a poet's portfolio," first appeared in 1883. "She" has now become the poet's wife, and they again engage in conversations on art, literature, and theories of life and death interspersed with many lyrical poems. The little volume ends with a very touching duet, in which "She" clearly shows that "He" is all in all to her regardless of his learning and his talents, and that she is jealous of his thoughts and occupations. Includes discussions on paradise, the creation, Faust, the Arabian Nights, etc.

Story (The) of my dictatorship: with a preface by W: Lloyd Garrison. N. Y., Sterling Pub. Co., 1894. c. 5+133 p. D. (Sterling lib., no. 4.) pap., 30 c.

Story (The) of Rodman Heath; or, Mugwumps, by one of them. Bost., Arena Pub. Co., 1894. c. 4+328 p. D. cl., $1.25; pap., 50 c.

Love is subordinated to politics in this story of American life. It deals with the career of a Republican politician, who is introduced as congressman for a Massachusetts district, and who, later, recognizes the questionable methods of party organization and challenges political defeat by becoming a "mugwump." His conversion is effected through a surgical operation, resulting from a fracture of the skull, by which his mind, formerly injured by a serious accident, is restored to full and logical poise. The operation also disposes of a scandal, fabricated to injure his reputation, the unravelling of which forms an essential part of the plot.

Strachey, Sir E: Talk at a country house: fact and fiction. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 6+249 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

It is supposed that while indulging in foreign travel Mr. Foster met the owner of an ancestral hall in Somersetshire, more than four centuries old. He receives an invitation to visit the master who lives there surrounded by three generations of living descendants and looked down upon by the portraits of seven generations. During the delightful visit the conversation runs upon Shakespeare, Persian poetry, the old hall and the portraits, a general election, right and wrong in politics, love and marriage, Tennyson and Maurice, Camelot and the Arthur of history, the Arrowhead inscriptions and the light thrown on Jewish history, Emil Souvestre, Pope, Parnell, etc. Full of quotation and wanderings in the by-paths of the literature of four centuries.

Strahan, S. A. K., M.D. Suicide and insanity: a physiological and sociological study. N. Y., imported by C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. 5+228 p. D. (Social science ser.) cl., $1.

The author has endeavored to trace modern suicide to its source: to show how large a percentage of what is really avoidable is deliberately propagated; and how closely it is related to those other abnormal conditions met with in all civilized communities. "It is in the hope," he says, "that people may be induced to use intelligently, in the propagation of the human race, some of the knowledge, care, and forethought so successfully exercised in the breeding of the lower animals, that this book is given to the public."

Luke Foster tells his own story. An orphan, he is employed as office-boy in the law-office of his uncle and guardian. He is generally ill-treated, and finally his uncle accuses him of stealing six thousand dollars. This is the prelude to a series of exciting adventures. Luke runs away; is kidnapped on board the Spitfire, discovers a plot to sink the ship and get the insurance on her bogus cargo; has a hairbreadth escape from the burning vessel; is two days adrift on a raft; and finally succeeds in bringing the Spitfire's captain to justice, unravelling his uncle's plots and regaining his own inheritance.

When the story opens Richard Dare's father, a journeyman painter, is killed by a fall from a scaffolding. The sixteen-year-old son, left the head of the family, leaves his village home for New York, where he hopes to make a living and find a missing witness to his father's pension papers. A railway accident makes him some useful friends, and after varied experiences as stock clerk in a large book and stationery store the missing witness is found, the pension secured and Richard, in partnership with a friend, is launched in a promising, independent book business.

Straus, Oscar S. Roger Williams, the pioneer of religious liberty. N. Y., The Century Co., 1894. c. 9+257 p. fac-simile, D. cl., $1.25.

Several biographies of Roger Williams have been written, most of which are now out of print. Since the publication of these earlier works much valuable additional information concerning the pioneer of religious liberty in America has come to light Mr. Straus, the author of the present biography, has given careful study to the subject of Roger Williams and his work. He has searched anew the records of the Charter House, where Williams attended school as a pensioner, and also the records of Pembroke College. Among other things he has succeeded in determining the year of Williams' birth, a matter which has long been the subject of controversy among genealogists and historians of New England. Roger Williams is one of the most picturesque characters in our history. His life was one long battle for religious liberty.

Stretton, Hesba, [pseud. for Hannah Smith (?)] and * * *. The highways of sorrow: a novel. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co , 1894. c. 6+288 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Written in collaboration with a well-known Russian author, now an exile in England. The story deals with the Stundists, a humble Protestant sect of Russia, who aim to live the life of the early apostles. The Greek priesthood is specially bitter against this sect, and with the help of the government banishes many of them to Siberia. "The highway of sorrow" is the road that leads to Siberian exile.

Strobridge, G. E., D.D. Biography of the Rev. Daniel Parish Kidder, D.D., L.L.D., by his son-in-law. N. Y., printed by Hunt & Eaton, 1894. c. 3-357 p. por. D. cl., $1.50.

The subject of this memoir was a distinguished Methodist divine. His first pastorate was in Rochester; he was for some years a missionary in South America; in 1841 he was stationed at Paterson, New Jersey, and shortly afterward at Trenton. For twelve years (1844-1856) he was the secretary of the Sunday-School Union and editor of the Sunday-School Advocate. He wrote "Mormonism and the Mormons," "Sketches of a residence and travels in Brazil," and "Brazil and the Brazilians," etc. He died July 29, 1891.

Strong, Ja. The exhaustive concordance of the Bible: showing every word of the text of the common English version of the canonical books, and every occurrence of each word in regular order; with a comparative concordance of the authorized and revised versions, including the American variations; also brief dictionaries of the Hebrew and Greek words of the original, with references to the English words. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1894. c. '90. 1340+262+128+79 p. F. cl., $6; hf. rus., $8; hf. tky. mor., $10.

The main concordance covers 1340 pages of three columns each. The words are arranged in strict alphabetical order, and in one continuous series without omissions or duplications; and all the passages in which they are found are set down in like manner in single file regularly according to the respective books, chapters and verses from Genesis to Revelation, without requiring the student to look under separate heads for any occurreuce. Absolutely every word is given with all the passages in which it occurs. To every English word is a figure reference to the Greek, Hebrew, and Chaldee dictionaries which complete the work, where the original meaning or derivation of the word may be found; these dictionaries may be consulted without any previous knowledge of the language. This is an entirely original work, and not a compilation of those that have gone before; Dr. Strong has spent more than thirty years in preparing it, and has had the aid of more than one hundred assistants. All possible pains have been taken to avoid errors. It is a monument to the industry, ingenuity, and Biblical scholarship of Dr. Strong.

Strong, Ja. C. Wah-kee-nah and her people: the curious customs, traditions, and legends of the North American Indians. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1893 [1894.] c. 13+275 p. por. D. cl., $1.25.

General Strong began to live among the Indians of the Pacific coast in 1850, and learned one of their languages, and for six years travelled with and among them, thus becoming thoroughly familiar with their folk-lore, habits, and home-life. The volume opens with a brief account of the relations of the white races with the Indians, which is not flattering to the former's claims to a superior civilization. The writer distinguishes between the various tribes along the northern parts of the continent, giving their history, characteristics, etc., the most attractive being the Mandans, whose traditions and appearance show that they are probably descendants of the Welsh voyager, Prince Madoc. The story of the Indian maiden "Wah-kee nah" is very beautiful and romantic.

Stuart, Ruth McEnery. The story of Babette, a little Creole girl. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 4+209 p. il. D cl., $1.50.

At New Orleans, during the Mardi Gras procession of 1872, a little girl of five was stolen from her friends by a gypsy, the object being the reward. Fearing detection, the child is kept by low Italians for some time, rescued from them by another accident, and made the darling of an old Creole physician and his wife. The end is happy. Life among the rich Creole families of the south is described in interesting detail.

Sudermann, Hermann. Regine; from the German, by Hettie E. Miller. Chic., E. A. Weeks & Co., 1894. c. 195 p. (The Marguerite ser., no. 23.) pap., 25 c.

The story tells of the year after Napoleon had been confined at Elba. A German soldier, upon his return home from the field, hears that his father has just died, and that because he had been known to give information to the French the church and state refused him burial. After this is settled he goes to his forsaken home, and there finds a half savage girl, who has faithfully served his father and now becomes his slave. Their lonely, wild, silent life, ostracized from all village society, is artistically told.

Superfluous woman (A.) N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1894.] c. 3+336 p. D. cl., $1; (Cassell's sunshine ser., no. 151.) pap., 50 c.

A study in heredity, in the form of a novel; thought to be by the author of "The heavenly twins." The heroine is a "professional beauty," who has been taught to think the highest happiness is found in a marriage of wealth and position. She rebels against the attempts of her aunt to marry her to Lord Heriot, the "greatest catch in Europe," a worn-out roué, the last of his line of degenerate ancestors, and suddenly disappears from London society, hiding herself in an isolated spot in the Scotch Highlands. Here she falls in love with a noble type of the Scotch peasant, whom her pride prevents her marrying. After a short struggle she returns to her old life and marries Lord Heriot. This marriage, with its dreadful consequences, is the author's opportunity for many plainly expressed physiological truths. The heroine is a painfully powerful character-study.

Helen Lockhart, a young Scotch girl, marries a promising author, whom she has greatly idealized. After their marriage, her husband subjects her to a series of petty annoyances, and finally gives her what she deems a sufficient cause for a temporary separation; during this crisis in their affairs, the action of the Countess Rentensee and Hargreaves, former friends of Helen's husband, brings about some interesting situations, in which Helen is the heroine, and in which the countess plays quite a part.

In 1891 the author was requested to prepare for publication the manuscript notes on the "Dialogus" left by the late Professor Lucius Heritage of the University of Wisconsin, chiefly written before 1884. Critical study since then has been so rapid that it was deemed wiser to recast the work entirely, the present volume being the result. The author is professor of Latin at Cornell University.

Tadema, Miss Laurence Alma-. The wings of Icarus; being the life of one Emilia Fletcher, as revealed by herself. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. c. 4+252 p. S. cl., $1.25.
Truly poetic and intensely sad is the story told first in letters, then in journal form, of the devotion of two woman friends. The writer is an English girl who has inherited great wealth and beautiful estates, and with them the care of two conventional old English gentlewomen. Her love-story, in which her friend is the innocent cause of tragedy, is told with exquisite pathos. Her hopes and dreams and aspirations are "the wings of Icarus," which melted in her fatal love and left her hopeless and despairing after one last effort to save from suicide her husband and her friend.

The immense quantities of vegetables and flowers now grown under glass for the winter markets of the large cities has given an impulse to the building of forcing houses and beds, and many changes and improvements have been made in their original construction, for the purpose of securing more sunlight, better heating, and closer adaptation to plant needs. These are fully described and illustrated in this timely volume.

The opening story is "That dreadful woman," by Harold R. Vynne; it has its scene in Chicago, and depicts a woman, who in spite of some mistakes in her past, evinces under trial both noble and heroic traits. The remainder of the volume is filled with short stories, sketches, poems, etc.

Tales from Town Topics, no. 14. N. Y., Town Topics Pub. Co., 1894. c. 2–255 p. D. pap., 50 c.

The principal feature of this number of "Tales from Town Topics" is a stirring story of metropolitan life by Gilmer McKendree, entitled "A deal in Denver." It opens with a murder, and then the events which led up to it are given. The chief character is a physician of high standing and good practice, who becomes fascinated with the chance of making money rapidly in Wall St. With this story are a collection of short stories, sketches, poems, and witticisms taken from the back numbers of Town Topics.

Thaxter, Mrs. Celia, (Laighton). An island garden; with pictures and illuminations by Childe Hassam. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 7+126 p. O. cl., $4.

Mrs. Thaxter has spent a large part of her life on Appledore, the largest of the Isles of Shoals, and has a flower garden by her cottage which is one of the chief attractions of the islands and the wonder of the thousands who visit them every summer. In compliance with repeated importunities to tell how she succeeds so marvellously, she has written this book, which has quite enough practical information to aid the few whom information in such matters helps, and yet is charmingly permeated by the poetry of the flowers, the islands, and good literature. The illustrations reproduce the beauty and the blazing splendors of the garden, and the corner within the cottage where the hostess welcomes and charms those whom she delights to honor

Thayer, Ja. Bradley. Cases on constitutional law, with notes. Parts 1 and 2. V. 1. Cambridge, C: W. Sever, 1894. c. 11+448 p. O. limp cl., Pt. 1, $3; Pt. 2, $2.

Thayer, W: M. Ethics of success: a reader for the higher grades of schools; il. by inspiring anecdotes from the lives of successful men and women; with introd. by Albert G. Boyden. Bost., A. M. Thayer & Co., 1893 [1894.] c. '93. 450 p. D. cl., $1.

One hundred and eight chapters treating of the subject set forth by the title in all its many ramifications, as, What is success? How to achieve success; Failure, and how to avoid it; Application; Courage; Perseverance; Games; Modesty, etc. Each chapter is richly illustrated with anecdotes of great men and women.

Theal, G: MacCall. The story of South Africa, the Cape Colony, Natal, Orange Free State, South African republic, and all other territories south of the Zambesi. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. 18+397 p. il. map, D. (Story of the nations.) cl., $1.50.

The chapters upon the Cape Colony before 1848, Natal before 1845, and the Orange Free State, South African Republic, Zululand, and Basutoland before 1872, contain an outline of the author's "History of South Africa," which has been published in England in five volumes. In that work his authorities are given, and are therefore not repeated here. The remaining chapters were written from his general acquaintance with South African affairs acquired during many years' residence in the country, and have not the same claim, he says, "to be regarded as absolutely correct," though he has endeavored to make them reliable.

Théuriét, André. The Abbe Daniel; from the French, by Helen B. Dole. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., [1894.] c. 4+204 p. il. S. cl., $1.

"The Abbé Daniel" is a charming idyl of French country home-life, in which the interest lies in the romantic love of the Abbé Daniel's protégé for the daughter of his former sweetheart, for whose defection he had, indeed, out of disappointment, entered the church. Has a photogravure frontispiece, rubricated title-page, and twenty-five half-tone illustrations.

Théuriét, André. Rose-Lise; il. by Myrbach. N. Y., Meyer Bros. & Co., 1894. 2+154 p. il. T. (Collection Lemerre illustrée.) pap., 60 c.

A middle-aged Frenchman tells a chum his first experiences in coming to Paris at the age of eighteen. He went to live with a bachelor uncle, who sublet rooms to the secretary for the mayoralty, whose wife was Rose-Lise. A little episode is told, in which the hero was used as a blind, and by which he lost forever his perfect trust in his fellow-men.

Thomas, Miss Edith Matilda. In Sunshine Land; il. by Katharine Pyle. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1895 [1894.] c. 9+152 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Poems for young folks about the birds and flowers and other themes; they often tell a poetical or a humorous story, and are also not without information. They are all gay and fresh and calculated to interest and delight young readers. Some of the poems were written especially for this volume, others have appeared before in print. Besides Miss Pyle's pretty vignettes, there is a most attractive cover designed by Miss Margaret Armstrong, all birds and flowers and floating ribbons in silver and green.

Thompson, R: Wigginton. The footprints of the Jesuits. Cin., O., Cranston & Curts; N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., 1894. c. 509 p. por. O. cl., $1.75.

The author, who is ex-secretary of the navy, does not criticise or explain the peculiar tenets of the followers of Loyola, but writes wholly as a patriot in the defence of the institutions of his own country and as a statesman in defence of civil liberty everywhere, which he claims is imperilled by the very existence of the Society of Jesus in any land. The Jesuits teach that the state must be reunited with the church as a religious doctrine necessary to salvation, and this, he thinks, preached to ignorant people entrusted with a vote is against the best good of any nation.

The author is ex-Secretary of the Navy, having entered the Cabinet under the administration of President Hayes. He is in his eighty-third year, and has known personally every President of the United States except George Washington and John Adams. This book gives a full and accurate account of the principal transactions of every administration, and an exhaustive and dispassionate account of the origin and growth of the great political parties. Printed on hand-made paper and bound sumptuously as a gift-book. Contains eighteen full-page portraits in photogravure.

Thoreau, H: D. Familiar letters of Henry David Thoreau: ed., with an introd. and notes, by F. B. Sanborn. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 12+483 p. por. D. cl., $1.50.

The selection of Thoreau's letters, made to accompany a volume of his poems published in 1865, was designedly done to exhibit one phase of his character. They were his most formal letters, and they confirmed the popular impression of him as a recluse, critical if not cynical, and lacking in domestic and friendly qualities. The present collection contains twice as many as the former volume, and will correct this impression, and will show that Thoreau was delightful in his familiar letters—frank, humorous, neighborly, affectionate. The volume is uniform with the Riverside edition of his works.

Aims to amplify and make fruitful the geographical teaching of the primary school. For less advanced pupils than the author's academic treatise on the same subject.

Tillier, Claude. Belle-Plante and Cornelius; from the French, by B: R. Tucker. N. Y., The Merriam Co., [1894.] c. '93. 3–288 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

Belle-Plante and Cornelius were brothers in a rural district in France. Belle-Plante was plodding and avaricious, with no idea beyond making money. Cornelius was a dreamer and inventor, and a student. Both brothers wanted to marry the same girl, one from interested motives, the other because he loved her. This situation is improved by the author of "My Uncle Benjamin" to make many pessimistic remarks on love and marriage. Cornelius wins the girl, and devotes his life to perfecting a balloon in which he intends to study the world.

Titterington, Mrs. Sophie Bronson, ["Grace Graham," pseud.] A summer brother. Phil., American Baptist Pub. Soc., [1894.] c. 192 p. il. S. cl., 90 c.

The scene is New England. Tommy Riggs, the hero of the story, is the son of a drunkard, who tries to redeem his father from the vice of intemperance in accordance with a promise given his dying mother. Although the story conveys a strong lesson for the intemperate its real purpose is to interest readers in the Fresh Air Fund. For this the history of Tommy Riggs' visit to the Thorndale, and the incidents surrounding his adoption by Theodore Thorn as "a summer brother" are told.

Tolstoï's former volume, published in this country under the title "What I believe," and also as "My religion," evoked many essays containing much information and a series of criticisms on the principles laid down in the book. This material and his growing conviction that the "Sermon on the Mount" contains all the religion needed to reform the world the author expounds in the light of the historical events of recent years. The doctrine of non-resistance is the keynote. Standing armies kept by Christian nations Tolstoï claims stamp the Christianity of the hour as a farcical hypocrisy.

The object of this series, of which this volume is the first issue, is to give the younger people an insight into the condition of the times of 1812, a history of that war and a glimpse at the results. It is well known that one of the causes of the war was "the right of search," claimed and carried out by Great Britain, and as a result of this Andrew Field was "pressed."

Tompkins, Arnold. The philosophy of teaching. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1894. c. '91, '94. 12+280 p. D. el., 75 c.

A consideration of "the teaching process," treating of aims and methods. The writer confines himself closely to the ethics of teaching, its nature and laws, leaving details of "school management" to be discussed in a succeeding volume. The book has three divisions: The teaching process; Aim in teaching; Method in teaching. The various branches or phases of each subject are grouped under these divisions. There is a short index.

Some descriptions of nature and an exciting episode on a desert island, given as coming within Mr. Tourgée's own experience.

Towards Utopia: being speculations in social evolution, by A free lance. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. 6+252 p. D. el., $1.

To bring about the Utopia all humanity yearns for, the author points out that the first step must be a thorough change in the mental atmosphere of society. The various topics he touches upon in the study of the subject are shown in the chapter headings, which are as follows: Universal honesty the best policy; The great servant-question; A digression upon caste-sympathy; Manual and mental work, or, the Utopian division of labor; On fame, honor and glory; On choosing the least evil; The functions of middlemen; The problem of unpleasant occupations; On co operation; God the almighty dollar. By the author of "The cry of the children."

Trollope, Anthony. Christmas at Thompson Hall: a tale. Bost., Joseph Knight Co., 1894. c. '93. 5+82 p. il. D. (Cosy corner ser.) cl., 50 c.

While on their way to "Thompson Hall" to spend their Christmas with their many English relations Mr. and Mrs. Brown stop at a hotel. Mr. Brown has a sore throat and his wife leaves the room to look for mustard. When she has returned she prepares a plaster, and in putting it on the patient's throat discovers he is not her husband. The complications consequent upon the mistake are very funny.

Trollope, Mrs. Frances. Domestic manners of the Americans. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., [1894.] 2 v., 16+301; 5+303 p. il. D. hf. cl., $3.50.

Mrs. Trollope's ideas of Americans, formed during her sojourn here from 1827 to 1830, possess no slight historical value for the student of social conditions in days when American society was provincial and parochial. Mrs. Trollope was singularly truthful in her unfavorable report. The introduction to this edition is by Harry Thurston Peck, of Columbia College, New York City. First published in 1832. The illustrations are reproduced from the first edition.

Trowbridge, J: Three boys on an electrical boat. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 3+215 p. D. cl., $1.

This book is part of the record and romantic conjecture of the present age. It is a story for boys by the author of "The electrical boy," and Rumford professor and lecturer on the application of science to the useful arts in Harvard University. The boy heroes escape from a boys' school in the north of Maine, where they are not very happy, and making their way to the Atlantic coast after many adventures, get aboard of an American ironclad, where they are initiated into the many mysteries of electricity, and learn the secret of their real name and birth.

See notice, "Annual Catalogue," 1893.

True relation of the travels and perilous adventures of Mathew Dudgeon, gentleman: wherein is truly set down the manner of his taking, the long time of his slavery in Algiers, and means of his delivery; written by himself and now for the first time printed. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1894. 267 p. D. cl., $1.75.

A story of adventure, in which Mathew Dudgeon, an English merchant, tells of his voyage across seas, his capture by Barbary pirates, slavery in Algiers, and other perils by land and sea. The period is presumably about the middle of the seventeenth century, and the story is told in archaic language.

Trumbull, Rev. H: Clay. Studies in Oriental social life: gleams from the east on the sacred page. Phil., J. D. Wattles & Co., 1894. c. 18+437 p. O. cl., $2.50.

The basis of this book is a series of lectures on "Oriental social life," delivered by Dr. Trumbull before the University of Pennsylvania and Yale University. These lectures are on "Betrothals and weddings in the east," "Hospitality in the east," and "Funerals and mourning in the east." To these are added various topical studies of Oriental ideas and customs, such as "Prayers and praying in the east," "Calls for healing in the east," "The primitive idea of 'The way,'" "The Oriental idea of 'Father,'" "The Samaritan Passover, lessons of the wilderness," etc. Taken together, these chapters cover nearly the whole social life of the east, and furnish a key to the social environment of the Bible story. While the various topics of this book are presented in the light of careful study, they are treated popularly. Topical and scriptural indexes render it available for use in Bible study generally.

Tucker, Miss Eliz. S. Children of colonial days; with numerous full-page color-plates after paintings in water colors, by E. Percy Moran, and with decorative borders and other designs; with new stories and verses. N. Y., F: A. Stokes Co., 1894. c. unp. F. bds., $2.50.

Made up of twelve fac-similes of water-color sketches by Mr. Moran, each accompanied by an appropriate story or sketch by Miss Elizabeth S. Tucker, printed in inks of different colors, and enclosed in a beautiful decorative bordor, designed by Miss Tucker. Mr. Moran's sketches comprise twelve beautiful pictures of colonial life, the principal characters in them being children, though adults are also depicted, and all in the picturesque costumes of that period. In Miss Tucker's part of the work there is a different border or an elaborate tail-piece for each page of text, each illustrating some scene or character referred to in the text. The work as a whole is quite artistic, Mr. Moran's sketches and the fine color printing which they show being most praiseworthy. The binding—"boards"—is almost entirely covered back and front by two of the sketches of the book, in colors, and enclosed in frames. The two volumes which follow, "Rhymes and stories of olden times" and "Tales and verses of long ago," contain each just half the pictures and text of "Children of colonial days."

Valentine, Oswald. Helen. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 3+232 p. nar. S. (Incognito lib., no. 5.) cl., 50 c.

George Aston, a collegian fresh from Cambridge, full of plans for the improvement of mankind and of material for romances to be written to point moral lessons in the characters of their women, meets Helen Lemardelay. She is a rich girl, full of enthusiasms, the centre of a circle of enthusiasts and critics of art, literature, science, speculation, theories of life, etc. They are married, and Helen's life is tried for many years by her brilliant husband, who looks upon his wife and her money only as means to an end. A study in selfishness and modern dilletanteism.

Vandam, Albert D. My Paris note-book. [Anon.] Phil., The J. B. Lippincott Co., 1894. c. 2+307 p. D. cl., $1.25.

By the author of "An Englishman in Paris." Contains many graphic anecdotes never before published of Louis Napoleon, Victor Emmanuel, the actors of the Comédie Française, particularly Edmund Got, Emile Augier, and Mounet-Sully; recollections of Paul de Kock, Renan, and other writers; of Thiers and Madame Thiers, McMahon, Grévy, and many others.

Vandam, Albert D. The mystery of the Patrician Club. Phil., The J. B. Lippincott Co., 1894. c. '93. 343 p. D. cl., $1.

The body of a young waiter, the well-known attendant of the card-room at the Patrician Club, is found early in the morning, evidently murdered in the streets of London. Who murdered him, and why, are the questions the story solves. There seems to be no reason for connecting his death with the members of the club, all men of high rank and character; but suspicion finally attaches to one of them. He is hunted down through many exciting scenes by a man whose good name he had ruthlessly destroyed, who successfully plays the detective. The story has many complications. The author wrote "The Englishman in Paris," so much talked about.

Van Dyke, J: C: A text-book of the history of painting. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1894. c. 18+289 p. por. il. D. (College histories of art.) cl., $1.50.

The object of this series of text-books is to provide concise, teachable histories of art for class-room use in schools and colleges. The main facts of history as settled by the best authorities are given. The bibliography cited at the head of each chapter will be found helpful to the reader who wishes to enter into particulars. At the end of each chapter are enumerated the principal extant works of an artist, school, or period, and where they may be found. This volume on painting, the first of the series, omits mention of such works in Arabic, Indian, Chinese, and Persian art as may come properly under the head of ornament—a subject proposed for separate treatment.

Van Norden, C:, D.D. The psychic factor: an outline of psychology. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 6+223 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A summing up of the extended discussions and investigations that have been carried on in the field of psychological research up to the present time. The book is strictly scientific in purpose and spirit.

Lady Violet Johnson, during the first days of married life meets her husband's boisterous affection and disregard of social conventionalities with the coldness of the "Vashti" of the Bible. For a few days he is attracted to a sweet and loving gypsy Esther, and her unkindly fate is wrongfully traced to his little flirtation. A year of married coldness teaches both the husband and wife the foolishness of their ways, and all ends happily.

An extension of a series of studies, published in the Baptist Union, of Chicago, in 1893-94, under the head of the "Sacred literature course." At the request of the executive committee of the Baptist Young People's Union of America they are given in permanent form. The work is divided into four parts: The founding of the church; The Gospel in Asia; The Gospel in Europe; and Establishing the churches. It is claimed that it is historical in aim and spirit, but that it does not give equal prominence to all apostolic events. Enlarged supplementary readings, with literary references, follow the lessons. Designed for students, laymen, and young people.

In the heroine is offered a character study of a modern society woman. She marries three times; her first husband, a captain in the English army, is killed suddenly through an accident, and she is left a widow with a beautiful boy and little means at the age of twenty-five; after three years of widowhood she marries a distinguished clergyman of the Church of England, old enough to be her father, and breaks his heart with her folly and extravagance. In her third marriage she seems to find contentment.

Verne, Jules. The castle of the Carpathians. N. Y., The Merriam Co., [1894.] 3+211 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

A ruined castle among the Carpathian Mountains in the wildest regions of Transylvania is the centre of village gossip and superstition. When the story opens smoke has been seen issuing from the donjon of the castle. Two attempts are made to solve the mystery. The first is unsuccessful; the second, though tragic in conclusion, solves the riddle, which proves to be a matter of electricity and mechanics instead of supernatural force. There are plenty of exciting and mysterious incidents.

"Truth" was the name conferred on a beautiful young southern girl by her godfather, who was a noted northern doctor and a strong believer in theosophy. The scene varies, being first in the south, then in the north, later on the continent. The story offers striking contrasts in the two matrimonial ventures of Truth, and introduces instances of psychic phenomena and spiritual manifestations.

Waliszewski, K. The romance of an empress, Catharine II. of Russia; from the French. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. 4+458 p. por. O. cl., $1.

This romance is founded strictly on history. Documents published by the Russian Imperial Society and other materials scattered in obscure Russian periodicals are the main foundations for the author's work. The life of Queen Catharine embraced the years from 1729 to 1794, one of the most interesting historical periods of the world. The author is fearless and gives most interesting details of Russian life. The book has been forbidden in Russia.

A collection of game pictures reproduced from photographs taken by Mr. and Mrs. Wallihan while in Colorado. The story of how they were taken by "snap shot," often while in motion, is most interesting reading. Mrs. Wallihan was a hunter as well as her husband and a fine shot with a rifle; her hunting adventures are romantic in the extreme.

Walmsley, R. Mulleneux. The electric current, how produced and how used. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., 1894. 10+764 p. il. D. cl., $3.

Divided into three parts, entitled, "Production of the electric current," "Laws of the electric current," and "Applications of the electric current." The work is an attempt to place before the reader the present position of electrical science by constituting the group of phenomena usually referred to as "effects" of the electric current, the central facts about which the subject is arranged.

The years from 1760 to 1773 are covered by these most characteristic of Walpole's partisan writings. The 260 copies of this fine edition which have been printed for America will be quickly placed. Contains sixteen portraits in photogravure, ten of which appear for the first time. Printed from type by T. A. Constable of Edinburgh. Bound in dark red cloth with uncut edges and gilt top.

Walrond, Dorothy, Mopsie: the story of a London waif. N. Y., T: Nelson & Sons, 1894. 6-191 p. il. D. cl., 60 c.

"Mopsie," so called on account of a profusion of elfin locks, is forcibly prevented from waiting for her two companions, who are about to be dismissed from the hospital by a London policeman. After this incident the child's history, which is of singular interest, is told in a story which deals with some types of Whitechapel life.

Ward, Clara Elizabeth. Eunice; or, as ye would. Phil., American Baptist Pub. Soc., 1894. c. 336 p. il. D. (The crown ser.) cl., $1.25.

The story of a young woman who, while having a good deal of this world's goods, is a sincere Christian, and believes in sharing her blessings with others. With this thought in mind she takes into her home, with her mother's permission, a young woman from the country. Her protegée, however, unfortunately goes astray and runs away from home, after a very successful career in school, under the direction of Miss Olway—the "Eunice" of the story. The history of the final rescue of this young woman, and "Eunice's" own love-tale, complete the story.

Ward, C. Osborne. The equilibration of human aptitudes and powers of adaptation. Wash., D. C., National Watchman Co., 1895 [1894.] c. '93. 38+29-333 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The Translator to the United States Department of Labor received his conceptions of the economic adjustment of differing human aptitudes from Charles Darwin, whose keen, analytical judgment in the physical world first gave him the key to the height on which the student of conditions must stand in order to perceive society as a panorama and reason intelligently upon cause and effect. The volume contains chapters on the mechanism of society, the discord of faculties, the plagiaries of genius, the piracy of aptitudes, the concord of faculties, comparative claims, etc. The author claims that a pure political government must absorb both the isolated individual and the segregated society into a great business-like universality of mutual help and progress. He looks for all progress to a conscientious use of the only weapon for reasoning beings—the ballot.

Ward, Mrs. Mary Augusta, [Mrs. T: Humphrey Ward.] Marcella. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. c. 2 v., 4+447; 4+498 p. por. D. cl., $2.

"Marcella" is primarily a love-story, with the chief interest centering in the heroine, an intelligent, passionate, independent young girl, burning with the sense of social injustice under which she and others have suffered and still suffer. She is the child of a high-born, but disgraced father, and of a mother who seems to have little natural affection for her. Two years of her life are lived independently in London, studying art and associating with young Bohemians of socialistic enthusiasms. Then her reformed father inherits Mellor Park, and she rises from what is almost poverty to comparative luxury, and to the distinction of being "Miss Boyce of Mellor Park." Her father's past follows him here, and she finds herself snubbed. She takes refuge in reforms, and applies, unsuccessfully, her socialistic principles. A peculiar crisis in her love affairs sends her back to London and to nursing in the s'ums. While the development of Marcella's many-sided nature is the principal theme, other characters from the extreme points of social life are presented, and the work is as rich in intellectual discussions on the many social problems now disturbing thoughtful people, as were "David Grieve" and "Robert Elsmere."

Hamo, the only son of Squire Crevequer, leaves home on account of an early offence committed for love of Jacquetta Marlowe. Returning after many years' absence, and finding Adela van Ysen, his father's adopted daughter, living at the Hall, as its mistress, he falls in love with her, and is finally accepted; immediately following this incident Jacquetta, now Lady Seagrave, tries to make Hamo return to his former allegiance, and is the cause of a second absence. In this interim, Adela learns that her lover is supposed to be implicated in two crimes. The interest centres in Adela's action during her trying ordeal.

Warden, Florence, [pseud. for Florence Alice Price, now Mrs. G: E. James.] A perfect fool. N. Y., The International News Co., [1894.] c. 1–335 p. D. (Authors' lib., no. 7.) cl., $1.25; pap., 50 c.

A sudden change of fortune forces Mrs. Abercarne to accept a position as housekeeper in the house of a seemingly rich country gentleman, where she is permitted to bring her daughter, a pretty girl, just budding into womanhood, who is dubbed by kind friends as "a perfect fool." Chris Abercarne is not devoid of wit, however, and finds plenty of material in Wyngham House upon which to exercise her intelligence—the chief mystery being a handsome lunatic kept under lock and key; the story of this young man is full of exciting and unexpected episodes.

Warden, Gertrude. The secret of a letter. N. Y., The International News Co., [1894.] c. 3–290 p. S. (The authors' lib., no. 8.) pap., 50 c.

Shirley North at twenty-three falls desperately in love at first sight with a beautiful, mysterious tenant of his great-uncle's. He tells her one day of a communication made by the French governess to his mother and she disappears. He follows her to Paris and finds her transformed into a rich princess. The plot grows thicker, circumstantial evidence more positive. He still loves but learns to doubt. The reader is as puzzled as the brave young lover to the very end.

Warner, Rev. Beverley Ellison. English history in Shakespeare's plays. N Y., Longmans, Green & Co, 1894. 7+321 p. D. cl., $1.75.

A course of lectures, given at the Tulane University of Louisiana, on the study of history as illustrated in the plays of Shakespeare, is the basis of this volume. The lectures, however, have been recast, pruned, and amplified, and much "machinery" has been added in the way of tables of contents, bibliography, chronological tables and index. They are addressed especially to those readers and students of English history who may not have discovered what an aid to the understanding of certain important phases of England's national development lies in these historical plays, which cover a period of three hundred years—from King John and Magna Charta to Henry VIII. and the Reformation.

Warner, C: Dudley. The golden house: a novel; il. by W. T. Smedley. N. Y., Harper, 1895 [1894.] c. 2+346 p. il. D. hf. leath., $2.

A story of the very rich and the very poor of New York City. The characters are Jack Delaney and his wife, a young couple born to wealth and idleness; Mr. Henderson, a multi-millionaire; and Carmen, his second wife—heartless and unscrupulous; Father Damon and Dr. Ruth Leigh, workers among the east side poor, and other types of the business and fashionable and work-a-day world of the great metropolis. The temptations that come alike to the rich and the poor are strongly drawn, while the types presented offer many points of resemblance to noted New York people.

The author says in his prologue that this book is addressed principally to sceptics who are seeking after truth, who feel the necessity of finding out the meaning of earthly existence, and whether this life is all or only a vestibule to a higher one. "The religion of the future" deals with that something lying behind the sympathy and interaction of mind and body at which natural science stops, with which even experimental psychology will have little or nothing to do. It brings forward data to prove that this arbitrary invalidating of modern science is itself invalid.

These poems were mostly contributed to The Outlook. They have been brought together in the present form by Mrs. Weitzel's husband, as a memorial of a woman of rare gifts and character. The Outlook says: "Mrs. Weitzel was one of those whose thought found its value in its fidelity to life, and it would be difficult to find any piece of verse from her pen which does not in one way or another touch upon the deeper experiences of humanity. Pure thought, high aspiration, and a considerable gift for musical expression charac-terize this memorial volume, of which the best thing that can be said is that it not inadequately expresses the spirit and the life of its author."

Weyman, Stanley J. The man in black; il. by Wal Paget and H. M. Paget. N. Y., The Cassell Pub. Co., 1894. 3+212 p. D. cl., $1.

Mr. Weyman has again chosen seventeenth century France as the setting for a story. "The man in black" is Solomon Nostradamus, of Paris, astrologer and dealer in philters, potions, and poisons. Into his clutches falls little Jehan de Bault, a lost child of good family. A poison given by Nostradamus to one of the ladies of the court, at her husband's instance, is, through the lad's interference, administered to the husband instead. His death, and his wife's arrest follow. There is a graphic description of the trial for murder, and in the dramatic climax little Jehan is restored to his estates and home.

A story of France in the seventeenth century. Gil de Berault, a soldier of fortune and a noted duellist, is thrown into prison for wounding a young Englishman in a duel growing out of a quarrel at cards. Cardinal Richelieu offers him his freedom in return for a dangerous service to be rendered him. The service consists in arresting an outlawed nobleman at his country place, near the borders of Spain, and bringing him to Paris. De Berault sets out upon his expedition with plenty of money and few scruples of conscience. He is the hero of many hairbreadth escapes and thrilling adventures, and has almost accomplished his purpose, when he falls in love.

Whitby, Beatrice. Mary Fenwick's daughter. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 2+374 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 143.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

"The awakening of Mary Fenwick" gave the heart-history of the mother, the present tale the love-life of the daughter, who is one of the strong self-reliant, rather mannish girls of to-day. A beautiful picture of country life is given, and the characterization of the many individuals who finally work the desired result, is full of humor and pathos.

Whitcomb, Ida Prentice. A bunch of wild flowers for the children. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1894.] c. 140 p. il. sq. T. bds., 50 c.

Taking the commonest wild flowers found daily in summer rambles the writer tells their stories and traces their family resemblance in a way that is both simple and suggestive.

White, G: Rantoul. An elementary chemistry. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1894. c. 29+272 p. D. cl., $1.10.

This book is designed especially for the use of two classes of students. First, for those whose instruction is placed in the hands of a teacher who cannot devote his whole time to chemistry, and secondly, for young men and women who are eager to study chemistry but have no teacher at all. It is little more than a reproduction of the course in elementary chemistry as now given at Exeter Academy.

White, H: Alex. The origin of the Pentateuch in the light of ancient monuments. Richmond, Va., B. F. Johnson Pub. Co., 1894. c. 3–304 p. O. cl., $2.

The author is professor of history in the Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Virginia. He believes the Pentateuch to be strictly historical, and by study of ancient monuments and comparison of Chaldean, Greek, and other legends, thinks its statements accurate. He advocates that all ancient history and mythology should be studied in connection with the books he implicitly believes to have been written by Moses.

White, Percy. Mr. Bailey-Martin. N. Y., Lovell, Coryell & Co., [1894.] c. '93. 2–318 p. D. cl., $1.

An audacious arraignment of the prejudice, cant, snobbishness, and lack of poise of the English society of to-day. Mr. Bailey-Martin is the son of a tradesman, who at school meets Lord Righton, a specimen of all that is worst and most vulgar in inherited rank of the present day. By persistent effort the hero wins as his wife the daughter of an earl, who has cut loose from her family, and is conducting an unconventional paper devoted to all the undigested religious and political theories of the hour. The book is full of keenest satire, and although a uovel, is probably written with an artistically hidden purpose.

An English story of 1840. Catharine Furze is the only child of ordinary country people, her father being the largest ironmonger in Eastthorpe. She is a thoughtful, reticent girl, out of sympathy with her surroundings. Her unhappy affection for a young minister who is already married is the subject.

Whiter than snow; by the author of "Juror no. 12". N. Y., J. S. Ogilvie Pub. Co., [1894.] c. 2+227 p. D. (The sunset ser., no. 104.) pap., 25 c.

Wiel, Alethea. Venice. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 33+478 p. il. D. $1.50. (Story of the nations ser.) cl., $1.50.

This volume only attempts an outline of a story whose vastness and diversity have rarely been equalled among nations. The geographical position of Venice, the extent of her commerce and wealth, and the heighth of luxury and splendor to which she attained in comparatively early ages are well described. The story of Venice is divided into three periods: From 697 to 1172 witnessed the dawn of ducal power; from 1172 to 1457 her greatest glory was attained; from 1457 to 1797 records a slow, downward course. From then her story was merged into that of France and Austria, and in 1866 she became part of United Italy.

Wilder, L. Amelia. The twins and their texts. Bost., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., 1893 [1894.] 178 p. il. S. cl., 75 c.

Dottie and Dollie, twin sisters six years old, were the happy recipients on their birthday of Bibles and a card basket of texts. On the same day their mother told them of the use she wished them to make of these texts. The story tells how they carried out her plan, how they raised missionary money, of the sociable, of their gardening, of their helping mamma, etc., etc.

Wilkins, Miss Mary Eleanor. Pembroke: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 3–330 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

Pembroke is the name of the New England village in which the events of the story take place. The characters are nearly related, and have strongly-marked peculiarities. The slight plot turns upon an opening scene. Cephas Barnard, a self-willed old man, quarrels about politics with Barnabas Thayer, an obstinate young man, and his daughter's intended husband, and orders him out of his house. Although Charlotte Barnard and Barnabas are to be married in a month's time, the efforts of the united families fail to bring peace. The conflict of the two strong wills, and a secondary story of the prolonged courtship of Charlotte's Aunt Sylvia constitute the story. The exceptionally good pictures of New England of fifty years ago are by Clifford Carleton.

Wilkins, W. H., [pseud. for W. H. D. Winton,] and Vivian Herbert, The green bay tree. N. Y., J. Selwin Tait & Sons, 1894. c. 6+389 p. D. (Tait's Kenilworth ser., no. 3.) pap., 50 c.

A cynical story, dealing with a wild young man, a rather pleasing villain, totally devoid of conscience, who flourishes like "the green bay tree" of the Bible. He begins his career in Harrow School, becomes a member of Parliament, and lives his life to prove that so far as success in this world is concerned truth and right have no chance in contest with worldly wisdom and unscrupulousness.

Willcox, G. B. Beyond the veil. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1894.] c. 207 p. D. cl., $1.

A thread of story in the form of a diary discusses ideas of the future life on the plan of "The gates ajar." Susie, a young girl fatally injured by an accident, lies awaiting death for many months, during which she brings all who come near her to find the comfort of her belief in a Heaven, where every bit of faithful work will be a Christian service of adoration.

Williams, Francis Howard. The flute player, and other poems. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, [1894.] c. 5+128 p. D. cl., $1.

A collection of poems, many of which were first given to readers through the Atlantic Monthly, Harper's Weekly, Lippincott's Magazine, The Independent, and other periodicals. They are musical and refined, and betray a warm appreciation of nature. Of the single poems "The flute player" is one of the most attractive, being truly poetical and singularly elevated in thought. Other single poems follow, then individual sonnets, and afterward "An idle day" being a sequence of sonnets, singing charmingly of the earth, the birds and flowers, and the varied and beautiful aspects of a summer day. "A primrose path" is the last grouping, including "Songs and trifles." A book of wide margins and uncut edges.

A curiously worded advertisement inserted in the columns of a daily paper by Endymion Weeper, an aspirant for literary fame, is answered by Mrs. Bascom, of confessed literary tastes. Mr. Weeper thereupon engages Mrs. Bascom to take part in what he believes is a cleverly constructed plot, and thus serve him as a literary model for his prospective novel. On Mrs. Bascom's way of filling her prescribed rôle rests the interest of the novel.

The little girl who wrote this quaint and amusing diary was the direct descendant in the sixth generation of Mary Chilton, the first English woman to set foot on the soil of New England. She came of good stock, and when in Boston visited among the Brahmins of high descent. Her journal was written for her parents in Nova Scotia, and presents a perfect picture of the childish life of her time—with its few amusements and holidays; her prim little tea drinkings and parties, her devotion and industry, her costumes and economies, all find a place in it.

Dr. Winsor gives an important chapter of the geographical history of the age of American explorations. He narrates the story of the attempts of the French to go into the interior of North America, and shows how by degrees they approximated to an accurate understanding of the problem to be solved. It is the first book devoted to this topic, and Dr. Winsor's profound historical researches, and investigations of the maps depicting the St. Lawrence and vicinity three centuries ago, give very great value and interest to this book.

The plot turns upon the trial and conviction of an innocent man for murder. The hero is a young officer in the English army. An innocent young girl, who has become infatuated with him, compromises herself by going to his rooms in barracks to ask his advice in a desperate strait; he reproaches her for her recklessness, and she leaves him in anger, and disappears completely from the scene. There are scenes from stage life and London literary life.

Witt, Mme. Henriette Eliz. de, [formerly Henriette Eliz. Guizot.] Sur la pente; annotated for schools and colleges; with a portrait and biographical sketch of the author, by E: H. Magill. Phil., Christopher Sower Co., [1894.] c. 197 p. por. D. (Magill's modern French ser., no. 2.) cl., 60 c.

The volumes of this series are graded, the present one being more difficult to read than the preceding one of the series, and easier than the volume which follows it. It is a romance of French provincial life, and is of high moral purpose. The author is the eldest daughter of François Guizot, the distinguished historian and statesman, and has written many stories for the young.

Dr. Wood, who is professor of gynecology in the Cleveland Medical College, says in his preface: "An ideal text-book, according to my conception, is one which should not only embody in concise form for the specialist the most advanced teachings of the American and European schools of gynecology, but should present these teachings in such a way as to enable the student of medicine and the non-specialist to obtain at least an intelligent knowledge of the subject without exhaustive research." Such a work he has aimed successfully to present. He has devoted much space to diagnosis, especially to the diagnosis of abdominal tumors. He has introduced more than the usual number of illustrations and clinical cases and omitted the usual chapters devoted to diseases of the breast and diseases of the rectum.

Wood, Joanna E. The untempered wind. N. Y., J. Selwin Tait & Sons, [1894.] c. 2–314 p. il. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.
The old story of the village Magdalen on whom blows "the untempered wind" of the unchristian uncharitableness of professing Christian women. Myron Holder's fresh girlhood is wrecked by a young medical student who loves and forgets. Her efforts to earn a living for her little boy are blocked by every woman from her own grandmother to the last and least of village matrons. The story is strong and wholly tragic to the end.

These two volumes supplement each other. The first one contains the directions to the pupils for performing his experiments, which are sufficient to prevent that aimless work so common among young experimenters, and yet not so full as to interfere with the inductive method. Each experiment is intended to illustrate some one truth, which is further enforced by the exercises. The second volume, the "Text-book," is quite similar to the ordinary text-book. It tells how the experiments should result. It gives the pupil a correct form of statement for the conclusions and laws which he has learned in a practical way. The two books are to be accompanied by a simple cheap apparatus for each pupil. Author is professor in Teachers' College, New York City.

Woods, Margaret L. The vagabonds. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. c. 4+302 p. D. cl., $1.50.

"The vagabonds," characters in a travelling circus troup in rural England, are described with the mastery of detailed word-painting shown in "A village tragedy" and "Esther Vanhomrigh." The clown, the "india-rubber tumbler," the "Mexican rider" from Ireland, and the supercilious young wife of the clown, are chief actors, and their most unsmooth love-affairs furnish a complicated plot.

Woods, Virna. A modern Magdalene. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1894. c. 2+346 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The story of a gifted young girl of good family who elopes with a married man. The opening scenes are in a town of Ohio, where the girl plays the organ in a leading church, and the man, a journalist of some reputation, is the tenor of the choir. They try to excuse their love because the man is so unhappily married, and because of its strength and sincerity. They fly to San Francisco, where they have a few years of happiness; but the sudden death of the hero casts the girl with her little child out into poverty. She goes through all the gradations of vice and misery before death releases her.

The story of a little boy, whose mother dies suddenly in a poor English lodging-house, before making any provision for the child, or telling the names of his relatives. The boy shows a fondness for art, and is taken by an unsuccessful artist to travel with him on the continent. The artist earns a precarious living for both, by painting portraits as they rest for a few days in successive villages. The chief episode of the story is where the boy finds a father, and discovers he is heir to a good old name.

Woolson, Miss Constance Fenimore. Horace Chase: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 2+419 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Asheville, North Carolina, and St. Augustine, Florida, as they were twenty years ago serve as the background to this novel. The motive is the marriage of Ruth Franklin, a young southern girl, to Horace Chase, a rich northerner, much her senior; in spite of his tenderness and care, she awakens one day to the knowledge that she does not love him. Her infatuation for another man is the destroying element in their domestic life. The Franklin family and their friends are cleverly and humorously presented. The power of northern energy and capital is incidentally shown.

World's Columbian Exposition. World's Parliament of Religions: an illustrated and popular story of the world's first parliament of religions held in Chicago in connection with the Columbian Exposition of 1893; ed. by J: H: Barrows, D.D. In 2 v. Chic., The Parliament Publishing Co., [J. A. Hill & Co., 44 E. 14th St., N. Y.,] 1893 [1894.] c. '93. 34+800; 800-1600 p. pors. il. O. cl., subs., (for complete work,) $5; leather, $7.50; full mor., $10.

The plan of a congress of all the religions of the world during the Exposition, suggested by President Charles C. Bonney, met with an unusual response and excited a warm interest. Representatives were sent to it not only from all Christian denominations, but from the Hebrews and various Oriental religious. They were brought together not only to promote and deepen the spirit of human brotherhood among religious men of diverse faiths, but to set forth, by those most competent to speak, what are deemed the most important distinctive truths held and taught by such religion, thus showing how many beliefs are held and taught in common. Light was also sought from all on the great social problems of the present age. The addresses and papers embraced in these volumes finely illustrate the idea which brought these great and world-renowned men together; they are full of wisdom and instruction upon many timely points. This work will be in two volumes, and is claimed to be the authorized edition, containing a number of letters and correspondence which only the present editor could possess. Finely illustrated with portraits, etc.

Wortabet, W: Thomson. Arabic-English dictionary. 2d ed. rev. and enl. N. Y., imported by C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. 8°, cl., net, $6.

Worthington, T. Locke. The dwellings of the poor and weekly wage-earners in and around towns; with an introd. by G. V. Poore, M.D. N. Y., imported by C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. 12°, cl., $1.

Worthington, Victoria. Rank vs. merit. N. Y., Home Book Co., [1894.] c. 3-283 p. D. (Modern novelists' ser., no. 9.) pap., 50 c.

A love-story, in which a lord's son marries a gardener's daughter, with ensuing trials and complications. The marriage is annulled through the efforts of the bridegroom's parents, and the young couple are separated, the husband to become engaged to another woman, the young wife to win fame as a singer and actress. Finally they meet again, and after unhappiness and several emotional scenes there is forgiveness and reconciliation.

Wray, Rev. Ja. Jackson. Betwixt two fires. Cin. O., Cranston & Curts, [1894.] 3+283 p. il. D. cl., 90 c.

A semi-religious story, whose moral is "forgive your enemies."

Wright. Claude Falls. An outline of the principles of modern theosophy; with an introd., by W: Q. Judge. N. Y., Office of The Path, 1894. 12°, cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Wright, Jessie E. Philip Leicester. Bost., W. A. Wilde & Co., [1894.] c. 2-264 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

The story deals with Philip Leicester, born in Boston of excellent parents, and lost in London while a baby. Philip goes through many trying scenes, comes to Boston from London, and finally is found and claimed by his family.

Wright, J: W. Curious facts, myths, legends, and superstitions concerning Jesus; with an historical sketch of the false Christs of all ages. Cin., O., Cranston & Curts, 1894. c. 130 p. por. il. O. cl., 50 c.

The author, who is a journalist, has selected from many sources the most characteristic and mysterious of the many scores of legends which have been woven around the story of the obscure birth, conspicuous life, and tragic death of Jesus Christ. He has attempted to give explanations of enigmatical allusions and references which occur in the Bible without explanatory connection. Copious foot-notes give credit for all the quoted legends and myths.

Wright, Mrs. Julia McNair. Ragweed: a west world story. Phil., Presb. Bd. of Pub., 1894. c. 317 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Wright, Lewis. Light: a course of experimental optics chiefly with the lantern. New cheaper ed. rev. and enl. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 12°, cl., $2.

Wright, Mabel Osgood. The friendship of nature: a New England chronicle of birds and flowers. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. c. 4+238 p. il. T. cl., 75 c. Edition de luxe, il. 8°, cl., net, $3.

Contents: A New England May-day; When orchards bloom; The romaunt of the rose; The gardens of the sea; A song of summer; Feathered philosophers; Nature's calm; The story of a garden; Rustling wings; The loom of autumn; A winter mood. A fewof these papers appeared in the New York Evening Post and the New York Times; they have, however, been rewritten since their first publication.

Wright, Marcus Jos. General Scott. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. '93. 12+349 p. por. D. (Great commanders ser., no. 7.) cl., $1.50.

General Winfield Scott's life covered eighty years in eventful American history; he was born in 1786 and died in 1866; he served with honor and won distinction in the War of 1812 and the Mexican War. His record was a blameless one, both as soldier and civilian. The author in preparing this volume consulted many volumes of biography and reminiscences.

Wright, Martha J. The new garden of Eden. San Francisco, Cal., Bancroft & Co., 1894. c. 3-210 p. S. pap., 50 c.

In verse and prose the author sets forth

"The woman's cause is man's; they rise or sink

Wright, T: The life of Daniel Defoe. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., 1894. 23+432 p. il. O. cl., $3.75.

The author claims to give a truer picture of the personality of Defoe than any of his predecessors, as he has had a great mass of new material to draw from. He also submits what he believes to be the true key to "Robinson Crusoe." Defoe declares in his "Serious reflections" that "Robinson Crusoe" is an allegory of his own life, the correspondence extending to minuteness—and Mr. Wright carefully points out the parallels.

Wright, W: A short history of Syriac literature. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 296 p. 12°, cl., net, $2.25.

Wright, W: Burnet, D.D. Master and men; or, the sermon on the mountain practiced on the plain. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 3–240 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Dr. Wright seeks to recall the world to the Christianity of Christ, by pointing out the sharp contrasts between this and many characteristics of Christendom to-day, and by illustrating each of the beatitudes from the history of Christ, and from a study of eminent historic personages in whom these beatitudes are conspicuously exemplified. The persons thus portrayed are Moses, Paul, George Fox, General Gordon, and George Macdonald.

Wulling, F. J. A course in inorganic pharmaceutical chemistry. N. Y., J: Wiley & Son, 1894. 12°, cl., $2.

Wyatt, Francis. The phosphates of America, where and how they occur, how they are mined and what they cost; with practical treatise on the manufacture of sulphuric acid, acid phosphate, phosphoric acid, and concentrated superphosphates, and select methods of chemical analysis. 5th ed. rev. and enl. and brought up to date. Yechton, Barbara. Two knights-errant, and other stories; il. by Harriet Roosevelt Richards. N. Y., T: Whittaker, [1894.] 2+20 p. D. hf. cl., 60 c.

Contents: A matter of honor; Grandma's New-Year party; Vera; Honor before honors. Four short stories for children of about 12 or 14; the lesson of each points to a high standard of right.

Yeo, I: Burney, M.D. A manual of medical treatment or clinical therapeutics. Phil., Lea Bros. & Co., 1893 [1894.] 2 v., 13+631; 6+744 p. 8°, cl., $5.50.

Yonge, Charlotte M. A. The cook and the captive; or, Attalus the hostage; il. by W. S. Stacey. N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1894. c. 7+246 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

The time is A.D. 532. Attalus, the grandson of Bishop Gregory, is claimed as a hostage by Hilderbert, King of the Western Franks, who sends him to King Theuderbert of the Eastern Franks, in order that he may placate that monarch. The adventures of Attalus while in captivity, with notable incidents of Frankish history, are given, notably his escape from the Court of Theuderbert. It is claimed that the captivity and escape are literal facts.

Yonge, Charlotte Ma. The heir of Redclyffe; il. by Kate Greenaway. Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1893 [1894.] 4–487 p. D. (Rialto ser., no. 58.) pap., 50 c.

Yonge, Charlotte Ma. The rubies of St. Lo. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 128 p. 8°, flex. cl., 75 c.

Young, Egerton Ryerson. Oowikapun; or, how the gospel reached the Nelson River Indians. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1894. c. 240 p. D. cl., $1.

Oowikapun is a young Indian of one of the Northern Cree tribes. While hunting far from his native village he is wounded and is nursed back to health by a Christianized Indian. This incident and the influence of an Indian girl induce Oowikapun to make a long journey to the nearest mission-house and to return to his tribe with a missionary, thus "bringing the gospel to the Nelson River Indians."

Young, Francis Chilton, ed. Electrical apparatus for amateurs. N. Y., Ward, Lock & Bowden, Ltd., 1894. 104 p. diagrams, 8°, cl., 40 c.

Young, Ja. K., M.D. A manual of orthopedic surgery for students and practitioners. Phil., Lea Bros. & Co., 1894. 446 p. il. O. cl., $4; leath., $5.

Z., Z., [anonym for L: Zangwill.] A drama in Dutch. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. c. 2+275 p. D. cl., $1.

A Dutchman and his pretty doll-wife and little son are living comfortably on the proceeds of a little tobacco-shop in London, when the new tramway decreases the number of pedestrians and spoils trade. While the husband is seeking new work his wife runs away with another man. Twenty years go by, the poor tradesman has become rich and honored, when he again is disappointed in his dearest hopes. The author artistically refrains from telling that disappointment came to him through his unknown son.

Zahm, Rev. J. A. Bible, science, and faith. Balt., J: Murphy & Co., 1894. c. 316 p. D. cl., net, $1.25.

Parts 1 and 2 are composed of articles, revised and annotated, which have appeared in the American Ecclesiastical Review, while part 3 embraces a series of papers which were printed in the American Catholic Quarterly Review. The individual titles of the groups are: "The mosaic hexaëmeron in the light of exegesis and modern science," "The Noachian deluge," and "The age of the human race according to modern science and biblical chronology."

Zangwill, I. The King of Schnorrers: grotesques and fantasies. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. c. 8+400 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

Stories both tragic and comic. The opening and longest story which gives title to the volume "The King of the Schnorrers" embodies some of the floating traditions of the Jewish Schnorrer, who is as unique among beggars as Israel among nations. The close of the eighteenth century is the background of this fantastic Anglo-Jewish narrative. The vagaries of this king of the beggars are most laugbable. Some of the titles of the other fifteen stories are: The semi-sentimental dragon; A tragic comedy of creeds; An odd life; Cheating the gallows; A rose of the Ghetto; Flutterduck, a Ghetto grotesque, etc., etc.

Zobeltitz, Fedor v. Invisible hands: a novel; from the German, by S. E. Boggs; il. by James Fagan. N. Y., Robert Bonner's Sons, [1894.] c. 372 p. D. (Ledger lib., no. 111.) cl., $1.25; pap., 50 c.

A German love-story, turning upon a conspiracy to obtain possession of a young heiress' estates by proving her an impostor. The leader in the plot—a wily Italian lawyer—is defeated in his machinations by the heroine's devoted but unsuccessful suitor, who concludes his unselfish service by giving place to a more favored rival.

Zola, Émile. The attack on the mill; and three sketches of war. N. Y., F: A. Stokes Co., 1894. il. 12°, buckram, $1.50.

Zola, Émile. The experimental novel, and other essays; from the French, by Belle M. Sherman. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., 1894. c. '93. 6+413 p. O. cl., $2.

The longer essays are entitled: "The experimental novel;" "Naturalism on the stage;" "The influence of money in literature," and "The influence of the republic in literature." Under the headings "The novel" and "Criticism" are gathered together a number of short articles selected from many published in Le bien public and Le Voltaire.

Zola, Émile. Lourdes. Chic., F. Tennyson Neely, [1894.] 2–486 p. D. (Neely's international lib.) cl., $1.25.

Lourdes, the miracle city of France, is the resort each year of over a hundred thousand pilgrims, who seek healing in the waters of the holy grotto. Zola gives here a study of Lourdes, its votaries and miracles, from the point of view of a curious, judicial, materialistic observer, analyzing pitilessly the hopes, faith, and suffering of the pilgrims, the details of the miracles, the paraphernalia of religious ceremonial. He tells the story of a national pilgrimage, during the three days that it lasts, as well as the two days given to travelling. The book is divided into five parts, one for each day, and opens with the departure from Paris of the "white train," carrying the weakest and most suffering pilgrims. There are over a hundred characters and little definite "plot," though special interest centres in one group of actors. The book is said to be the first of a proposed trilogy, dealing with "Lourdes," "Rome," and "Paris."

HAVE JUST PUBLISHED:

SOCIAL GROWTH AND STABILITY.

A Consideration of the Factors of Modern Society and their Relation to the Character of the Coming State. By D. OSTRANDER, author of "The Law of Fire Insurance." Cloth, $1.00.

This work treats of the existence in this country of a social and industrial revolution, manifestations of which are seen in the tramp; the unemployed; strikes, lockouts, and other forms of conflict between capital and labor; the growth of socialism, etc. The duty of the State in reference to education, the furnishing of employment, the regulation of competition, and the control of the means of production and distribution, etc., are considered in a philosophical and practical manner. The work seeks to promote a better understanding of social relations and to stimulate effort in behalf of the wage-earner.

OTTO'S INSPIRATION.

By MARY H. FORD, author of "Which Wins." Cloth, $1.00.

The Standard, Chicago, says: "The story of a young musical genius charmingly told. The reader is at once interested in the hero, sympathizes with him in his firm conviction that an angel inspires him, and closes the book with the feeling as if he had just read a veritable history."

The Chicago Inter-Ocean says: "It is a very sweet story and a humane one. Any one who wishes to read a beautiful story of a beautiful life will find it between the covers of the book. The tone throughout is pure, and no one can read it without feeling better for it."

FREYTAG'S TECHNIQUE OF THE DRAMA.

An authorized translation, by ELIAS J. MACEWAN, M.A. Cloth, $1.50.

An historical and philosophical exposition of dramatic composition and art, stating the general principles governing the structure of plays, the creation of characters, and the rules of acting. An important feature of the work is its critical examination of the plan, motive, color, characters, etc., of the principal dramas of Sophocles, Shakespeare, Lessing, Goethe, and Schiller, thus making it of special value to dramatic authors, critics, and students of literature.

The New York World says: "Its exposition of dramatic art and composition is one of the clearest and best that has yet been written."

The Chicago Evening Post says: "It is among the most learned, authoritative, and yet popular contributions to this branch of literature."

The Evening Leader, New Haven, Conn., says: "There is nothing in the English language that can compare with it."

IN PRESS: DOCTOR JUDAS;

A Portrayal of the Opium Habit. By WILLIAM ROSSER COBBE. One vol., 12mo.

Mr. Cobbe writes from his own personal experience with the Judas of drugs, and portrays the mental, moral, and physical phases of the habit with a wealth of illustration and a felicity of expression unequalled since the days of De Quincey. The object is to enlighten the public respecting opium, to warn of its dangers, to enlist effort to suppress its sale by druggists and its employment by physicians, and to assure its habitués of a possible cure.

For sale by the Baker & Taylor Co., 5 and 7 East 16th St., New York, and by other Booksellers, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, by the publishers,

FOR LIBRARIES AND BOOKMEN.

Early Bibles of America.

BY THE REV. JOHN WRIGHT, D.D.

Octavo, 500 pages, 33 plates, $3.00 net.

This third and final edition has been made an exhaustive bibliographical history of every Bible published in the U. S., Mexico and Canada from the earliest time down to 1860. Of unique value to collectors and bookmen generally. Among its valuable data is an Appendix (N) giving the market prices of over one thousand different editions. The author has spent years in preparing his MS., while the publisher has economized neither time nor expenditure in producing a perfect book.

New Publications of the Open Court Pub. Co.

POPULAR SCIENTIFIC LECTURES. By Ernst Mach, Professor of Physics in the German University of Prague. Translated by Thomas J. McCormack. Cloth, gilt top, exhaustively indexed, 313 pages, $1.00.

In this collection, by a singular beauty of style, and by the choice of simple and attractive subjects, Professor Mach has portrayed and embodied the elements that constitute the essential poetry of research. Apart from the copious positive matter which they contain, this imparting of the enthusiasm for science is their signal feature.

THE GOSPEL OF BUDDHA ACCORDING TO OLD RECORDS. Told by Paul Carus. With Table of References and Parallels, Glossary, and Complete Index. Second edition. Cloth, gilt top, $1.00.

The second edition, which had to go to press nine weeks after the publication of the first edition, is, in paper, print, and binding equal to the first edition; the rich gold lettering alone has been omitted, making possible a reduction in price from $1.50 to one dollar, which, it is to be hoped, will meet the popular demand.

"A series of chapters of extracts from the words of Buddha, from what for the Buddhist corresponds to our Bible, so to express it. . . . Its chapters are beautiful in form and noble in sentiment. It is not offered in hostility to Christianity, but for study in connexion with the latter and in the hope of promoting spiritual reflexion. Those who wish to consult such an epitome will find this book worth heed."—The Congregationalist, Boston.

THE CERES LETTER & CARD FILES

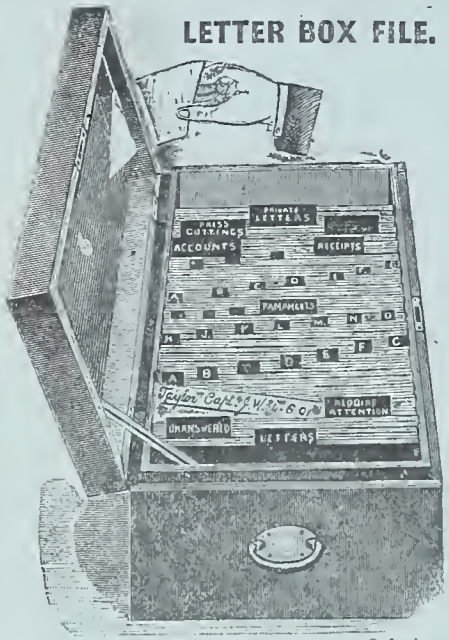
A REVOLUTION IN KEEPING LETTERS AND PAPERS, AND FOR INDEXING.

The System is worked in Boxes, Cabinets, Writing Tables, &c. The order of arrangement is usually alphabetical, but, if preferred, blank Guides can be supplied for grouping matters under special heads.

LETTER BOX FILE.



No. 1 Letter File, the most useful size, 20 in. by 12 in. by 9½ in. high. Capacity, 2,000 Quarto Papers.

A single receptacle for all current Letters, Bills, and Papers, instead of the old plan of separate boxes or drawers for Papers of various kinds. The Box can be left securely locked, and Letters which come during absence can be 'posted' through the slit into the empty end and sorted at leisure.

PRICES.

No. 1 size, in Wood, covered Red Cloth, with catch 25/6; with Yale Lock, 30/-; solid Walnut (Yale Lock), 45/-; solid Mahogany (Yale Lock), 63/-.

A smaller size, No. 2, is stocked for use where table space is limited, and for Press Cuttings, Notes, &c. Capacity, 1,000 Letters, 8vo., i.e. Note Size. With Catch, 17/6; with Yale Lock, 22/-.

In Japanned Tin—No. 1 for Quarto Letters 20 in. long (Yale Lock), 54/6; No. 2, Foolscap, 24 in. long, with special springless Yale Lock, 75/6.

These Tin Boxes are specially designed for travelling purposes. The Papers are secured by a strap (always in position) in a moment of time, and the Box can then be turned about without disturbing the contents, and whilst en route Papers can be passed through the Letter-slit without stopping to unlock the Box.

Sir JAMES CRICHTON BROWNE, M.D., F.R.S.

'A time-economiser and protection against many of the minor worries that are incidental to the conduct of a large correspondence. It is a simple and ingenious invention, and will, I believe, be generally adopted by those who value sound methods and such mechanical aids to them as are practicable.'

THE CERES CARD FILES.

The Ceres Card Files in Cabinets for Library Catalogues, and in Boxes and Trays for other purposes, constitute the latest development of the Card System, being in advance of anything of the kind in this country or the United States.

Cards may be used in place of alphabetical and classified Books (which must of necessity fill up unequally, involving frequent re-arrangement and re-writing into new books), for Indexes and Statistics of every kind, and for any List of Names or Subjects in a growing or varying condition.

(Messrs. BEMROSE & SONS, Ltd., Derby.)

'I am using the Card Box daily for a literary purpose, and I find it simply invaluable. As it lies on the table entries are made at the moment under their proper heads, and the facility of reference is such as no other mode of indexing I am aware of can touch.'
